Committee to consider feasibility of economic office

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

A steering committee to consider the feasibility of establishing an economic development office within the Chamber of Commerce was named Friday at a special meeting of the Chamber board of directors.

Appointed to the three-man committee were board member Robert Hardwick and Chamber members E. G. Adams and Lou Tempel Jr. Adams, president of the Sedalia Bank and Trust Co., was named chairman.

Adams spurned a suggestion that the committee meet with the City Council at the next council meeting Nov. 18, saying "that horse has been ridden long enough and there's no sense in gouging him on needlessly ... I envision our approach as being structured so as to avoid a confrontation with the council."

The committee's role, he said, "will be to ascertain the true feelings of the community on this matter."

Adams cited figures included in a recent Kansas City newspaper article which revealed that the percentage increase of new employment opportunities was 35 per cent in Marshall, 29 per cent in Warrensburg and only 4 per cent in Sedalia.

"I think this underscores the urgency of the present local situation," he said. "The figures speak for themselves."

His committee, Adams indicated, will also explore the possibility of asking Chamber members for financial contributions to help raise the estimated $35,000 Chamber executive manager Larry Melton said would be necessary to establish the office. This figure, Melton said, is about $5,000 less than the estimated $40,000 budget figure for former economic development director Bill Hall.

Before deciding to name the steering committee, the board discussed other alternate ways to secure the funds. The possibility of obtaining money solely from the city and county has been discounted, it was indicated. This is true, Melton said, largely because of a tentative ruling by Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming that any county contribution could come only by a vote of the people and not by action of the County Court judges.

Also, it was reported, the addition of a new position, county auditor, has created an additional strain on the already-tight county budget.

Another alternative, suggested by board member Jack Robinson, was that the Chamber encourage the council to enact a resolution permitting the mayor to break a tie in the event a deadlock developed on the decision to hire a director. In the Oct. 21 pre-council session, such a straw-vote situation occurred, with the vote splitting evenly down party lines. Republican Mayor Jerry Jones has joined his party's council representatives in supporting the issue.

However, Melton interjected, he has been informed by Jones and two unnamed Republican councilmen that they would hesitate in favoring such a proposal because of the precedent it would set, including the possibility of a reversal vote in the future. Also, Melton said, the men cited the factors of possible public discontent with the move and the possibility of creating an unfavorable, divided atmosphere whith could harm a new director's efforts.

"Granted, it might be a bad atmosphere, but it wouldn't be as bad as the economic atmosphere here right now," Robinson responded.

No official action was taken on the matter.

In their effort to further inform citizens of the need for a director, it was suggested that members of the steering committee or Chamber board meet with local labor leaders to discuss the situation and hopefully develop support from this sector of the community.

Board members also expressed varying degrees of dissatisfaction with recent developments which saw the council finally approve the hiring of an economic developer in October only to have him later resign the position.

"It's the most frustrating thing I have ever run up against," board president Jake Siragusa said. M. J. Martin noted that the presence of an economic development director would also be important to existing industries and businesses as well as potential ones.

"We need some liaison person to tie things together," he said. "We need technical advice from someone trained in the field."

The developer, Melton noted, "has got to be a financier, a lawyer, and a real estate man among other things. Naturally, he won't have a degree in each of these fields, but I do mean he would be sufficiently well-rounded to provide a wealth of information in many areas for local firms."

Adams is expected to make a preliminary report on the committee's action at the next regular Chamber board meeting Nov. 19.

Few will be spared by miners' walkout

By The Associated Press

The upcoming miners' strike will hit hard at the railroads which carry the coal, the industries that use it in manufacturing and the men and women whose jobs depend on an adequate supply of the fuel.

"It's going to hurt," said a spokesman for the bankrupt Penn Central railroad which handles an average of 216,000 tons of coal a day and gets 13 per cent of its total freight revenues from hauling the fuel.

Negotiators in Washington, D.C., reported Saturday that there was progress toward a new contract for the 120,000 members of the United Mine Workers who produce about 70 per cent of the nation's coal.

But the strike deadline is 12:01 a.m. Tuesday and even if there is a weekend settlement the miners will walk out because their union ratification process takes about 10 days.

Predictions of the impact varied from industry to industry.

Most spokesmen said the severity of the problem would depend on how long the walkout lasts.

New York State's Temporary Commission on Living Costs and the Economy said a three-month strike would force the layoff of 372,500 workers in the state, while a four-week walkout would mean the potential loss of 129,000 jobs.

"The critical factors determining the impact will be the length of time for which supplies are halted," the commission said. "A major consideration will also be the availability and practicality of energy substitutes."

Louise Freese of the state Emergency Fuel Office said a lengthy strike would have a more severe impact than last year's gasoline shortage. "It would be worse than the Arab oil embargo," she said.

A state spokesman said 55 major industrial operations and 21 state facilities in New York depend on coal.

The nation gets 54 per cent of its electric power from coalburning plants. Interior Department officials say the average utility has an 80-day supply of coal, but the Tennessee Valley Authority, the nation's largest coal user, said it had only a 44-day reserve.

The railroads were expected to be hit first and hardest.

A Penn Central spokesman said a miners' walkout would cost $650,000 daily in lost revenues. "This is about $5 million a week," he said.

Opening congratulations

After he cut the ribbon to officially open the Sedalia Community Center gymnasium Saturday morning, Mayor Jerry Jones got a little too busy shaking hands. Here, he tries to congratulate the center's director, Andre Duchone, left, while Morris Byrum, right, project steering committee chairman, reaches for the mayor's hand.

Lt. Calley plans to 'sink into anonymity'

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — William L. Calley Jr. was freed on bail and removed from Army custody Saturday. His lawyer said the former lieutenant plans to get a job and "sink into anonymity."

After more than three years of legal maneuvering, Calley was freed by the same federal judge who reversed his conviction for the My Lai murders. He was released on his own recognizance in lieu of $1,000 bond.

The slight, sandy-haired Calley smiled broadly as U.S. District Court Judge J. Robert Elliott signed the bail order issued Friday by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Calley, 31, clad in a gray plaid suit, declined comment and his attorneys said he had been counseled not to speak to newsmen until all legal action is over.

The Army has appealed Elliott's reversal of Calley's March 1971 conviction of murdering 22 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in 1968 and the appeals court in New Orleans has said it will act on the appeal the week of February 17, 1975.

"Right now he's a free man," said J. Houston Gordon, of Covington, Tenn., the attorney who spearheaded the legal motions which resulted in Calley's being freed on bail and in a reversal of his court-martial conviction.

"After three years of fighting appeals, at long last, it appears he'll never have to spend another day in prison," said Gordon.

"He wants to lead a normal life, without people hounding him," Gordon said on the steps of the courthouse as Calley walked down the street followed by television cameramen and photographers.

Community center opens

About 75 persons and the Smith-Cotton High School band stood outside the new Sedalia Community Center gymnasium, Third and Washington, early Saturday morning to await the grand opening ceremony for the facility.

After an invocation and the introductions of dignitaries, Andre H. Duchone, director of the center, expressed his appreciation to the people of Sedalia and specifically the Optimist Club for its support of the center.

"I hope to get the continued support of the local citizens and I'm extremely happy to be a part of the center. I think it's the greatest thing that has happened to the city of Sedalia," Duchone said.

He assured the crowd that he will carry on as director to make the center "the most productive in the country."

Mayor Jerry Jones then spoke before he officially cut the ribbon to open the center.

"I think it's only fitting that this center is dedicated to those who had the perseverance to see it completed. I'd like to thank the many people who have worked individually and collectively to make this facility possible," Jones said.

He expressed his appreciation to the architects and the contractors for the building.

"This community center recognizes the greatest asset in the community — the people," he said.

Morris Byrum, project steering committee chairman, then presented the mayor and the city with a certificate of appreciation.

The 72-by-90 foot gym is adjacent to the old St. Patrick's School building, which serves as the main facility for the center. Total cost for the gym, which includes locker room and shower facilities, and remodeling of the school was $285,000. Federal funds paid for two-thirds of the project.

Headquarters for the Boys Club of Sedalia, Head Start, the Nutrition Center, Meals on Wheels, the Adult Basic Education center and a branch of the Sedalia Public Library all are located at the community center.

Duchone stressed that the gym was open for organized public use, such as dances and banquets. He said that within three weeks the Boys Club basketball teams would begin their season in the gym.

Friends, neighbors come to rural family's aid

He never quits

By MARY LOU VOSSMEYER
Democrat-Capital Staffwriter

Kenneth Rhine, Georgetown, has been home for nearly a month. And with the help of friends and two trust funds, a lot has been accomplished in that short time.

Rhine, who has a rare form of cancer, had been taking daily treatments for his illness at the Veterans Administration (VA) Hospital, Columbia. He was permitted to be with his family only on weekends.

Since he was released as an outpatient, two trust funds were started to help pay for supplies needed to finish the home he is building for his family. Volunteers also appeared at the Rhine home nearly every day to help with interior construction. In less than a month, volunteers completed half of the work.

Rhine said, "I figure it would have taken me between eight and nine years to finish this because it takes a lot of money to do this and I'd have to hire someone to do the labor."

Rhine, 32, has been unable to work since his left arm was amputated about six months ago in an attempt to stop the cancer spreading through his body.

To ease Rhine's financial burdens, which were heightened by rapidly-multiplying doctor bills, the Bethel Methodist Church started a trust fund for the family. The fund so far has collected more than $600.

According to Mrs. William Kraft, a church member; "The response to the fund has been great and it's still going great. Members of the church and many others have donated."

The trust fund was established last month with Missouri State Bank. Administrator of the fund is Mrs. Everett Vannoy.

Local people like Price Jackson, a professional carpenter, have donated their time and labor to install new floors, acoustic ceilings and wall paneling. Jackson said many of the materials were donated by local merchants, and several volunteers came from Carpenters Local, 1792.

Jackson said Rhine "does everything he can to help. He's been struggling with it trying to get it done for quite some time."

While crews from the Bethel Methodist Church were doing carpentry work, another group was installing a new heating system in Rhine's home. Until recently, Rhine heated his entire house with a wood-burning stove.

Four local businesses and other volunteers donated either time and equipment to hlep install an electric heating system in the home.

A second trust fund administered by Dusty Rhoads, 1305 West Sixth, and Bud McCown, has acquired more than $1,200. So far, only $535 has been used from the fund to buy materials for the Rhine's home. The fund is being handled through Sedalia Bank and Trust.

McCown said this fund was started a few weeks ago with a $50 donation "and since then the fund just grew ... people really responded."

With carpenters and electricians working in the Rhine home nearly every day, Rhine said his wife has managed to survive the confusion gracefully.

"She's been really patient with it all.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri will celebrate Veterans Day Monday.

As a result of a 1973 state law switching the day from the last Monday in October, it will be the second year in which state offices will be closed Nov. 11 while federal offices are open.

In a Veterans Day statement, Gov. Christopher S. Bond urged employers to hire veterans. During the fiscal year ending June 30, Missouri ranked eight in the nation in placing veterans, with a total of 17,996.

Plumber's find

By ERMA BOMBECK

My husband crawled out from under the bathroom sink, rose to his feet, summoned the entire family about him and said, "I suppose you all wonder why I have gathered you here today."

We all nodded soberly.

"I have just cleaned out the trap under this washbowl and I would like to inventory the items I have removed: 14 toothpaste caps, one shampoo cap, a blue balloon, a plastic naval officer, a wine bottle cork, three rubber bands, a dime, and a class ring from a girl's school in Peoria."

"If it's silver, the dime is mine," said my son.

"Don't interrupt ... a Barbie bra, a pencil stub, a tooth, possibly human, a luggage key, 17 rusted bobby pins and 85 pounds of hair. What are we going to do about it?"

"Are you suggesting a garage sale?" I ventured.

"I am not suggesting a garage sale," he said between clenched teeth, "I am suggesting that this family stop littering the plumbing. Do you know what really aggravates me?"

"I know," said a son raising the hand. "The night we left on 32 lights and no one was home."

"No, it was my feet hanging out the window last summer on our vacation."

"You are all wrong," I said. "It's standing in front of an open refrigerator door like you're waiting for change."

"This is not a game show," said my husband evenly. "This is serious. We are the only family in the block who has a live-in plumber who retired at age 23 to live out the rest of his life in Hilton Head. A week has not gone by that something in this bathroom has not bubbled, hissed, dripped, trickled, or run over. I don't mind admitting I'm not the world's greatest plumber ... why are you snickering?"

"I'm sorry. It's just that no one reseats a toilet with Play-Doh."

"I do the best I can living with four people who are not ready yet for indoor plumbing. Now, here is the plan. In the future, if you have hair falling out, either place it in the nearest receptacle or braid it back into your original hair. Replace all caps on their original bottles or tubes and report any suspicious gurgling noises you hear immediately."

"By the way, Dad," said our son, "here's a President Ford WIN button that was stopping up the drain in the shower. Why were you wearing a WIN button in the shower?"

I could hardly wait for the answer as my next question was, "Where?"

Pocket calculators tell inflation story easily

NEW YORK (AP) — The pocket electronic calculator remains a hot item for retailers despite declining consumer enthusiasm, probably because it makes it possible to determine where you are in relation to inflation.

Think about it: When prices are rising at 1 or 1.5 per cent, as they did in the late 1950s and early 1960s, a simple pencil or an abacus can tell you what your dollar will be worth 10 years hence.

When they're rising at 12.1 per cent, as they did from September 1973 through September 1974, you really can't determine quickly that a $12,000 income would have to grow to $37,604 by 1984 in order to buy as much.

But with a calculator you just pnch out the magic number 3.1337. Multiplying any sum by that number will tell you how much money you'd have to have in 1984 to match that sum's buying power in 1974, if inflation continues at the same rate.

This is one of the little exercises that the savings and loan people—some of whom offer calculators as premiums— believe will shock Americans into doing their bit to slow the rise in prices.

Preparing for their annual meeting, to be held next week in San Francisco, members of the U.S. League of Savings Associations have used their calculators to produce some nightmarish statistics.

Using that key number — which means it will take $3.13 by 1984 to buy what a dollar gets you today or, to put it another way, that the 1984 dollar will be worth less than 32 cents in comparison with the 1974 dollar — they find:

—Even if you paid no income tax, to match the buying power of a $7,500 annual income today you would have to earn $23,503 in 1984, if the present rate of inflation continues.

The first phrase of that preceding paragraph is, of course, almost meanlingness. Not only will you have to pay a tax, but unless the tax laws are changed you'll be in a higher, more expensive tax bracket.

—By 1984, anyone looking forward to a retirement pension of $1,000 a month would need a monthly income of $3,818 to buy the equivalent in 1974 dollars.

—A $10,000 life insurance policy would, by 1984, provide just $3,191 in terms of 1974 dollars. A $25,000 policy would provide $7,978 of protection.

Bad enough? It can be worse, say league officials. Some consumer items rise faster than others. At present rates of increase it observes these prices 10 years from now:

—A $20 bag of groceries — $80.91.

—A $2.50 plate lunch — $8.79. (And don't forget the tip.)

—A 15-cent newspaper — 62 cents.

Beer drinkers will recognize how hideous the situation could become by calculating the 1984 price of a six-pack — around $3.30 — if present trends continue.

Former secretary at grand jury

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mrs. Rita Herron, former executive secretary of the Missouri Democratic party, testified Friday before a federal grand jury which is investigating the administration of former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. She was in the jury room about an hour.

Mrs. Herron, of Jefferson City, was executive secretary while Delton Houtchens was Democratic state chairman.

She said the grand jury asked her "general questions," and she acknowledged that she was asked questions about Houtchens because "he was my boss."

She said she was asked about contracts and donations, but she said they were not specific questions.

Mrs. Judith Crede of Jefferson City, a secretary with the J. Dawson Supply Co., was the next witness. Others were Mahlon Goff, Jefferon City, a former bookkeeper with the J. Dawson Supply Co.; Billy Wilson, general manager of the Great Central Lumber Co., Cedar City; and Mrs. Mary Ann Fletcher, employe of the Meyer Electric Co., Jefferson City. All declined to discuss their testimony.

Funeral services set for young drowning victim

Funeral services for a three-year-old Sedalia boy who drowned in Liberty Park lagoon shortly before noon Friday will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at the Ewing Funeral Home here.

The youth was identified late Friday afternoon as Kenneth Edward Carwile Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Carwile, 453 West Saline. The boy was pronounced dead at the park by Pettis County Coroner Dr. John Owens.

According to reports, Carwile was among a group of about 19 children from a Head Start class at the Anthony Buckner Apartments who were at the park on a field trip. The children were supervised by three adults and four other children ranging in age from 8 to 14, a Head Start spokesman said.

The Carwile boy apparently slipped off the northwest edge of the lagoon.

Mrs. Shirley Merk, a Head Start community aide, announced that Buckner Head Start classes will not be held on Monday and Tuesday. However, she said other head start projects will continue with regular classes.

Mrs. Merk also said a Tuesday night Head Start parents meeting has been cancelled in memory of the victim.

Kissinger heads home from 17-nation tour

By The Associated Press

Henry A. Kissinger headed home from a 17-nation tour Saturday with American officials hinting the secretary of state made more headway toward U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms limitation than peace in the Middle East.

By stressing Kissinger's achievements in the Kremlin, the officials clearly implied a lack of tangible results from his swing through Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Syria, Israel and Tunisia.

They said he nevertheless is confident his latest exercise in jetliner diplomacy has improved the diplomatic climate between the Arabs and Israel.

Kissinger spent the first four days of his 26,880-mile journey in Moscow. The officials said there now is at least an even chance that President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev will sign a treaty limiting nuclear missiles, launchers, warheads and bombers when they meet in Washington next summer.

Kissinger will report Sunday to the President at Camp David, Md. He will spend much of this week planning this month's trip by him and Ford to Japan, South Korea and Vladivostok, the Soviet Union's main eastern port.

Ford and Brezhnev will meet at Vladivostok on Nov. 23-24, when they are expected to settle on guidelines for negotiations in Geneva to produce a 10-year arms limitation treaty. The current pact expires in 1977.

Although there has been no official announcement, Kissinger may go from Vladivostok to China under the current policy of keeping Peking leaders informed on major U.S.-Soviet decisions. He last visited the Chinese capital a year ago.

After Kissinger left Moscow for the Indian subcontinent, Europe and back to the Middle East, the Soviets began a propaganda campaign in favor of renewed Middle East peace talks in Geneva and forcing a decision on the Palestinian issue. U.S. officials saw this as a new obstructionist tactic to upset Kissinger's strategy of postponing the Geneva talks and shelving the Palestinian issue in favor of an Israeli-Arab settlement in stages.

Despite the Soviet moves, the Arabs and Israelis reportedly gave Kissinger a go-ahead to continue with his strategy. There were no visible results, but American officials said none had been expected.

They seemed pleased in what Kissinger reportedly saw as a change in the Israelis' attitude toward the endorsement by Arab leaders of the Palestine Liberation Organization as the spokesman for Palestinians in the Jordanian West Bank.

Calm has overtaken the Israelis' first "panicky" reaction, the officials said, and a diplomatic impasse was averted.

Trucker, wife arrested for bombing towers

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — An unemployed truck driver and his wife were held without bail Saturday in connection with the bombing of 11 power transmission line towers and a threat to black out Portland unless a $1 million ransom was paid.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley, in a statement released by the Portland FBI office, said David Windsor Heesch, 34, was charged with mailing a threatening communication and Sheila Arlene Heesch was charged with aiding and abetting the alleged violation.

Julius Mattson, head of the Portland FBI office, told a news conference Saturday the Heeschs were located and arrested in an automobile in Portland Friday afternoon through use of a radio direction finder and assistance from the Federal Communications Commission.

Mattson said that, according to directions contained in one of six extortion letters mailed to the FBI, agents had been communicating with the extortionist on Citizen Band radio channel 9, normally used only for emergencies.

Mattson said agents were communicating by voice and the extortionist was using a type of Morse Code, beeped over the radio with a duck caller.

Mattson refused to disclose the contents of the communications, but said, "at no time did we represent that any money would be paid."

He also refused to disclose the findings of a Saturday morning search of the Heeschs' rural home.

Mattson said both Heeschs were in the car when FBI agents closed in on it. He said a Citizens Band radio in the car was tuned to channel 9, a duck caller was found on the seat of the car and a loaded .22-caliber Derringer pistol was found in Mrs. Heesch's purse.

Friends

And this takes an awful lot of patience," he said.

The Carpenters Union 864 Ladies Auxiliary and women from Bethel Methodist Church each provided lunch for the workers.

Youth groups also worked on the project. For example, children from the Methodist Church collected money instead of candy on Halloween to help pay for repairs to Rhine's car. They raised $120. Young adults from the church are sponsoring a bike-a-thon today.

About 15 students from Sacred Heart School Seventh Grade religion class canvassed downtown merchants and neighborhood residents. They collected more than $185 for the family.

Other church groups and organizations, as well as Rhine's former classmates from State Fair Community College, have donated time and money.

With help pouring in from friends, neighbors and strangers, Rhine expressed amazement at the number of people who have shown concern.

"It's really going a lot faster than I figured," he said. "These people are working on their days off and at odd times. Really, they're cutting into their own lives just to help me out."

Rhine is scheduled for X-rays and a check-up at the VA Hospital on Monday and Wednesday. He told The Democrat-Capital that since he was released last month the doctors seemed "very well pleased and they said I'm doing real good."

When the cancer was first discovered nearly a year ago, doctors told Rhine he would not be alive by November. However, Cobalt treatments apparently have checked the progress of the disease and Rhine is still hopeful for a future with his family.

Smithton teenager formally charged

A 17-year-old Smithton youth was arraigned in Pettis County Magistrate Court Friday on charges of tampering with a motor vehicle.

Michael Kearney and another youth, Carl Dalton, 17, Smithton, who was arraigned Oct. 21, were arrested by New Mexico state police Oct. 14 while allegedly in possession of a vehicle stolen from Sedalia. The 1966 pickup the two were in when stopped in New Mexico was taken from the L and M Construction Co., Sedalia, Oct. 13.

The two could have been charged with interstate transportation of a stolen vehicle, a felony. However, Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming said the federal prosecutor probably felt state charges against them would be as effective as federal charges.

Kearney remains in the Pettis County jail in lieu of $2,500. Dalton remains free on $2,500 bond.

Armed robbery charge faces teenage girl

A charge of first degree robbery by means of a dangerous and deadly weapon was filed Saturday against a 17-year-old Sedalia girl in connection with the robbery of the Taystee Baking Co., 731 West Main, Friday afternoon.

Linda Hays, 517 East Fourth, remained in Pettis County jail Saturday night in lieu of $10,000 bond. Her arraignment in Pettis County Magistrate Court is set for Tuesday morning.

Miss Hays was picked up by Sedalia police at Wilkerson and Missouri after she allegedly took $92 from the baking company.

A cashier at the bakery, Juanita Strader, 1634 South Carr, told police that a girl came into the business and said "give me the money." The woman had a paring knife, police reported. Mrs. Strader gave her the money and called another employe, Paul Schuber, who pursued the girl.

Police said that $92 and a knife were found on Miss Hays when she was arrested. She was transfered from the city jail to the county at about 10:24 a.m. Saturday.

Drugs taken from doctor's office

Between 800 to 900 phenobarbital tablets were reported stolen from the offices of Dr. K. L. Holdren, 1118 West Third, early Saturday morning, police reported.

Police officers discovered about 5 a.m. that the front door of the office apparently had been kicked open. The offices had been ransacked and the back door was unlocked, police added.

Dr. Holdren was called to the offices and said the tablets were missing. No value was set on the loss.

Arson suspected in hay field fire

Arson is suspected by Pettis County fire officials in a fire Friday night in a hay field about a mile and a half west of Sedalia on Route B, fire officials reported Saturday.

The fire was apparently started in the middle of one of 40 stacks of hay. Firemen were on the scene from about 11:16 p.m. Friday until 4:30 a.m. Saturday. Only four of the 40 hay stacks were destroyed.

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said Saturday that his department is investigating the blaze.

Four similiar fires were started by arsonists Oct. 31 in the county. "This fire could possibly have some connection with those other fires," Fairfax said.

Question

The home my husband and I own is mortgaged. Is it true this mortgage will be paid automatically if either of us passes away?

Answer

Mortgage redemption insurance is usually carried only upon the life of the husband although the wife may also be insured. Insurance for the purpose of paying off a mortgage is not automatically included in mortgage payments. Some lenders, however, may require coverage upon the life of the husband as a condition for making a loan. Insurance to pay off a mortgage indebtedness may be any type of life insurance. Decreasing term insurance is the most popular form of mortgage insurance and, like all life insurance, is paid to the surviving spouse, not to the mortgage holder. In this aspect, mortgage redemption insurance differs from credit life insurance which is paid directly to the lender.

Insurance carried for the purpose of paying a mortgage is not expensive and is one of the basic things a young family buying a home should investigate. Information can readily be obtained from your life insurance agent.

Famous singer is assaulted

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Singer Connie Francis was raped at knife point by a young man in a towel mask who burst into her Westbury motel room and fled with a $6,000 mink coat and jewelry, police said.

The entertainer told police that after she was raped early Friday her attacker bound her and covered her with a mattress to muffle her screams. She was treated for bruises at the Nassau County Medical Center.

Police questioned motel employes but no arrests had been made, police said early today. Miss Francis had said her attacker had tied a towel around the lower part of his face.

Miss Francis, 35, had been appearing at the Westbury Music Fair, a short distance from the Howard Johnson Hotel where she was assaulted. She canceled her Friday night performance.

A police spokesman said that there was no evidence of a break-in and authorities did not know how the assailant got into the room.

In the 1950s and 1960s, Miss Francis cut several records that sold more than a million copies. She also appeared in several movies and was a regular performer in Las Vegas night clubs.

She lives in Essex Fells, N.J., with her husband Joseph Garzilli, a tourism executive from the Bronx. He was in Las Vegas at the time of the attack.

Researchers indicate that the peak of human efficiency is attained between 8 p.m. and 9 p.m. and the low comes at 4 a.m.

Founding fathers return

By BYRON FARWELL

The Phoenix Nest
Edited by Martin Levin

Jack Anderson (of all people) has launched an appeal to the schoolchildren of the nation to come up with a slogan for our coming bicentennial. It could be argued that we do not need a new slogan; one of the old ones will still do. How about: "Repeal the hated tax on tea!"

Perhaps the lesson of the Boston Tea Party is that while violent demonstrations make good copy — the story is still in the history books — they rarely achieve the desired results. After more than two hundred years of agitation, under King and Constitution, we still have a tax on tea. And, as our forefathers feared, our politicians have learned that if you can tax tea you can tax everything else.

If the founding fathers of our country returned from the dead to view the current scene they would doubtless be pleased to find themselves still honored and the republic they founded still standing, bigger and brassier than ever, but they would no doubt be appalled to find that we have a non-elected president and vice president and a German-born secretary of state who has difficulty pronouncing the English language. They would, of course, disapprove of our large standing army, our horrendous taxes and our debased coinage.

Probably they would stand in awe of congressmen who could successfully vote themselves such splendid salaries and be amazed at a social security system which controls the working hours of the elderly and has replaced citizens' names with numbers. They would, naturally, be angered by the mockery we have made of the Electoral College and dumb-founded to learn that nine justices of the Supreme Court could find in the constitution they wrote rules to regulate school busses.

And what would they think of the District of Columbia, that land set aside as non-political, belonging to no state, the home of the federal government, now a hotbed of domestic political activity and worse than Boston or Philadelphia?

"The right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed," wrote our founding fathers, having in mind a "well-regulated militia." Well, we would have to tell them that we found that last phrase an oxymoron, but we still allow the people to keep and bear arms: all of our criminals have Saturday Night Specials or some more effective weapon. We can be proud to have preserved this much of the Bill of Rights I guess.

The other things invented by Bell

By RICHARD ARMOUR

When Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone he had no idea he was also inventing:

1. The wrong number.
2. The busy signal.
3. The long distance call, which led to the famous saying, "Long distance doesn't lend enchantment."
4. The collect call, which you have to accept or seem ungracious, even stingy.
5. The unlisted telephone number, which is the number of someone you are trying desperately to reach.
6. The pay phone, requiring change you do not happen to have with you.
7. The telephone book, containing more characters than any novel but no narrative.
8. The operator, who though not trained as a surgeon can cut a connection.
9. Wires on which birds can watch you while you are watching them.
10. The principle that your phone rings precisely one time fewer than necessary to enable you to get there.
11. Phone bills, which arrive in the same mail as bills for water, electricity, and gas. (The charge for unusually lengthy long-distance conversation should, perhaps, be included with gas.)

Interestingly, the bell in a telephone was not named after Alexander Graham Bell. But it helps you remember who invented the telephone and whom to blame if anything goes wrong.

Gleason to marry love of long ago

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — For comedian Jackie Gleason and Marilyn Taylor Horwich, it's "Awayyyyy we go."

"It's the revival of an old romance," Gleason, 57, said Friday while telling of his plans to wed the 49-year-old widow in December. "We were in love many, many years ago."

Gleason said he was introduced to Mrs. Horwich in 1948 by her sister, June Taylor, who later choreographed Gleason's television show.

Mrs. Horwich was widowed three years ago. Her husband, George Horwich, was a Chicago businessman.

Gleason divorced his first wife in 1968 and was remarried 10 days later. That marriage officially ended earlier this week.

T. W. Cloney

The 13th annual fund-raising drive for the Virginia Flower Child Development and Rehabilitation Center will be held Nov. 23, 24 and 28, according to center director Roger Garlich.

Honorary director of the drive this year is T. W. Cloney, Route 4, chairman of the center's board of directors.

Team captains, who will supervise more than 600 volunteer workers, will be Mrs. Irvin Parks, Mrs. Glen Cromley, Mrs. Jerry Shull, Mrs. David Curry, Mary Kay Hunter, Mrs. Oliver Lackman, Mrs. John Wagenknecht, Mrs. Harold Norton and Mrs. Carl Zimmerschied.

Cloney accepted the position of honorary chairman, he said, "because I have been actively connected with the Virginia Flower Center for 10 years and never cease to be amazed at the results that are obtained. Mr. Garlich and his staff are all well-qualified and dedicated so that each child receives the best of care and therapy."

The week-end effort Nov. 23 and 24 will center around the selling of bond certificates at $10 per share. The Thanksgiving Day activities Nov. 28 will involve a benefit breakfast and a special "bowling day" at Broadway Lanes, in which all proceeds from bowling go toward the center.

In the combined activities last November, Garlich reported, $14,528 was raised. An official goal has not been announced this year.

In selling the bonds this year, he noted, workers will be emphasizing that the center is now also involved in diagnosing all children for potential problems in addition to treating youngsters with learning disabilities, and physical, mental or emotional handicaps.

In addition to canvassing the entire community, workers will also be selling bonds Nov. 23 and 24 in Warsaw, LaMonte, Green Ridge and Smithton.

"We really can't emphasize the importance of the volunteer workers enough," Garlich said. "I also think it interesting that every team captain has had a child treated in the center."

In connection with the fund-raising weekend, a special open house and dedication ceremony will be held at the center, 600 East 14th, from 12:0 p.m. to 3 p.m. Nov. 24. At this time, Garlich said, the building will be formally dedicated in the memory of Virginia Flower, a former member of the board who died in 1967. Her bequest to the center contributed greatly to the construction of the new building which opened in November, 1973.

Demonstration

Asking revocation of charter

Jefferson City, Mo. (AP)— The State supreme Court has been asked to revoke the corporation charters of two southwest Missouri dairies for alleged violation of the state's Unfair Milk Sales Practices Act.

Writs seeking the charter revocations of Hiland Dairy, Inc., And Foremost Foods, both of Springfield, were filed Friday and alleged that both dairies "have abused or misused their franchises to operate in Missouri by violating the Unfair Milk Sales Parcitices Act," according to Assistant Atty. Gen. Mike Boicourt.

Although fines could be assessed in lieu of charter revocation, Boicourt said, "We will move strongly for a complete ouster."

Both firms are accused in the writ of having paid rebates, offered discounts, equipment and equipment repairs, cash gifts and free services in violation of the milk law.

In addition, Foremost Foods is alleged to have underpaid its licensing fees for the last several years with the underpaid amount totaling as much as $10,000 for only the last two years.

While the writ noted that both dairies are major components of the milk market in southwest Missouri, it also pointed out that a number of other companies are also operating in the area.

"These competitors have from time to time attempted to extend their sales territory further into the southwestern Missouri area, but have been unable to do so, in part because of the sales practices alleged," the writ stated.

Boicourt said the decision to seek charter revocation against the firms followed "very long and extensive negotiations" with the companies in an effort to reach a settlement. But he said the firms would not agree to terms and "much stronger action was needed."

Should the court grant the corporate charter revocation, Boicourt said it was doubtful that the firms would receive another charter in the future

The action comes several months after the conclusion of an intensive investigation by both the agriculture department and the attorney general's office into allegations of unfair sales practices in the southwest Missouri area.

A legislative committee has also been looking into the problems this summer and fall.

WITH GRATITUDE

Not knowing exactly how to show my appreciation I have asked Hazel Lang to do so in poetry:

The election is over and I have won
I'm so very grateful to everyone
Who has helped me in this campaign
I feel all the work was not in vain
Telephoning, the help with ad phrasing
And all those who worked in the money raising
Too many people for me to each note
I appreciate all who gave me their vote
I want you to know that I really mean
I care for the people in District 113
And when as your representative I'm put to test
You may rest assured I'm doing my best
And all of my promises have no doubt
That I'll be busy trying to carry them out.

Parents panic over brain tumor

Dear Ann Landers: My cousin who lives in a small town in Illinois called me tonight to tell me some terrible news. Their oldest child, an eight-year-old boy, was taken to the hospital for tests a few days ago. The verdict — brain tumor.

As can be expected, my cousin is in a state of panic. She and her husband don't know what to do or where to take him. They both believe the child is doomed to death. (A neighbor of theirs died of a brain tumor two years ago and they watched her linger for several months — first blindness, then horrible suffering.)

They say their family doctor is wonderful, but he has no extensive knowledge in this field and they believe they need a specialist. Can you suggest someone — or something? Please, Ann — Urgent And Waiting

Dear Friends: I do not recommend physicians by name. However, I do recommend the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota.

I also suggest that your cousin contact the Association For Brain Tumor Research for guidance. This is a non-profit organization located at 6232 North Pulaski Road, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

Brain tumor need not mean death. Thousands of people who have had brain tumors are alive and well today — thanks to early diagnosis and skilled surgery.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm staring at this paper trying to think of a way to say this and not sound like a big fool. I guess I'll just have to come right out and ask the question. How does a girl forget a guy who is really rotten?

I am 16, and he was a little older. I flipped over him and made the big mistake of letting him know it. From then on, it was like I was his slave and he was my master. I know I'm better off without him but I'm — Hurt

Dear Hurt: If ever there was a "Do-It-Yourself Project," this is it. If you can still remember the guy's name by the time you read this in the paper, cut out the column and underline the part that says, "Forget a guy who is really rotten." Paste it on your bathroom mirror. That should do it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 35. My husband is 40. We are both very busy with careers. I'm beginning to feel a little selfish because our eight-year-old child won't have a brother or sister unless we get busy.

My husband doesn't care one way or the other. I frankly don't like the idea of going back to diapers and bottles. But I feel guilty. Should we ask our daughter if she'd like a brother or sister and settle it once and for all? — ?????

Dear ?????: Adults who would allow an eight-year-old to make such a decision sound downright foolish to me. I think you have more than you can handle right now.

Dear Ann Landers: I was annoyed greatly by that woman who advised against marrying the best-looking guy in high school, the smoothest dancer, and the captain of the football team. "Such types," she said, "make lousy husbands. They are spoiled rotten."

It so happens that my husband was all three. He's a terrific father and we are very happy. Of course he is constantly fighting off women (both married and single) but so far as I know he's 100 per cent faithful and he's mine — all mine. Sign me — Mrs. Contentment

Dear Mrs. C.: Congratulations. May it be ever thus.

Recession opinion is gaining support

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
AP Business News Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Signs of economic slowdown this past week seemed to support Treasury Secretary William E. Simon's pronouncement that the United States is indeed in a recession.

Simon told economists in Chicago that "in my judgment, the current economic malaise will eventually be recorded as a recession." His remark made him the first administration official to call the economic situation a recession.

From Detroit came word that sales of autos in the United States last month totaled only 756,100, down 23 per cent from October 1973 and the worst October figure since 1965.

Sales of domestic cars fell even further, 27 per cent, from 857,070 in October 1973 to 627,521 last month. Sales of imports, some of which enjoyed a price break because 1975 models weren't yet on the market, rose 8.1 per cent from 119,000 to 128,000.

Chrysler Corp. said it was eliminating the second shift at four plants and closing down one of the four, at Hamtrack, Mich., for two weeks.

Chrysler's action will trim its fourth quarter production rate to its lowest level since 1961 and cut payrolls by 7,100 workers, with an additional 8,800 people off work during the plant closing.

General Electric Co., announced layoffs in Louisville, Ky., affecting more than 11,000 appliance workers, blaming the move on a slump in the housing industry.

Layoffs at GE's Appliance Park complex in Louisville this fall have already cut the work force there by some 3,000 workers. An additional 8,000 are to be laid off for a week Nov. 18 and 3,200 more are to get an unpaid three-day "vacation" before the Thanksgiving holiday.

Polaroid Corp. said it will have laid off about 1,000 employes by mid-November, adding that it had already eliminated some 500 part-time jobs and scratched orders to fill several hundred other jobs.

The company said it had already saved about $30 million this year by spending less than planned and the layoffs would save it more than $10 million.

THANK YOU

I wish to thank the voters in the Western District for their vote and support in my election as Judge of the County Court.

Calf killings bring protests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials are answering hundreds of letters written in protest of recent calf killings by angry farmers who staged the slaughters to call public attention to their economic plight.

Many of the letters were sent to President Ford and turned over to the Agriculture Department for replies. A spokesman said he had no estimate on the total but indicated the department's public information staff alone had received 200 or more.

Hal R. Taylor, deputy director of the Office of Communication in USDA, said the letters initially expressed horror at the calf killings for anti-cruelty reasons. Now, he said, most seem to condemn the killings as a waste of food at a time of famine in the world.

Typical replies by USDA carefully call attention to the financial losses dairy and beef producers are suffering because of relatively low animal prices in relation to feed and other costs. The replies also attempt to calm complaints that the killings were inhumane.

"It was unfortunate that the killings were made into a public spectacle, even though most of the animals eventually would have been killed for meat," one USDA reply said. "Most of the animals died as quickly and mercifully as they would have had they gone to a commercial slaughter house, however," the letter said.

The USDA replies also observed occasionally that some writers felt farmers had no alternative except to kill their calves.

"One writer compared the incident to the dilemma of a dog lover who had a large and unplanned litter of pups that he couldn't afford to feed, couldn't sell or give away, and who preferred to turn them over to the animal pounds for a merciful death rather than turn them out to roam cold, hungry, uncared for, and eventually a lonely death by a roadside," the department said.

The USDA replies also point out that some calves were slaughtered in a packing house and their meat donated to hurricane victims in Honduras.

Despite the department's assurances, the Humane Society of the United States says the public slaughters in which calves were shot or had their throats cut were inhumane.

The society had failed to get support for stopping the killings under state anticruelty laws. But this week the organization asked the Justice Department to take action against the killings under federal antitrust laws.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A further decline in 1974 feed grain and soybean prospects has depressed the government's "all-crops" production index to its lowest level in four year.

The Agriculture Department said Friday the 1974 crop index as of Nov. 1 stood at 110 per cent of its 1967 base used for comparison.

Last year, as the result of huge grain crops and other production, the index was a record 120 per cent of the base year. The latest reading shows the 1974 index is the lowest since it was 101 per cent in 1970.

USDA said the corn crop is estimated at 4.62 billion bushels, down 2 per cent — 96 million bushels — from the October forecast and 18 per cent below the 1973 record harvest of 5.64 billion bushels.

Sincere Thanks

for the many votes I received in Tuesday's election. I pledge to continue to serve in a courteous and efficient manner.

Corporate farm giant based on continuing rise in food prices

CRESWELL, N.C. (AP) — There's no dirt under the fingernails of the man who owns the largest farm in North Carolina.

He is Malcolm P. McLean, a New York investor who is wagering more than $60 million that the mucky black earth of North Carolina's coastal plain can be turned into a profitable farm.

McLean's investment, his farm's managers are quick to say, is a bet that the price of food will continue to rise. Rising prices have suddenly made the huge investments needed to open new land seem feasible.

Large farms appear to be dominating American agriculture today. U.S. government figures show that 109,000 "super farms" — with sales of at least $100,000 annually — produced 50 per cent of the nation's food and fiber in 1973. But they were only a small percentage of the 2.8 million farms in the country.

The 375,000 acres of woodland and fields which McLean began purchasing in 1972 is half the size of Rhode Island. It's named First Colony Farm, after the unsuccessful English colony established nearby in the 16th century by Sir Walter Raleigh.

Since Sir Walter's time, few men have found it profitable to till the coastal plain. Most North Carolinians went inland to the Piedmont to grow tobacco and cotton. Timber companies became major landowners in the four counties over which First Colony farm stretches.

But that was before the price of soybeans went to $8 per bushel; before experts began studying the growth of world population in relation to arable land, and the possibility of a world food shortage.

McLean, 60, has a history of capitalizing on opportunity. He was born poor, the eldest son of a mail carrier in Maxton, N.C., about 150 miles from First Colony.

During the depression, he scraped together money to buy a single truck. He won a contract to transport cigarettes for the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., and McLean Trucking Co. was born. Then he diversified and became a pioneer in containerized freight shipping.

"He loves to look at new things. He wouldn't last a month without some sort of business. Money is just a tool to him, rather than something to sit on," said farm engineer Robert Campbell, who has known McLean for 20 years.

Today McLean lives in a hotel suite on Manhattan's Fifth Avenue. He sold his company for a reported $150 million in 1969 to the R. J. Reynolds Co., and he has a seat on the Board of Directors. He also owns part of Diamondhead Corp., which owns the Pinehurst, N.C., golf resort.

McLean refuses newspaper interviews. On the telephone, he would only say, "Farming is the oldest industry in the world. It usually stables out as a reasonable sort of business."

"It's a question of supply and demand," added Cy Rich Jr., First Colony's agricultural economist and, with Campbell, co-manager. "People are starving. It's just like the energy crisis except that people are going to find it difficult to wait in line for food."

First Colony will bear the same relation to a farm that a computer does to an abacus. It will really be a carefully engineered protein factory.

Computers will keep track of farm resources and the variables that could affect production and prices.

Grains will be sown, nurtured and harvested by machines, including airplanes.

They will be fed to the cattle and the hogs. Eventually, First Colony will have a capacity of 50,000 hogs scattered about the farm in stations.

Those animals will never touch the ground. They will be bred, suckled and fed to maturity in specially designed pens before being sent to market. Their wastes will be collected in pools below the pens and returned to the earth, starting the cycle all over again.

Not that the land lacks nutrients. First Colony Farm sits on soil so organic that it burns when dry.

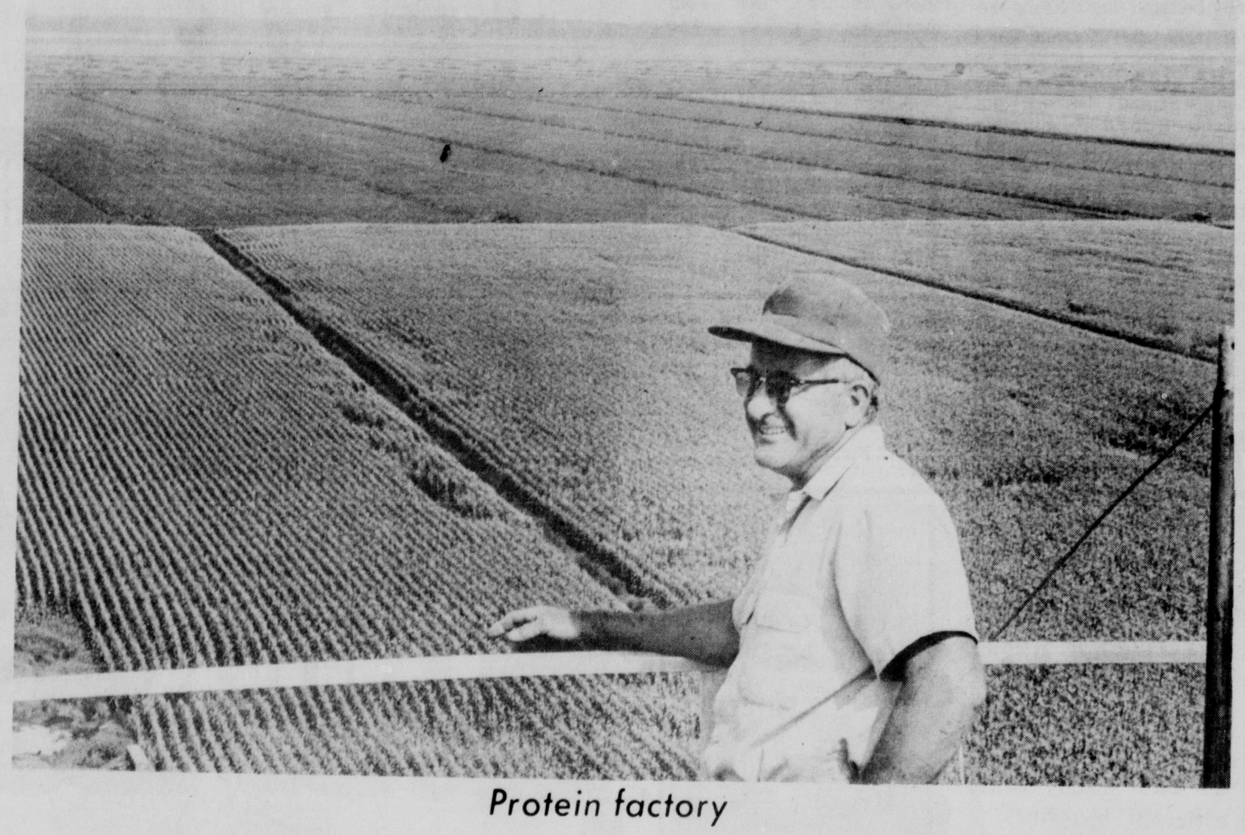
Brascoe White, who supervises the grain elevator and doubles as farm tour guide, explained how it got that way. "For years and years, the trees have been falling and rotting and building up. A fire comes over, then it builds up some more." He picked up a handful of soil. "Feel this. It's still got chunks of wood all through it."

Not everyone in North Carolina is happy about the superfarm. Environmentalists have questioned its existence so close to the fragile coastal marshlands.

State officials say they will monitor the farm for evidence of chemicals being leaked into the water or other environmental damage. Campbell says they will not find any. "What makes sense for the environment makes sense for us."

"I don't know what the price of soybeans will be in 1980," said Rich. "But I know that we no longer have any food reserves in this country. It's time to start putting marginal land like this into production.

"The era of the family farm is gone and people might as well forget it. It takes risk capital to farm nowadays, and capital investment requires a profit. That's the American way. The housewife will be paying more for food, but Americans spend less on food now than any other nation. The American consumer is spoiled rotten, but it's going to change."



Protein factory

Neatly cultivated rows extend outward over some of the 375,000 acres of First Colony Farm, an agribusiness venture which covers most of four rural counties around Creswell, N.C. Brasco White, who runs the farm's grain storage operation, points out symmetrical corn fields from atop a grain elevator. (AP)

Possible disease carrier

Here, the Mississippi River seems to lazily weave its way past New Orleans. However, new studies indicate that the river may carry substances which may cause cancer in humans. New Orleans and other communities along 250 miles of the river get their drinking water from it.

New conduct code for state judges is set

Jefferson City, Mo. (AP)—A new code of conduct for Missouri's judges will prevent them from holding leadership positions in political organizations, speaking in behalf of political candidates, soliciting campaign funds or endorsing candidates.

The code, which takes effect next July 1, was adopted by the state Supreme court, Chief Justice Robert Donnelly said.

The code also says judges must resign if they became candidates in primary or general elections for non-judicial offices.

The code also forbids broadcasting, televising, recording or photographing courtroom activities except for instructional purposes.

All judges must report any compensation they receive from non-judicial activities and will be limited in the situations in which they can serve as administrators or trustees of estates.

The code requires that judges immediately disqualify themselves from cases in which they have any financial interest.

I want to thank the voters for the Majority Vote I received in Tuesday's Election.

Praises water treatment plant in city

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis water treatment procedures have virtually eliminated any danger of cancer-producing substances in the Mississippi River, said St. Louis Water Commissioner Conway Briscoe Friday.

A private study says drinking Mississippi River water may result in a greater incident of cancer because of chemically treated agricultural and industrial wastes in the water.

The report, released Thursday by the Environmental Defense Fund, said a higher cancer rate was found among New Orleans residents whose houses were supplied with treated water than among those who received water from wells.

The study also called the New Orleans treatment plant outdated and said it failed to remove the dangerous substances.

But Briscoe said St. Louis' two treatment plants were very efficent.

"We take so much out here that there is practically nothing left," he said.

Furthermore, most St. Louis residents receive their drinking water from the Missouri River, he said.

One of the city's water pumping stations is on the Missouri, the other on the Mississippi four miles below the confluence of the two rivers.

"We are pumping out of the Mississippi technically, but it is really Missouri River water we are getting," Briscoe said. "And Missouri River water is much easier to treat because the silt absorbs a large percentage of the particles."

Politics comes early

GRANBY, Mo. (AP) — He's only 19 years old and a college student, but Wayne Johnson has been elected an associate judge of the Newton County Court.

Johnson, youngest of six sons of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson, lives on a farm with his parents near Granby and is a sophomore at Missouri Southern in Joplin, majoring in political science.

A Democrat, young Johnson carried every precinct in his district, defeating his Republican opponent by 553 votes. Encouraged by his parents, he won the Democratic nomination in a three-way race in August.

He was too busy with his studies and farm work to have a victory celebration after Tuesday's general election.

Asked if he would recommend politics to other young people, he replied:

"Definitely. If nothing else, it will help them in the future. I'm really glad I got into it."

He will be working with Virgil Wilkens, Democrat, associate judge, and John Shonkwiler, Republican, presiding judge, in administering civil affairs of the county. And he thinks maybe he'll have to take some night classes next semester to get it all done.

Road conditions formed the "only big issue" in the campaign, the young judge said.

"I've had three calls about roads already," he said Friday.

May oppose Symington

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Missouri Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth set the stage for a possible rematch with Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., Friday by announcing that he would probably either run again for the U.S. Senate in 1976 or retire from politics.

Danforth was barely defeated by Symington when he opposed the veteran Democrat in 1970.

"I have felt for a couple of years that the real choice in 1976 for me is whether I run for the Senate or get out of elective politics," Danforth, a Republican, told a meeting of the Associated Inductries of Missouri.

Earlier Friday, Symington announced in Washington that he would seek a fifth term in 1976.

"I had guessed as much–that Symington would be runnign for re-election," Danforth said. "He is obviously formidable, he beat me once before, and I think he is a very formidable person."

"If I run for the Senate, I would not make the decision based on who the opposition or possible opposition would be," he said.

The only other person to make overtures for Symington's office is Democrat Joseph Teasdale, who lost his bid for the Missouri gubernatorial nomination in 1972. Teasdale filed for the Senate race Wednesday.

Playground equipment unsafe

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — That swing set you put up in your back yard may be more dangerous than you think.

Each year some 450,000 children are treated in emergency rooms in the United States for injuries received on home playground equipment. Add public playground equipment, and the figure climbs to some 800,000 youngsters.

Who's to blame?

"About 50 per cent of the accidents in home playground equipment are directly attributable to the manufacturer," says B.M. Mahajan, an official with the National Bureau of Standards.

"Much of the home playground equipment is poorly designed structurally, with pinch points, protrusions, exposed bolts, sharp points, edges and corners, S-hooks and hard swing seats.

"Design and construction defects, when combined with misuse and abuse of these products during unsupervised play, lead to traumatic mishaps."

Mahajan has been commissioned by the federal government to study playground equipment, turning the results over to the Consumer Product Safety Division. He recently delivered a paper on the study at a medical conference here.

Although most injuries from home playground equipment fall into the cuts and bruises division, more serious accidents do occur. Children have fingers amputated in movable joints pinch points that often are located at the junction of the top cross bar and the vertical bars that connect to swing seats or gliders.

Mahajan offers this advice to parents who are either considering buying home playground equipment or already have it in their back yard:

— File off any sharp points.

— Check periodically for loose nuts and bolts. Articles of clothing, especially shoe strings, can catch on such objects.

— Follow the manufacturer's suggestion to anchor the equipment.

— Look for pinch points at joint or holes that a child could get his fingers or toes stuck in.

— Select equipment with moving parts, like swing seats, made of a light, yet sturdy, material.

Army brass worried over tank shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army officials are disturbed about Pentagon intentions to send about 600 tanks to Israel and other countries while the U.S. tank supply is short.

Complicating the problem is the Army's difficulty in breaking a production bottleneck preventing a sizeable increase in tank output.

Pentagon sources say Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger ultimately may have to decide whether to stretch out deliveries of tanks to Israel, Ethiopia and a North African Arab country that officials refuse to identify.

The 600 tanks covered under current aid agreements would be delivered over the next year, sources say. About half would go to Israel. Aditional tanks would be supplied later, but the numbers and schedules are much less firm.

Plans call for shipping first-line M60 tanks as well as older M48s, some of them modernized with deisel engines and improved guns.

The Army has been struggling to replenish its stock of tanks and other equipment and weapons since it pulled supplies, including some 450 tanks, from its regular and reserve forces to meet Israel's emergency needs during and after the Mideast war a year ago.

Defense officials say no regular Army divisions lack adequate numbers of tanks, but they acknowledge that some National Guard units are hurting and war reserve stocks are below strength.

Currently, the Army is about 1,800 tanks short of its requirement of 10,000.

Less marriage, more divorce

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are getting married less and divorced more than in the past, according to a Census Bureau report.

The bureau said Thursday that in the last four years the nation's divorce rate increased as much as it had in the entire previous 10 years.

And at the same time the bureau said more young people are deciding not to get married at all.

According to the bureau survey made in March, there were 63 divorced persons in 1974 for every 1,000 married persons living with their spouses. This compared with 47 in 1970 and 35 in 1960.

In the 12-month period ending in March there were 925,000 divorces, an increase of some 200,000 over the estimated 703,000 divorces in all of 1973.

The Census Bureau made no attempt to explain the increase in the divorce rate.

While there has been a decline in the number of single persons over 35, the report noted there has been an increase in the proportion of single young persons, particularly women, establishing their own households.

For example, in the 20 to 24 age bracket, there has been an increase since 1960 from 28 to 39 per cent in the number of women who have remained single, while the percentage of men remaining single has grown from 53 to 57 per cent.

On the other hand, in the over-35 age group, the number of males who have never married has declined since 1960 from 7.8 per cent to 6.3 per cent, and the number of females from 7.2 to 5.2 per cent.

"Whether the tendency among the younger group to refrain from marrying represents merely a postponement of first marriage or a development of a trend towards lifelong singleness is not known," the report said.

TV commercials to be trimmed

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Teleivsion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Association of Broadcasters now lets stations subscribing to its code of standards air up to 12 minutes of "nonprogram" material—commercials, promotional blurbs and so forth—during each hour of their Saturday morning children's shows.

Faced with continued prodding by parents' groups and possible Federal Communications Commission action, the NAB in July cut that time to 10 minutes, starting in January, and to 9½ minutes by 1976.

It seems like a goodly slice. But in recent years, the four Post-Newsweek TV stations and the five owned by Group W have had even fewer minutes per hour open to prospective kiddie show sponsors.

Group W allows six minutes per hour, the Post-Newsweek stations eight minutes. Both companies say the restrictions apply on all days of the week, not just Saturday mornings.

There's a major catch: The restrictions only apply to programs produced by the stations or their parent companies or purchased by the companies for broadcast on the stations, the companies say.

All nine stations are network affiliates.

Company officials say they can't do anything about the number of commercials in network-provided shows—the networks all adhere to NAB guidelines—because the ads are part of the network program packages.

Still, the companies' commercial time limits for nonnetwork children's shows are considerably below the maximum the NAB code will allow in 1976. Why were the tighter restrictions adopted?

It's simple, says Ray Hubbard, vice president for programming at Post-Newsweek's stations in Miami and Jacksonville, Fla., Washington, D.C., and Hartford, Conn.

"Saturday morning is prime viewing time for children," he said. "We saw no reason why children should look at more commercials in their prime time than adults do in their prime time."

Hubbard, who said the limit was adopted in 1970, referred to the fact the NAB only allows 9½ minutes of "nonprogram" material per hour in prime evening time, when the TV audience is primarily adult.

Winthrop Baker, president of Group W's stations in Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and San Francisco, was somewhat more blunt about why his company adopted its six-minute-per-hour rule.

He said while he wasn't involved in the decision, "the people here felt the children's programs were excessively commercial and that we'd do something about it in those areas where we had direct control."

Committee critical of allocation system

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Allocations rather than true auctions of burley tobacco, along with other factors, are cutting growers' profits and threatening the nation's supply, a study committee says.

A four-man committee reported Thursday at the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation board of directors meeting that allocation has replaced the traditional burley auction.

"In the auction system as it now operates, one buyer bids and all others bid the same price," the report said. "If one goes up, all go up and all buyers are allocated tobacco in amounts determined by their previous purchases."

"Under this arrangement a true competitive auction does not exist, and we do not feel that farmers receive a fair and reasonable return," the report said.

It said growers' profits are being choked off by the allocation system, and by other factors such as pricing procedures for reserve stocks, unacceptably low government support prices and restrictive to bacco leasing laws.

"Factors which have held down tobacco prices now threaten the adequacy of burley supplies," the report added.

The study group said it reached its conclusions after meeting "with growers, warehousemen, auctioneers, leaf dealers, Burley Cooperative Association executives and most major manufacturers of tobacco products."

The report said collusion, or prior agreement among tobacco manufacturers to hold down market prices, has not occurred, though the allocation system causes many farmers to suspect some sort of conspiracy.

It said burley manufacturers pay about as much for raw tobacco on a per-cigarette basis as they paid 20 years ago.

In 1954, the farm value of the leaf required for 1,000 cigarettes was $1.46, the report said. In 1974 the figure was $1.51.

The report indicated that tobacco companies will have to pay more for burley or a growing number of farmers will give it up in favor of more easily grown, more mechanized crops.

The committee said the gap between this year's estimated crop of 564 million pounds and the anticipated use for the same period of 670 million pounds is evidence of the need for increased production.

THANK YOU VOTERS

I appreciate your votes and support in the recent election and pledge to conduct the duties of my office to the best of my ability.

Lottery winnings 'not much'

ST. LOUIS (AP)—What does an extra $50,000 do to the lifestyle of a city janitor?

Not much, according to Paul Buffa.

Buffa, an employe of the St. Louis Department of Public Utilities, won the $50,000 bonanza Thursday in a drawing at Norwood Park, Ill., but he said it didn't make much difference to him.

"I told everybody I was going to win it," he said. "But the money doesn't excite me. Money just isn't that important to me."

The 61-year-old Buffa said he would give part of the winnings to his children and use some to move from the three-room downtown apartment he's lived in all his life. And some will go to his church.

"I told God that if I won, I'd buy the church a gold chalice," he said.

The janitor said he'd always had fair luck as an occasional gambler, but only on a small scale.

"My only other wins were at bookie joints, and I win on the horses a little," he said.

Nevertheless, Buffa plans to keep on playing the lottery.

"I was confident I was going to win and I'm going to play until I win the bonanza. The $50,000 doesn't mean much to me. I've got some money of my own. But I'll keep playing."

Divorced man 'hires' new wife

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two years ago, Edmund L. Van Deusen, a grandfather, found himself divorced and lonely, but unwilling to marry again. So he hired a "wife."

Elaine Peterson, 35, answered Van Deusen's newspaper ad asking for a woman to live with him as an informal wife for $500 a month.

The 50-year-old chemist and Ms. Peterson, who said she had been living outdoors the past six years and welcomed the chance to spend the coming winter in out of the rain, are still together. And Van Deusen says he and his "hired" wife "feel very good about each other."

Ms. Peterson agreed enthusiastically, "It's really sexy."

Van Deusen said in an interview this week that after his 26-year marriage he decided to go solo "unsuppressed by togetherness and by love possessed" or by anyone possessed.

He said he found brief love affairs with intermittent periods of loneliness too much to bear, and he struck on the idea of hiring a "wife" he could shed without government interference. He put an ad in a Los Angeles underground paper.

"Scores of women, all sorts of women, replied," he said. His choice was Elaine.

During the interview he presented a bespectacled, professorial appearance, while she sat smiling in blue jeans beneath an unruly mop of curls.

"Sex without love is different," Van Deusen said. "It's very free and natural. Older men, especially, are under real performance pressure."

Before setting out on their unconventional conjugal life, Van Deusen and Ms. Peterson signed documents spelling out the duties of both parties: for Van Deusen, the compensation and all other requirements of an employer; for Ms. Peterson — who prefers the Ms. designation — the requirements of the bedroom and the kitchen, in that order.

The document also outlines Ms. Peterson's "duty hours," "days off," and "vacation" time.

Report eight drug incidents

Eight Smith-Cotton High School students have been suspended since September for varying lengths of time on drug-related incidents, principal Kem Keithly revealed recently.

One of the cases, he said, involved an alcoholic beverage, with the remaining seven incidents involving marijauan, amphetamine and quaalude derivatives. Quaalude, a strong sleeping sedative, is commonly known as a "downer" because it depresses bodily reactions and responses.

In six cases, students were caught with drugs. The two other incidents involved students who admitted having used them. In each case, Keithly explained, the parents of the student were immediately contacted and the incident reported to law enforcement authorities, usually the juvenile officer.

Following a conference between himself, the youth and the youth's parents, the offenders were placed on a strictly enforced sign-in and sign-out attendance program for the remainder of the semester. They are also forbidden to leave the grounds while school is in session.

The key difference this year, Keithly explained in an interview, is not that drug usage is more prevalent but, rather that it is less hidden. He places the brunt of the blame for this on last summer's Ozark Music Festival, where illegal drug sales flourished.

"Too much of this attitude has carried over this fall," he said. "Students haven't been falling down two flights of stairs, as has been rumored, but it's just that they generally seem more open about it."

At the junior high school, no student has been apprehended for possession, distribution or use of drugs since the start of the school year. But, principal Larry Smithson said, "I'm really not so naive as to think that nothing like that has ever gone on before. It happens at the junior high school and it happens at the high school. But apprehension is more difficult than it appears to many people. However, I don't believe the potential for serious trouble in this area is as great here as at the high school because we've got certain advantages."

Among these, Smithson explained, are the school's more remote location on South Ingram, its closed lunch periods and its mandatory attendance rule, which avoids the problem of drop-outs hanging around the school, which plagues Smith-Cotton.

To combat this situation of unwanted visitors, Keithly recently authorized a move he said was "dictated by circumstances." At his request, a Sedalia policeman patrols the campus daily by car immediately before and after school hours and during the lunch period.

Among the circumstances leading to the decision was a recent incident in which a 20-year-old non-student caused a serious disturbance at the school.

With the exception of that episode, Keithly said, all persons requested to leave the campus have done so voluntarily. But, he quickly added, "we have absolutely no reservations about seeing that the city anti-loitering law is enforced. We haven't had to yet, but we won't hesitate to if the time comes."

The heaviest horse ever recorded was "Brooklyn Supreme," a pure-bred Belgian stallion weighing 3,200 pounds and standing 19½ hands (6 feet 6 inches).

Special session now uncertain

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The possibility that the Missouri Legislature will be recalled into special session later this month is now up in the air, according to a spokesman for Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

Bond, who indicated last month that he would officially issue the special session call after Tuesday's general election, is now apparently undecided about the value of a session in light of the large turnover in both houses as a result of the balloting this year, the spokesman said Friday.

Beginning in January, seven new members will enter the 34-member State Senate while 33 new faces will appear among the 163 members of the House.

Sen. Jack Gant, D-Independence, polled senators at Bond's request Friday and reported that most of the seven lame duck senators would not attend a special session.

The governor said earlier in the day he was concerned about reports that lame duck legislators would not return to the Capitol and he said his office was making checks to find out if enough legislators would work during a special session to make it feasible.

While claiming he did not expect absenteeism to be a problem, Bond now apparently feels there is a possibility that it will be.

The session, which the governor said he would officially announce sometime next week, would primarily be focused on revising the state's 8 per cent usury law, but would probably also include emergency appropriations for some welfare programs.

The question of whether the welfare programs would be added to the call was answered late Friday morning when Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth issued an opinion stating that an alternative proposal to an emergency appropriation would not be legal.

Bond had asked Danforth to decide whether funds in one budget line item could be transferred to another, enabling the State Department of Social Services to make such transfers so that payments in several welfare programs could be made through the end of the year.

Danforth said, however, that the money in question had been earmarked by the legislature for specific purposes and "the law is clear that moneys appropriated for one expense cannot be expended for any other purpose."

Based on previous decisions, he also said the legislative fiscal affairs committee could not authorize such line-item transfers.

Although Bond is now apparently worried about the refusal of some legislators to attend a special session, he pointed out Friday that the problems resulting from the state's 8 per cent interest ceiling, the lowest in the nation, have worsened since the spring.

He said work during the summer both with legislators and others has resulted in "a good bill," and he noted that "even though some legislators may not be back, I feel they are concerned enough about the problems to take the necessary action to correct them."

The cry for a special legislative session began shortly after the regular session ended last April when a bill to raise the interest limit failed to pass, and it was voiced by a number of legislators. But most had wanted the special session to run in September.

The governor also is faced with the possible need to have funds appropriated to implement revised campaign financing laws, which were overwhelmingly approved by voters Tuesday and will go in.

Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick has said it will take about $200,000 to carry out provisions of the new law through next June, and Bond said he is studying the necessity of financing the operation immediately.

Should that appropriation matter be included in any special session call, some legislators have indicated the law would also be open to amendments, several of which are expected to be offered because of the stringent requirements of the statute.

State parking controversy aired again

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The legislative and executive branches of Missouri government are back at war again over parking.

Senators attending an accounts committee Friday were upset about losing more parking spaces around the capitol grounds and talked of holding legislative sessions in St. Louis or Kansas City.

After those tongue-in-cheek comments, the Senate accounts committee ordered the committee on legislative research to draft legislation changing the makeup of the board of public buildings, which controls use of state land. The bill would be voted on in January. The accounts committee, headed by Sen. Albert Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, wants the legislature and the Supreme Court to be represented on the public Buildings board, which is made up of Gov. Christopher S. Bond, Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps and Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth.

What drew the ire of senators was action Wednesday by the board, combined with construction of a circular driveway around the south side of the capitol. The construction has eliminated parking places formerly used by legislators.

The new driveway is aimed at speeding traffic flow around the capitol and is being constructed in conjunction with renovation of the west end of the building.

Wednesday, Bond, Phelps and Danforth voted to turn a circular parking garage over to the legislature but to forbid parking by legislators on the capitol grounds except on a first come, first serve basis.

Parking for other state employes would no longer be reserved. Legislation gives the board the authority to control parking on state grounds.

However, a 1961 law authorizing construction of a circular garage near the Capitol gave the legislature authority to control the 287-space garage, and last year the legislature took over 100 spaces.

But some legislators and staff members continued to park on the capitol grounds, as they had done for years.

The controversy began in 1973 when parking was reduced in the Capitol basement because of a fire hazard. It heated up when legislators who formerly parked in the basement got wet in a heavy rain. After they were told they could no longer park in the basement, which is being converted to new offices, lawmakers assumed control of the circular garage.

"They plowed up our parking without any appropriation," Spradling said. The money for a new circular drive was appropriated last April.

"This is demeaning," said Sen. Paul Bradshaw, R-Springfield. "Let's settle this once and for all."

One of the senators suggested taking control of the Capitol away from the Board of Public Buildings. Spradling suggested the legislature convene in St. Louis. Sen. Jack Gant, D-Independence, suggested convening in Kansas City. Bradshaw suggested Springfield should be considered.

The Accounts Committee decided to "make do" during the special session expected to be called to begin Nov. 18. But plans are to suspend the rules Jan. 8 when the regular session begins, and pass a law, to become effective immediately, to change the makeup of the Board of Public Buildings and to find new parking spaces in Jefferson City.

There are 197 legislators and another 250 legislative employes. About 2,500 state employes work in and around the Capitol. Parking is available in a state owned lot three blocks west of the capitol but is seldom used.

In other action, the Accounts Committed voted to hire Whitey Owens, a former photographer with the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development. Owens will be a senate photographer and doorkeeper, receiving $500 a month and expenses for photography supplies.

The committee also hired lawyer Cullen Coil to file a suit for declaratory judgment in circuit court to decide whether Office of Administration approval is necessary before legislators or judges can spend state money on travel.

A recent memo by Commissioner of Administration Robert James said approval is needed by James' office, said Sen. Richard Webster, R-Carthage.

The new faces in politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1974 election thrust instant national prominence upon men and women as diverse as the Democrat who managed his party's last presidential disaster to a young Rhodes scholar who trod the highways with a broom.

A few already are being mentioned as prospects in the White House campaigning less than two years away. Others may feel a later call, whether real or imagined, to higher office.

Among those likely to be watched most closely:

CALIFORNIA

Edmund G. Brown Jr., at 36, will be California's youngest goveror in 119 years. A bachelor and lawyer, he's been secretary of State the last four years. Brown called for "a new spirit in Sacramento" after the reign of conservative Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan. A favorite from the start, he gave some of his campaign money to other Democrats with lesser chances. His father, Edmund "Pat" Brown is a former California governor.

NEW YORK

A 55-year-old congressman, Hugh L. Carey impressed Democrats nationally by breaking the GOP's 16-year hold on the governor's mansion after winning a tough primary race. A self-assured Brooklynite who lived quite comfortably with the borough's Democratic machine, Carey is a moderate liberal whom many party professionals consider their strongest candidate in years.

MASSACHUSETTS

Michael S. Dukakis, a liberal "New Politics" Democrat, served eight years as a Massachusetts state representative and was a pioneer of no-fault auto insurance laws. He failed in a bid for the lieutenant governor's office in 1970. But now he has ousted incumbent Republican Gov. Francis W. Sargent For the state mansion.

OKLAHOMA

David L. Boren, 33, first turned out Gov. David Hall in the Democractic primary, then rode his reform campaign to a resounding victory last Tuesday. A Yale University graduate and a Rhodes scholar, Boren captured the public's imagination by hiking through the state with his "clean sweep" broom. He's a former state legislator and one of the youngest holders of major office in the nation.

KANSAS

CONNECTICUT

Democrat Ella T. Grasso, 55, scored the biggest victory among women in 1974 as she became the first to be elected governor on her own — though others have done it as stand-ins or successors for their husbands. She's never lost an election in 20 years of political life in Connecticut, gaining much of her seasoning from old party pro John M. Bailey, former Democratic national chairman.

COLORADO

Gary W. Hart managed George S. McGovern's come-from-nowhere campaign for the presidency in 1972, then decided to try for elective office himself as the Democratic candidate for the Colorado Senate seat. A Yale graduate, he took a look at the shifting demographics in the mountain state and declared "Now it's our turn." His victory showed he was right.

OHIO

Ten years after his first try at the Senate was aborted by a bathroom fall, former astronaut John H. Glenn rocketed into the national political scene with a resounding victory for the Democrats in Ohio, capturing a Senate seat. Now 53, Glenn says he doesn't like labels such as liberal or conservative — but he has been associated with the Kennedys and might be a vice presidential possibility in 1976.

UTAH

Salt Lake City Mayor Jake Garn seemed a sure loser earlier in the year against Democratic Rep. Wayne Owens for the Senate seat vacated by Wallace Bennett. But Garn, 42, cultivated an image of conservatism and maturity and won by a surprisingly handsome margin. He's a former insurance man and a devout Mormon.

VERMONT

Patrick J. Leahy, 34, is the first Democrat elected to the Senate from Vermont since the Civil War. A state's attorney, he headed a national task force that studied the energy crisis. He replaces the dean of the Senate, 82-year-old George D. Aiken, who is retiring.

ARKANSAS

Gov. Dale Bumpers knocked off longtime incumbent J.W. Fulbright in the Senate Democratic primary, then coasted to an easy victory in the general election. He's personable, moderate and extraordinarily popular with the home folks, and he, too, is drawing a long look for a potential spot on the national ticket in 1976 or beyond. Bumpers is a lawyer.

FLORIDA

Richard Stone, 46, resigned as secretary of State to run as the Democratic candidate for the Senate seat vacated by Republican Edward J. Gurney. He won the primary over 10 others. Also an attorney, Stone has promised to take down his office door as a symbol of open government.

Student reports

Anita Barrick, 1500 West Broadway, is a member of the cast in "The Medium," an opera by Gion Carlo Menotti to be presented by senior music majors at William Jewell College, Liberty, Nov. 18 and 19.

Killed in accident

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A Springfield, Mo. man was killed in a car-pedestrian accident west of here on U.S. 80, the Arizona Highway Patrol said Friday.

Patrolmen said Greg Howard Garrison, 19, was struck as he walked along side the highway by a car driven by Laura Howe, 61, of Buckeye, Ariz.

The first official American flag, the Continental or Grand Union flag, was displayed on Prospect Hill, Jan. 1, 1776, in the American lines besieging Boston.

Inflation overtakes bicycles

By SUSAN MERRILL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation and a weak economy have caught up with the runaway bicycle market.

After riding high for nearly three years, bike sales are slowing down, leaving retailers with large inventories and forcing manufacturers to lay off workers. Predictions of a slow Christmas season are common in the industry.

"We expected sales this year to be 60 per cent above last year but it's only going to be 20 per cent higher," says a spokesman for a major bicycle retailer.

A bike buyer for another retailer says, "What's happened is that bicycle sales and inventories have been on a fantastic upswing in the last several years. We anticipated sales of 16 million bikes this year, but they were only about 13.5 million. So this season we're on a moderate upswing and we're caught with fantastic inventories. Our orders are down as much as 40 per cent to our manufacturers."

Manufacturers say they have a boom-time labor force but instead of putting it to work filling customary large Christmas orders, they're laying their workers off as much as two months early.

"In the last couple of years we've shipped everything we got our hands on but this year orders are behind 25 to 30 per cent. Instead of laying people off at the end of November as usual, we had to do it at the end of September," says a representative of Murray-Ohio in Nashville, Tenn., the nation's largest bike maker.

Manufacturers say they plan to hire back most of the workers they laid off by the first of 1975. They say retailers will have sold their inventories by then and will be placing spring and summer orders.

"Retailers are going to dump this Christmas. There'll be heavy promotion and price slashing," says a leading retailer. "We can't afford to keep inventories at present prime rate levels and we don't want heavy inventories on highpriced goods with prices starting to come down on raw materials.

Another reason to clear out 1974 bikes by the first of the new year, say retailers, is to stock up on bikes made to meet new federal safety standards.

Under the new regulations, all bikes sold in the United States by May 1, 1975 must have 16 reflectors—among them are four on the pedals, two-sided reflectors on the spokes of each wheel and reflectory tires to give motorists the whole outline of a bike at night. Bike brakes must make prescribed stops at certain speeds and nothing on the bike can extend five inches above the seat.

Weight problem too much for one city

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — She was efficient, cheerful, typed 70 words a minute and took shorthand at 90. But the City of Tacoma told Tracy Kay Natcher that wasn't good enough.

Two weeks after taking a receptionist's position with the Tacoma Human Development Department's Youth Services Bureau, the 18-year-old woman was fired.

Her problem: 50 pounds.

A person of her 5-foot-4 inch height must not weigh more than 148 pounds, city standards specify.

"If they gave me a probation period, I know I could lose the weight within a couple of months.

"I could understand it if there were some job function. But all I did was sit and type and answer the telephone," she said.

She has submitted a complaint to the Department of Human Rights.

Burton, Taylor sued by family

CHICO, Calif. (AP) — Richard Burton put this northern California town on the map while making a movie in nearby Oroville. But Robert and Antonia Henning wish they had never heard of the actor or his wife at the time, Elizabeth Taylor.

The Hennings sued Burton and Taylor in Municipal Court on Thursday, claiming the actor and actress caused $2,944 in damage to the Henning home, which they rented during filming of "The Klansman," starring Burton.

Carpets, bedspreads and mattresses were ruined during the actor's and actress' stay, the Hennings said in their suit.

Community Center open house today

Sedalians will have another opportunity today to visit the new Community Center during its open house. Hours will be from 1 to 6 p.m.

It would be worth every taxpayer's time to take advantage of this chance, since the Sedalia Community Center is the product, in great measure, of public tax dollars in one form or another.

With the opening of the center, the community now has centralized in one area an assortment of service organizations that meet the needs of a wide variety of people.

Among these are two Head Start classes, including kitchen facilities; the hot lunch program for the eldery, which currently serves 70-some persons a day; an adult basic education class administered by State Fair Community College; Project WESCENMO pediatric clinics. The facility provides a meeting place for various other groups, and also boasts an official branch of the Sedalia Public Library.

Construction of the $120,000 gymnasium plus dressing and equipment rooms—the only totally new part of the Community Center—also is a boon to the Boys Club; the formation of basketball teams has helped boost club enrollment to about 172 boys. The spacious gym will also be available to other groups.

Under the supervision of director Hank Duchone, the Sedalia Community Center is already in full swing. As time goes on, other uses for the facility will no doubt be developed.

Besides a great deal of money, many volunteer goods and services have gone into the Sedalia center. That seems to be an indication that the people are interested in its future, the essential first step in making it a true community endeavor.

The losers on the morning after

WASHINGTON — In every political contest there is a winner and a loser. You hear a lot from the winner but nothing from the loser. What happens to a defeated candidate? How does he feel?

Buchwald

"Gov. Habadasher," I said.

"Oh, you still remember me?" Habadasher smiled.

"You only lost the election Tuesday, Governor."

"People forget fast in this state, son."

"It must be tough to have been a governor and then be turned out by the people. What was the first thought that came to your mind when they told you that you had lost the election?"

"I thought about all the good things I had hoped to accomplish for this state — the unfinished business that I had started; the dreams that were shattered by an electorate that didn't understand what I was trying to do."

"That's very nice, Governor. But what were you REALLY thinking?"

"Well, if you want me to level with you, the first thought that came to mind was 'Damn, there goes my helicopter.' You know, I really got to love that helicopter. It would land right out there on the front lawn and zoom! I was above all the traffic and the stinking congestion and lousy air down there and I could get to the football game in 15 minutes. There's no feeling like it."

"No one could fault you for thinking that. Do you blame anyone for losing the election?"

"I blame myself, only myself. Of course, I had lousy TV commercials. I mean they really stank. But every time I complained, they told me I didn't know anything about show business. And those infantile newspaper ads didn't help me any, nor did my campaign staff who seemed to be drunk every time I needed them. And I'll tell you this — I got creamed because some idiot was running for senator on the same ticket as I was and his opponent stole all my votes. Except for that, I would say it was my fault."

"That's very generous of you, Governor. Your wife said after your defeat that she was happy you were getting out of politics."

"She was lying. She enjoyed being the governor's wife more than I enjoyed being governor. Boy, did she love all those servants and that chauffeured limousine and everyone playing up to her because she lived in the Masnion. She may have told the press she was happy I was getting out of politics, but she hasn't talked to me since I lost the election.

"Governor, what does the future hold for somebody like you? Where does one go after being the head of a state?"

"I'd like to get into the Cabinet."

"President Ford's Cabinet?"

"Why not? He blew the election for me with his pardon. The least he could do is give me a Cabinet post."

"But if he gave everyone who lost the election a high post in his administration the President would have to hold his Cabinet meetings in RFK Stadium."

"That's what my wife said."

"Governor, by American standards, you're a loser. You have tasted the bitter fruit of defeat. Having lived through it, would you advise young people to run for public office?"

"I certainly would."

"Why?"

"Because if you win, you have a chance of getting your own helicopter. There's nothing like it, son. You're flying way up there in the clouds and when you look down, all you see are suckers jammed bumper to bumper trying to get home from the football game."

Scientist paid off for false testimony

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — A top government scientist got a $300,000 grant after he testified falsely for his boss in a controversial sex discrimination case.

The grant was awarded the day after the scientist left the government, but both the scientist and his boss deny any impropriety.

The scientist is Harvard-educated Dr. Peter Steinglass, who until June 9 was a $30,000-a-year program chief at the National Institute for Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

In October, 1972, his boss, Dr. Maurice Chafetz, was on the skillet. A ranking scientist, Dr. Nancy Mello, charged that Chafetz demoted her because she was a woman, and the case came before a Civil Service hearing examiner.

Called to testify, Steinglass swore that Dr. Mello had never really been his boss. This supported Chafetz' contention that she had always been short on authority.

But the hearing examiner, citing signed statements, found "a serious question" as to Steinglass's credibility. The examiner said he would "give no consideration" to Steinglass's testimony and ruled against Chafetz.

A few months later, Steinglass decided to look for new work. After considerable hunting, he filed an application on Feb. 1, 1974, for a massive grant from the same institute where he worked.

Chafetz, supported by independent reviewing authorities, hastily approved the grant. The final okay came only one day after Steinglass had formally quit the Institute.

The grant runs three years, totals some $300,000 and allows Steinglass more than $75,000 as the chief investigator for a study of alcoholism in families.

Footnote: Chafetz said he had "absolutely" no intention to pay back Steinglass for his testimony. The Alcohol Abuse chief said he couldn't even recall whether he knew Steinglass was getting the $300,000 contract.

Steinglass gave us a two-page statement declaring "categorically and unequivocally" that there was "no connection whatsoever between any testimony ... and my receiving a competitively awarded research grant." He would gross less from the contract, he said, than he formerly earned from a private practice as a psychiatrist.

WATCH ON WASTE: Some 3,000 members of the American Nursing Home Association have flown off to Hawaii for five-day seminars in the sun. Their expenses are expected to be reimbursed out of federal Medicare and Medicaid money that otherwise would be spent to help the sick and the elderly.

Here's how the vacationing nursing home operators work it. Nursing homes that handle Medicare patients are permitted to collect expense money from the government for "reasonable staff and educational meetings."

To take advantage of this, the Nursing Home Association has set up a number of educational seminars as part of its convention in Hawaii. The operators can soak the taxpayers, therefore, for most of their Hawaiian vacation. The rest can be written off as a business expense.

A spokesman for the Nursing Home Association defended the practice, saying that the educational seminars aid in the treatment of elderly patients.

A Health, Education and Welfare Department spokesman said the government probably will reimburse the nursing home operators for their Hawaiian fling. "If they were meeting in Baltimore," he shrugged, "no one would come."

Because of President Ford's crackdown on government spending, meanwhile, some Medicare patients are being turned away.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: The hoard of jewelry and other gifts to former President Nixon from foreign lands is now stored in 1,100 boxes in Washington. The State Department may soon release a list of the items, but not until the list has been purged of gifts that might prove embarrassing to the United States. The excuse for the censorship: "National security." ... Last June, we reported that the budget boys had ordered the Treasury to transfer the Customs Bureau's antidrug watch along the Mexican border to the Immigration Service. The plan, we wrote, would cost the taxpayers $1.5 million. Now a confidential General Accounting Office (GAO) report states that the transfer "cannot be accomplished administratively and without statutory auhorization."

Capital in state of flux

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON — It seems as if everyone is running for something from the eight wards which make up this city — mayor, city council, school board. Why the excitement? Because this is the first time in a hundred years that the citizens of the nation's capital will have home rule.

"I want our city to be beautiful again, so I am voting for the candidates running for our own city government who will clean up our streets, collect our garbage, make decent homes out of our boarded up houses, and give our children an education, which will help them to get into college or get a job, and adequate stores where we can get food and clothing for our families." These were the remarks of a gentle, soft-spoken Negro woman when she answered the questions put to her by a roving reporter in the Anacostia district of the nation's capital.

One does not have to go to Anacostia to find such conditions. All one has to do is walk along the world's most famous street, Pennsylvania Anveue. In 18 months this country will celebrate its Bicentennial — it will also be a presidential election year — when the parade will march in patriotic procession along "the avenue."

What is happening to prepare the street for these historic events? Not much that is visible. Two ugly cement square buildings have been added where the old Raleigh Hotel stood — that is the new FBI building, named for J. Edgar Hoover. On the other side of the street is a similar structure for numerous government offices.

It does appear that the Willard Hotel will be spared, mostly because it has been a popular rendezvous since the Lincoln years and also because it adds architectural beauty to the street. The old post office tower will be allowed to stand and the office space from which it rises will be put to some useful purpose.

New Metro buses are already carrying workers from Capitol Hill to Maryland's Friendship Heights. The subway is making underground progress but most of the work is done on blocked-off streets.

At present the part of Pennsylvania Avenue approaching the Capitol is featured with those frightening cranes which have already killed several people, and those old doors from torn-down buildings which make fences for excavation and construction.

Just a step away from the avenue and across from the Willard is the National Press Building on the corner of F and 14th Streets, which houses many of the world's most famous newspaper offices. The most that can be said of this place now is that it is the best spot in town to get a taxi and the drinking fountains on each floor have the coldest weater.

The folks who work in this building have learned that the rents and the food have gone up and the quality has gone down. Other places to eat are the crowded lunch counters. People carrying their lunches in a brown paper bag are seen more often.

There are only three large stores, two of which are department stores on the once famous F Street downtown shopping area. Garfinckel's and Woodward & Lothrop have fairly good restaurants. The so-called F Street Mall is the poorest excuse of this popular fad in the whole country.

We must admit that the Washington Hotel, across from the Treasury Building, provides a good expensive restaurant and coofee shop and the most beautiful view of the historic places on the Mall as far as the Potomac River. The Press Club lounge window provides another spectacular view of Pennsylvania Avenue looking toward the Capitol.

The new city council promises not to give up on downtown Washington. To save gas and money, some suburban dwellers are buying condominiums and co-op apartments to be near their jobs. There will be more integration in housing and in the schools. But inflation and the economy are the headlines and Watergate still lurks in the background.

Yet with all its problems, politicians fight to get here and those who live here still like it.

Confusing season

It's a confusing time of year
Starting in September
And it doesn't even end
Until we've left behind December;
September, kids start back to school
And mothers try to adjust.
They've bought school clothes and other things
Now begin the things they must.
The PTA, activities
Of simply every kind,
Keeping everybody's schedules
Should drive them out of mind;
September, that is the month
We turn clocks back again
To Standard from Daylight Savings.
The electric clock and Big Ben.
The sun comes up too early
And sets a bit too soon.
No longer by our stomachs
Can we tell when it is noon,
So for a while we're all mixed up
On the time of day, but then
We somehow get accustom
To the change in time again,
Then along comes October
With trick or treat for Halloween
And candidates yelling "Goblins!"
At opponents in between;
Finally it's November
That brings election day,
Then Thanksgiving — family reunions —
When we take time off to pray;
By that time we're in the Christmas rush,
If we've not started yet, because
We've got to get right in there
To help old Santa Claus,
We're not certain of the sizes,
Not certain of the shade,
And we gift wrap those useless things
That out of this and that we've made,
We look around at the high priced gifts
(Often we buy them, too,)
That nobody needs and overlook
The practical things they do,
There are hours spent gift wrapping
And letters and cards we write,
Often we're still working
Clear up to Christmas Eve night
We've helped make floats for the Christmas parade
And favors for parties we make,
We entertain and to parties we go
Till our nerves are 'bout ready to break,
When Christmas is over we slow down a bit
Till the old year is ready to leave,
This time of constant confusion
That ends only on New Year's Eve,
Then we go into January
With our well meant resolutions
To find it cold and very dull
With still problems without solutions.

DEMOCRAT-CAPITAL SURVEY

QUESTION — It has been suggested that the city and the Chamber of Commerce share the expense of a director of economic development for Sedalia. Some councilmen say $10,000 should be spent by the city for this purpose. Do you favor such a joint-funding concept if it proves feasible?

Comments and signed letters are appreciated.

The response was light, but those who replied to last Sunday's Democrat-Capital Survey agreed, by 70 per cent, that the nation is in a recession.

They were asked: "Economists and government officials continue to argue over whether the U.S. is currently in a recession. Do you believe that we are?"

A reader who asked not to be identified said, "We don't believe we are in a full recession, but are slowly going into one. We, too, are on fixed incomes and we are the ones who will and are suffering the worse. Something has to be done. I believe Ford is not digging deep enough to help us."

A Sedalian who did not sign her letter disagreed with this view. She wrote: "I do believe that we are in a recession, and will soon be in a depression unless many, many changes are made. Clothing, rent, interest and especially food are going up every day ... I believe a depression could be stopped if the right decisions were made. Also, if President Ford could quit campaigning long enough to take care of business ..."

Jerome Hieronymus, Edwards, wrote, "With the closing of some hardgoods factories and the reduction of work forces in others, the recession is without question here. In our assisting of those less fortunate, we must guide them to face it as a challenge to greater achievement in the future ..."

And finally this comment: "When the value of the dollar is down, when the cost of essentials, such as food, continues to rise without control, then you must say a recession exists. More and more Americans are faced with the prospect of attempting to exist on wages that remain static while costs escalate. Unemployment stands at 6 per cent and, for those affected by that, the economy is depressed, not recessed."

Quotable Women

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"We have lived very happily under these laws like our ancestors efore us and now they are going to be changed just to please a few English people. Many Sarkes feel bitter about it and I am afraid there may be friction." Lillian Banker, who campaigned against the arrival of women's lib in the tiny island of Sark in the channel islands.

———

"Some women are reluctant to seek positions of authority thinking that demeans their femininity. It doesn't ... You don't have to be aggressive to be assertive." Mary Tyler Moore speaking in Los Angeles about her debut as a director in one of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" episodes.

"Somebody has to mind the store." Betty Ford announcing she would not accompany President Ford to Japan next week.

"Ella Grasso's victory in Connecticut raises the hopes and expectations of all women considering political careers. In the past, women have been forced to set their sights lower than men. But that, thank heavens, is now in the past," Frances Farenthold, chairwoman of the National Women's Political Caucus, commenting on Mrs. Grasso's victory in the Connecticut gubernatorial election last Tuesday.

Ballet dancers to perform first time

TEL AVIV (AP) — Valery and Galina Panov, the Russian ballet dancers who were unable to perform during their two-year struggle to leave the Soviet Union, will give their first performance Sunday since coming to Israel.

Featured dancers in the Kirov Ballet until they apllied for exit visas to Israel, the Panovs will dance from works by Tchaikovsky, Stravinsky, Shostokovich and Drigo at Mann Auditorium. All 3,000 seats have been sold out for weeks.

Panov, who is Jewish, and Galina, who isn't, have lived an almost secret life since arriving here in June.

"I'm tired of talking about my dancing," Panov said during a rehearsal break. "Whatever anyone wants to know about us as artists they can find out at the performance. Our language is dancing."

South's four-spade bid was based on the mistaken theory that West had been fooling when he bid one notrump. South knew better about the matter when West doubled, but it was too late then to do anything. All he could do was hope for the best and give the cards a chance to help him.

He ducked the first spade; won the second one and saw one faint glimmer of hope. In any event some hope is better than none. He led a club to dummy's ace, ruffed a club and was happy to see West play the king. He went back to dummy with the king of hearts, ruffed another club while poor West had to discard his queen.

Now all South had to do was to lead his last trump and show West his hand.

Dummy was left with two good clubs plus one heart, two diamonds and the last trump. West could take his ace of diamonds right then and there and concede the rest of the tricks. He could lead a low diamond and score his ace in the cool of the evening or he could lead a heart up to South's ace-jack. Whatever he did the only trick he could score would be that ace of diamonds.

Smith-Cotton finishes season with 20-20 tie

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

A successful 11-play, 67-yard drive in the final quarter, capped off by a four-yard touchdown run by senior halfback Marvin Spruell, followed by a couple of brilliant defensive plays in the final seconds of the game provided the Smith-Cotton Tigers with a 20-20 tie Friday night against Springfield Parkview.

Defensive linemen Bob Campbell and Mark Vinson hauled down quarterback Bart Broyles for a two-yard loss on a third and six situation at the Tigers' nine and helped save the deadlock as the Tigers closed out their 1974 season.

Equally important was a Broyles' pass that was batted away by defensive back Harry Browder of a ball intended for Pete Buckner in the end zone on the next play, which turned the ball over to the Tigers.

The tie with the Vikings gave the Bengals a 1-8-1 record, while Parkview closed out the season at 2-6-1.

The Tigers spotted Parkview a 14-0 lead on a 34-yard touchdown pass from Broyles to Buckner in the first period and a one-yard run by John Billings in the second quarter before S-C got on the board twice in the second period to earn a 14-14 tie at the intermission.

Starting at their own 30, the Tigers engineered a 70-yard drive that took only 11 plays for their first score. Senior quarterback Rick McRoy used basically only three types of plays for the TD.

Spruell passed back to McRoy to open the drive for a play that covered 24 yards. Spruell, who wound up just short of his season's goal, of 1,000, got all but two of the rushing calls in the drive. In addition to Spruell's 24-yard aerial to McRoy, other big plays in the series were a 16-yard pass from McRoy to Ray Newbill and a six-yard pass from Spruell to McRoy that got the ball to the two. From there, Bob Trautman carried it in for the TD.

Spruell hauled in a pass from McRoy to add the two-point conversion with 4:07 showing on the second-quarter clock.

The Tigers knotted the score at 14-all with a 17-yard scoring strike from McRoy to Bill Deuel with just :24 to go in the half on a fourth and 14 situation at the Vikings' 17.

However, McRoy's try for the extra point failed.

The third quarter was scoreless, but the Vikings struck paydirt on the first play of the fourth period on a two-yard run by Billings.

Broyles again tried to find Buckner on a pass for the conversion, but the ball fell incomplete.

That set the stage for the Tigers' last-ditch rally. Taking the ball at their own 33, McRoy, varying his attack on the ground and in the air, guided the steady drive that resulted in Spruell's four-yard score with 6:20 showing on the clock.

McRoy's attempt for the extra point failed.

A 27-yard return of Spruell's kickoff following the touchdown gave the ball to the Vikings at midfield. Key third-down runs by Mark Durham and Billings, who combined for 176 of the Vikings' 200 yards rushing, kept the pressure on the Bengals in the final minutes of play.

Parkview really applied the pressure when Billings converted a fourth and one situation, moving the ball to the 12 with just over a minute to go.

Back-to-back rushing plays by Billings and Durham netted the Vikings four yards, before the defensive heroics of Campbell, Vinson and Browder that helped salvage the tie.

Spruell picked up 91 net yards on 17 carries to run his season's total to 955. His career rushing total in three seasons of varsity competition comes to 1,533.

Bid falls short

Senior halfback Marvin Spruell picked up 91 yards Friday night against Springfield Parkview in the Smith-Cotton's season finale, but fell short of his bid for a 1,000-yard season. Friday's effort ran his season total to 955. Coupled with the 152 he picked up as a junior and the 426 yards his sophomore year it gave him a career mark of 1,533. SFCC coach is low key

Roadrunners prepare for Tuesday opener

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Bill Barton has been low-keyed in preparing his State Fair Community College Roadrunners for the season's opener Tuesday in the Crowder College Classic.

He was low-keyed about the players he signed to letters of intent, and he's been relatively low-keyed in his practice sessions.

Just when I thought I had players recruited, they disappeared or decided on going to some other school.

"I don't know, I guess I'm getting old," he said jokingly last week.

"I try different things each year, and I think I've found the right coaching techniques for this year's club," he continued.

If there was any possible way to stretch the basketball season into a 12-month sport, Barton would be the first to jump in with both hands.

After the 1973-74 season came to an end in early March, Barton was saying two weeks later, "I can't wait for it to start again."

Actually, basketball on the junior college level is a 12-month job when you consider recruiting.

"I don't know whether there was less talent in those graduating high school seniors in Missouri or whether the good ones were grabbed up by the major colleges," Barton said of the hard time he had finding players during the off-season.

"If things hadn't fallen into place in August, we would have been in trouble," he added talking mainly about freshmen forwards Lionel Hardin, Ray Steele and Bob Green.

"Just when I thought I had players recruited, they disappeared or decided on going to some other school," he said.

The biggest holes Barton has to fill this season are at forward, Charles Shell and Colles Webb, both two-year starters for the Roadrunners, were signed by Arkansas Tech., as was Lewis Busch, who handled the pivot responsibilities for the Roadrunners for two years.

Although 6-9 Stan McNeill, Aliquippa, Pa., is back to handle the center position, Barton had to get players to take the places on the front line.

Charles Johnson, a freshman from California, Mo., has seemingly won out one of the starting forward positions, but the other is up for grabs.

Initially, Barton was leaning toward Hardin, but the 6-6½ freshman from Kansas City Central sprained an ankle and is not at full speed.

Steele, 6-4 from Denver, has shown vast improvement in recent days, and may open with Johnson Tuesday night against Crowder.

Green, 6-5 from St. Louis, has also shown improvement and could figure heavily in the Roadrunner plans coming off the bench.

"We are stronger depth-wise than we've ever been, I think," Barton commented last week. "We can use Hardin at forward and at center to back up McNeill, and Johnson, Steele and Green can handle the forward positions."

Barton is also stronger than in past years at the guards with returning starter Jerry Bybee and freshmen Shelvy Brown and Glyndon "Buggar" Bennett. The three will no doubt see starting duty through the season.

Brown, 6-1, gives the Roadrunners adequate size in the back court, as well as outside scoring punch.

The big thing the team needs according to Coach Barton is game experience.

"He's our best outside shooter, and could develop into one of the best players we've ever had," says Barton.

Bennett is only 5-9, but has quickness and is improving his shooting range.

"The big thing he needs, as do all of our players for that matter, is game experience," the SFCC mentor says.

Bybee didn't have the type of year Barton expected out of him last season, but Barton feels he's "got it together now."

Says Barton, "Jerry's shooting has improved tremendously. He's always been tough on defense in spite of his size (5-10)."

"Defense has always been the toughest things to teach," says Barton. "Not so much from my standpoint of theories, but because it is not concentrated on heavily enough in high school. You would be surprised how little time is devoted to defense on the high school level. In a number of cases, we have to start from scratch on defense."

Offensively, the Roadrunners have the quickness and speed to fast break, something they haven't been able to do very much of in recent seasons.

Barton feels his biggest weakness right now is reading the defenses, "...but this will come with experience."

The Crowder Classic in Neosho, Mo., pits State Fair against Crowder and Forest Park of St. Louis against Seminole, Okla., in the first round of play Tuesday.

The championship and consolation games will be played Wednesday.

Nov. 22-23, the Roadrunners will compete in the Keokuk, Iowa Classic. Also entered there are Moline, Ill., and Marshalltown, Iowa.

Unique wrestling pairings Tuesday

A six-man tag team wrestling match has been booked as the main event Tuesday night at Convention Hall in Liberty Park. The unusual pairings find Ted Oates and Mike George teamed with television announcer Bill Kersten. The other tandem is made up of The Interns and their manager Dr. Ken Ramey.

Ted Oates faces Intern No. 1 in the 8:30 p.m. opener.

Kaysinger Tournament opens Monday night

LINCOLN — LaMonte and Northwest, a pair of teams that clashed last week in Kaysinger Conference action, open the annual Kaysinger Conference Basketball Tournament here Monday night at 6 p.m.

LaMonte, seeded one spot shead of Northwest in eighth, lost to the Mustangs in Northwest's home opener Wednesday night, 74-57.

Four other teams, including Sedalia Sacred Heart, will see action in the first night of play. The fourth-seeded Gremlins, who dropped a 15-point decision to Stover Tuesday night in Sedalia, will face the Smithton Tigers, who are the defending tournament champions. Smithton is seeded fifth, and will tip off against the Gremlins at 7:30 p.m.

The night's finale pits second-seeded Stover, which has already carved out a 2-0 record in the league, meets Warsaw, seeded seventh in the nine-team affair.

Cole Camp has the top seed and will not see action until 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, when the Bluebirds take on the winner of the LaMonte-Northwest tourney opener.

At 7 p.m. Tuesday, third-seeded Green Ridge faces sixth-seeded Lincoln.

The tournament continues through Saturday night.

A new rule in the National Football League this season provides for one 15-minute overtime period when games end in a tie.

Blues top Islanders, 4-2

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Garry Unger drove home his own rebound 21 seconds into the final period and Barclay Plager added an insurance score as the St. Louis Blues nudged the New York Islanders, 4-2, Saturday night in a National Hockey League game.

Gaining their first victory after one loss under new coach Garry Young, the Blues never trailed, jumping to a 2-0 lead on a first-period goal by rookie Ken Richardson and a second-period power play score by Wayne Merrick.

After Billy Harris cut the Blues' margin in half before the close of the second period, Unger quickly helped the Blues regain their two-goal advantage.

Soccer game ends in 4 days

ST. LOUIS (AP)—And on the fourth day, it ended.

Meramec Community College used a head shot by Denny Bozesky after 4:32 of play to edge Florissant Valley Community College, 1-0, Saturday and end a 3½-hour soccer marathon that began Wednesday afternoon.

Meramec will now meet Forest Park Community College Sunday in the final of the National Junior College Athletic Association Region 16 playoff.

Meramec and Florissant Valley began the long-winded contest by playing 105 scoreless minutes Wednesday, including a 15-minute overtime, before losing to darkness.

They played another 105 minutes--seven 15-minute overtimes--Thursday. And still no one scored.

But it was all over quickly Saturday. Bozesky made good an assist from Jim Goodall on a free kick and Meramec blanked Florissant Valley.

Bucks trade Lucius Allen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The way we're going now we have to make moves," Los Angeles Lakers' Coach Bill Sharman observed after the Lakers traded guard Jim Price to the Milwaukee Bucks for guard Lucius Allen.

The trade came as a surprise because Price, 25, is the team's second leading scorer with a 20.6 points-per-game average and had been groomed for two years to succeed superstar Jerry West, who retired this year.

Illini gridder shot to death

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — University of Illinois starting defensive end Gregory Williams was fatally shot early Saturday morning during a scuffle at a fraternity party, police said.

Williams, 20, a junior from Miami, Fla., and another university student, Carl L. Belser, also 20, of Maywood, Ill., were shot at Kappa Alpha Psi, a predominantly black fraternity house, when several young people tried to crash a party, authorities said.

Horse of year to Forego?

NEW YORK (AP) — Forego virtually wrapped up Horse of the Year honors Saturday by winning the $111,900 Jockey Club Gold Cup over the gruelling two-mile distance at Aqueduct.

The strapping 4-year-old gelding, ridden by Heliodoro Gustines, was last in the field of eight at the halfway mark, then closed with a rush around the final turn to overhaul Group Plan and draw out to win by 2½ lengths in 3:21 1-5.

Namath to buy WFL team?

MEMPHIS (AP) — Joe Namath, quarterback of the New York Jets, is considering buying a World Football League franchise and becoming pro football's only player-owner, WFL officials say.

Namath is one of three prospective buyers, with whom the league is discussing a franchise in New York beginning in 1976, according to John F. Bassett, president and principal owner of the WFL's Memphis Southmen and chairman of the league's executive committee.

The developments were reported by the Memphis Commercial Appeal in its Sunday editions.

The newspaper quoted Bassett as saying the other prospective buyers are Broadway producer David Merrick and a law firm.

Don Regan, WFL executive director, said Namath wanted "a ton of money" and a franchise he would purchase for "a lot less" than the going rate.

"He has to bring a big-money man with him, and he has one ... it would be a Bobby Hull type deal."

Hull, a former National Hockey League superstar, signed a 10-year contract with the World Hockey Association's Winnepeg Jets in 1972 for a reported $3.5 million and became playercoach.

Regan said that on Friday he told Namath's attorney, Jimmy Walsh, that one discussed proposal was unacceptable to the financially troubled league.

NFL roundup: Oilers are no longer a joke; Cards-Vikings clash Monday

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Two years ago—or even two weeks ago—a meeting between the Buffalo Bills and Houston Oilers might have been considered more of a joke than a game. But not now.

Last year, after being pushed around for several seasons, the Bills emerged as a legitimate playoff contender in the National Football League. And in the past two weeks, the Oilers have begun flexing their muscles.

Sunday's game in Buffalo, therefore, is no joke. Not to either team. The Bills will be trying to extend their winning streak to seven games and maintain their hold on first place in the American Conference East. And the Oilers will be trying to stay out of a place they occupied for what seems like ages—the cellar of the AFC's Central Division.

Sunday's other games are Cleveland at New England, Miami at New Orleans, Washington at Philadelphia, San Francisco at Dallas, the New York Jets at the New York Giants, San Diego at Kansas City, Denver at Baltimore, Chicago vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, Atlanta at Los Angeles and Detroit at Oakland. Minnesota is at St. Louis Monday night.

The odds-makers may not be taking the Oilers too seriously just yet — they're 10½-point underdogs — but Buffalo Coach Lou Saban is having none of that.

"We have been saying all along that Houston would be a much-improved football team," he said. "Anyone who had doubts must have lost them during the last two weeks. The Oilers have had momentum and enthusiasm in their victories at Cincinnati and New York."

Houston, San Diego, New York Giants all have revitalized teams to compliment the more balanced 1974 NFL teams.

The Oilers themselves are beginning to lose their doubts. "Instead of waiting around for something bad to happen, we're counting on something good happening and we believe it will," said Coach Sid Gillman.

The Oilers' main jobs, of course, are to stop O.J. Simpson and Joe Ferguson. Simpson leads the AFC in rushing with 705 yards and Ferguson is the conference's No. 2 passer. He's completed nearly 60 percent of his passes, has thrown 10 touchdowns and has been intercepted only four times. Ahmad Rashad is his main target with 28 catches for 354 yards and four touchdowns.

Houston's offense has awakened with the passing of Dan Pastorini, whose primary receiver, Ken Burrough, is third in the conference with 30 receptions for 424 yards and a touchdown.

The Patriots, whom Buffalo beat last Sunday, and the Dolphins trail the Bills by one game. New England's primary task will be to slow down Brian Sipe, whose running and passing brought the Browns a victory two weeks ago and nearly got them another one last week against San Diego. Miami may have injured running back Larry Csonka and suspended runner Mercury Morris back in the lineup against the Saints. Morris' suspension, expected to run through the weekend, was lifted Friday by Coach Don Shula.

The Redskins are expected to start Sonny Jurgensen at quarterback Sunday against the Eagles despite the veteran's ailing knees and bruised thigh. As usual, Billy Kilmer will be ready to take over.

Dallas, tied with Philadelphia, a game back of Washington, three behind first-place St. Louis in the National Conference East, may have to contend with Norm Snead for the second time this year. Snead, now with the 49ers, beat the Cowboys 14-6 earlier in the season when he quarterbacked the Giants.

The Giants now have Craig Morton going for them. The former Cowboy bench-warmer, who led the Giants past Kansas City a week ago, will be matching bombs with the Jets' Joe Namath in the battle for New York's "bragging rights."

The Chiefs got a fine performance last Sunday from veteran quarterback Len Dawson despite the loss to New York. The upcoming game against the Chargers will probably be a showcase for two fine rookie runners, Kansas City's Woody Green and San Diego's Don Woods.

Baltimore's main task will be to slow down Otis Armstrong, Denver's leading rusher and No. 3 in the AFC with 627 yards. The Colts should start Marty Domres at quarterback despite his breastbone injury.

The Bears beat the Packers 10-9 a few weeks ago—but that was before Green Bay had John Hadl at quarterback. For the first time in 112 games, these two old rival teams are playing in Milwaukee instead of Green Bay.

Pittsburgh holds a 1½-game lead over Cincinnati in the AFC Central Division and can take a major step toward a title by beating the Bengals, who will be going without their leading rusher, injured Boobie Clark. Doug Dressler, who lost his job to Clark last season, will be starting.

The Rams, expected by many to be one of the NFL's most explosive clubs, have been struggling lately. Still, Los Angeles is solidly in front in the NFC West. But it may have problems with the Falcons, out to win one for their new head coach, Marion Campbell.

The Raiders have reeled off seven straight victories since losing their season opener. They hope to make it eight in a row against the Lions, who beat Oakland 28-14 in their only previous meeting.

Upsets make bowl scouts blush

Oklahoma rolls over Missouri

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Shifty halfback Joe Washington zigzagged for 143 yards and became the second leading rusher in Oklahoma history Saturday as the second-ranked Sooners bowled over Missouri, 37-0, for their 17th straight victory — college football's longest win skein.

Fullback Jim Littrell smashed for 155 yards up the middle and Oklahoma's huge, mobile defense completely paralyzed the Missouri attack which rolled up 52 points in last week's win over Kansas State.

Washington scored the Sooners' final touchdown as he hurdled two yards into the end zone. The Port Arthur, Tex., junior moved into second place ahead of Greg Pruitt on the career rushing chart with 2,860 yards.

The intermittent rain didn't seem to bother the partisan crowd of 61,826 which exploded in a rousing cheer when it was announced at halftime that Michigan State had upset top-ranked Ohio State, 16-13.

Oklahoma St. 29, Kansas St. 5

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)— Bob Shephard ran 83 yards for a touchdown with an intercepted pass Saturday as 17th-ranked Oklahoma State, putting on a brilliant defensive show, recorded a 29-5 Big Eight football victory over Kansas State.

The Fiesta Bowl-bound Cowboys rolled up a 15-3 advantage in the first half, thanks to costly Kansas State errors. Buck Stremme blocked David Spare's punt on the Wildcat 28; and eight plays later Jimmy Derrick, sophomore quarterback, sneaked five yards for a touchdown.

Oklahoma State is 3-1 in the conference and 5-3 over-all. Kansas State has lost all five of its conference games and has a 3-6 overall record.

Nebraska 23, Iowa St. 13

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Freshman Monte Anthony ran for two touchdowns and quarterback Dave Humm extended his own Big Eight touchdown completion mark as Nebraska powered past Iowa State 23-13 Saturday.

The ninth-ranked Sugar Bowl-bound Huskers were halted at the Iowa State 10-yard line following the opening kickoff, but dominated play thereafter in the last game to be played in rain-soaked Clyde Williams Field.

Nebraska scored on its second possession following an Iowa State fumble but a stubborn Cyclone defense held the Huskers to a 10-0 halftime lead.

The Husker defense, that has allowed opponents just 74 points this year, gave up 13 points to the Cyclones, all in the final quarter.

Colorado 17, Kansas 16

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Fullback Terry Kunz' up-the-middle running accounted for one touchdown and set up Tom Mackenzie's wining field goal with five minutes left, lifting Colorado to a 17-16 come-from-behind victory over Kansas Saturday in Big Eight football.

Colorado trailed 13-0 at halftime but came out of the dressing room fired up. Midway through the third quarter, the Buffaloes took over at their own 16-yard line. Kunz carried nine times for 64 yards during the 12-play drive, and scored himself from the one-yard line.

Colorado's Rod Perry fumbled a punt on the first play of the final period, giving Kansas the ball at the Buff 14. But the Jayhawks had to settle for Mike Love's 23-yard field goal for a 16-7 lead.

Sophomore Melvin Johnson offset that score on the next play, taking the kickoff 94 yards for a touchdown that cut the deficit to 16-14 with 13:44 left in the game.

The victory boosted Colorado to 2-3 in the conference and 4-5 over-all, while Kansas slipped to 2-3 and 4-5 over-all.

Michigan 14, Illinois 6

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Tailback Gordon Bell darted eight yards for one touchdown and quarterback Dennis Franklin smashed one foot for the clinching touchdown as fourth-ranked Michigan Saturday outlasted tregedy-struck Illinois 14-6 to take sole possession of the Big Ten football lead.

The victory left Michigan with a 6-0 Big Ten record, wresting the conference lead from Ohio State, now 5-1. It had been expected that the topranked Buckeyes and Michigan were on a collision course toward the Nov. 23 finale at Columbus, Ohio.

Arkansas 25, Rice 6

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Freshman kicker Steve Little tied a school record with three field goals and Arkansas' defense shut down Rice at every turn as the Razorbacks defeated the Owls 25-6 in a Southwest Conference game Saturday.

Little kicked field goals of 32, 39 and 25 yards on Arkansas' first four possessions and then the Razorbacks added nine more points without running a play.

The bizarre sequence began when Mike Landrum went back to punt from his own end zone. Landrum fumbled the snap from center and Doug Barwegen, a freshman defensive back who plays mostly on the kicking teams, recovered to make it 16-0 with 2:28 left in the half. With 1:26 remaining, Rice quarterback Tommy Kramer dropped back to pass and slipped down in the end zone for a safety.

Little's three field goals tied a record shared by four others.

The first night of action in the Sedalia Recreation Department's men's basketball league is Tuesday. Games scheduled that night at the Sedalia Junior High School pit Waller Truck Lines against Millers at 6:45 p.m., and Duke Manufacturing against the Stags at 8 p.m.

At Heber Hunt School Tuesday, Mop and Broom faces the Sad Sacks at 6:45 p.m., and the Sedalia Jaycees take on Tullis Hall at 8 p.m.

Mr. Personality

Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes demonstrated his usual candor in the post game locker room after his formerly No. 1 rate Buckeyes lost to Michigan State, 16-13, on Saaturday. Ohio State, Florida fall

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State stunned top-ranked Ohio State 16-13 Saturday on an electrifying 88-yard touchdown run by fullback Levi Jackson and a post-game ruling by Big Ten Conference Commissioner Wayne Duke.

It took Duke nearly 30 minutes to confirm what a delirious, disbelieving capacity crowd of 78,533 had seen — that Michigan State had held on a goal-line stand with seconds to play and Ohio State, out of timeouts, had not gotten its final play off in time from the one-yard line.

"It was the ruling of the back judge and the field judge that play had expired before the last play," Duke said of the confusion-filled final seconds.

The line judge had briefly signaled an Ohio State touchdown but Duke said the Buckeyes would have suffered a penalty on the play had time not run out.

Wingback Brian Baschnagel picked up a fumbled snap at the final gun and plunged into the end zone. But the play, as it turned out, didn't count.

When the gun went off, both teams, believing they had won, broke into victory dances as the crowd swarmed onto the field.

DALLAS, (AP) — Underdog Southern Methodist, given heart by Oscar Roan's bizarre 14-yard touchdown fumble return, followed the fanatical defense of nose guard Louis Kelcher and tackle Steve Morton to shock fifth-ranked Texas A&M 18-14 Saturday.

The loss dropped the Aggies into a tie for first-place in the Southwest Conference.

Auburn 24, Mississippi St. 20

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Fullback Secdrick McIntyre exploded for a 54-yard touchdown run in the third quarter to give fifth-ranked Auburn a 24-20 Southeastern Conference football victory over Mississippi State Saturday.

Auburn, capitalizing on big plays in the first half, took a 17-point lead before State's Bulldogs could regroup and carry the offensive battle to Auburn's door after intermission.

Alabama 30, LSU 0

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Third-ranked Alabama, thirsting for another national championship, used the brilliant running of Willie Shelby and a 29-yard touchdown fumble return by Ricky Davis to crush Louisiana State 30-0 Saturday.

The victory in the nationally televised football game gave the Crimson Tide at least a tie for an unprecedented fourth-straight Southeastern Conference crown, and — combined with the defeat of top-ranked Ohio State — produced a noisy outburst of "We're No. 1" chants from the crowd of 70,000.

Georgia 17, Florida 16

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Horace King slipped through Florida's defense for a five-yard, fourth-period score Saturday, earning the Georgia Bulldogs a 17-16 upset over the sixth-ranked, Sugar Bowl-bound Florida Gators.

Florida came from behind once to take a 10-9 lead and roared to a touchdown in the final half-minute of the game to make it 17-16 but failed in a passing attempt for a two-point conversion.

Georgia quarterback Matt Robinson threw a two-point conversion to Richard Appleby after Georgia's last touchdown. That made the difference.

The victory kept Goergia's hopes alive for the Southeastern Conference title with a 4-1 SEC record. Georgia is 5-3 in all games. Florida's record is now 7-2, 3-2 in the SEC.

N. Carolina St. 12, Penn St. 7

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Fullback Stan Fritts scored one touchdown and passed 22 yards for another Saturday to lead North Carolina State to an impressive 12-7 upset over seventh-ranked Penn State.

Fritts piled up 112 yards rushing against the nation's top team in rushing defense and embarassed the Cotton Bowl, which formally invited the Nittany Lions to play after the game.

The bid had been unofficially tendered before the upset, which was the second loss against seven victories for Penn State. The Wolfpack, now 8-2, is headed for the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

N.C. State stormed 80 yards in 14 plays for a second period touchdown behind the running of Fritts, who gained 57 yards in the drive.

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Barefoot, his shirt knotted about his lean waist, Arnulfo Salas guides his plow through seven and a half acres of sandy, volcanic soil.

He farms the way his father did before him, on the same land, with the same plow, behind the same tired horse.

Yet Arnulfo Salas, 27, father of four children, is the unlikely hope of the hungry world.

A lot of important people Arnulfo doesn't know are meeting in Rome this week at the United Nations' World Food Conference. They are talking about Arnulfo and the 100 million other small farmers who tend 80 per cent of the world's farms and are the best answer to the world's food problems.

Arnulfo wouldn't care. This is his world, a personal stake in Mexico's Atoyac River Valley between the slopes of the ancient volcanoes Popacateptl, Ixtaccihuatl and La Malinche.

The Aztecs coaxed food out of the nitrogen-poor soil 7,000 years ago, fertilizing with human excrement and fish bones. Arnulfo uses chemical fertilizer, but sparingly, inefficiently.

His corn is thin, they would say in Iowa. He will reap some 210 bushels from acreage that would produce nearly 800 bushels in Iowa.

Arnulfo could — by using more fertilizer and readily available technical help — double his production. He chooses not to. Maybe next year, he says.

He is the prototype of the subsistence farmer the world over, a captive of his culture, his fears. He produces on his 15 acres or less only what he needs. He feeds his family, his hogs, few of his countrymen.

The Arnulfos and their families are 700 million of the world's 3.8 billion population, and 70 per cent of the population in the developing countries.

The world is waiting for them.

Increasing their production is the "only viable long-term solution to the world food problem," says a U.N. report prepared for the World Food Conference, which opened Nov. 5 and ends next Sunday.

Every year, the world has 78 million new mouths to feed. American and other modern farmers, producing near to capacity, cannot do the job. U.S. government stockpiles, once used to feed millions of hungry, are gone today. And so, in America, when a housewife reaches for a loaf of bread on a supermarket shelf, she is in direct and unequal competition with a starving child somewhere in the world — a competition that is driving up her food prices.

She, too, has a stake in the farm of Arnulfo Salas. It has come to that.

If only Arnulfo would, he could double or treble his output, produce new and more varied crops, feed his fellow people in crowded Mexico City 30 miles away, and other cities where people hunger.

The U.N. report says the Arnulfos of the world must play the major role in increasing the average annual growth rate of food production. During the next 12 years, it must go up at least one per cent from the present 2.6 per cent. If it doesn't, says the U.N. report, then the developing countries face annual food deficits of 85 to 100 million tons. That deficit would be twice the entire U.S. wheat harvest this year.

In Mexico half the land is planted in corn. Yet not more than 25 to 30 per cent of it leaves the farm where it was grown.

In Mexico, too, malnutrition is rampant. Half the babies born will not live to their fifth year; 30 per cent will die before their first birthday. In Mexico and elsewhere, it has come to that.

In India, small farmers hold 60 per cent of the rain-fed land. Yet they produce only 30 per cent of the rice. In India every year millions either die or are left wasted by malnutrition.

The problems, almost everyone agrees, are cultural, social, economic, governmental. The small farmer is capable of far more. How do you convince him him to do it?

Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, who heads the U.S. delegation to the Rome conference, has his own ideas:

"This is a basic problem in India and elsewhere because they continue to have a cheap food policy. Perhaps the In-

Not enough of the new way

Ted Shambaugh, who farms 1,600 acres in central Illinois in the heart of the nation's corn belt, signals to a hired hand helping to prepare the soil for this year's corn crop. With the most modern fertilizers and up to date methods Shambaugh coaxes every ounce of grain he can from his land. Still it is not enough in a world where each year there are 78 million new mouths to feed. (AP) can figure. They're not stupid. They can get a better price somewhere else and the wheat doesn't come out. It stays in the granary, or it goes into the black market.

"Ambassador Pat Moynihan was in this office ... discussing this very thing. It just never leaves the villages, and they eat pretty well out there, at least in terms of how they eat in Calcutta....

"The world's crying need is to get farmers everywhere to produce. You don't do that by putting a ceiling price over their head ..."

But the closer you get to "how" the more complex the problem becomes.

Astolfo Fumagalli, general manager of Guatemala's Institute of Agricultural Science and Technology, wrestles with the "how?"

"They have been doing it their way for many centuries. They just don't think of the future. But we must depend on them and they must change. I believe this is a cultural pattern all over the world.

"They belong to the past. We must change that."

For years in Mexico, a leader in land redistribution, the small farmer was a slave to the local corn buyer who set the price. Then the government established a chain of regional stores, buying grain at an official price, setting a price floor.

There are dozens of experiments. In El Salvador there are new prospering farm cooperatives. In India the government seeks to break the hold of loan sharks on small farmers. In Brazil concerted efforts by the government and American experts have revitalized one state that now produces over 80 per cent of Brazil's wheat.

But most changes are as much cultural as technological. Just outside of San Lucas el Grande, a Mexican town of 4,000, Margarite Juarez Garcia, 32, farms seven and a half acres.

For years he followed the local practice, spacing his corn plants a yard apart, fertilizing sparsely. Today he plants his corn 20 inches apart, fertilizes better. His yield has trebled.

Now he has corn to sell on the open market. Now he is building a new home for his wife and four children. He also has left some old ways behind.

In almost every poor country, the camposino or his counterpart is not prepared to extend his loyalty beyond his family, nor to open himself to criticism from outsiders, be they neighbors or strangers.

Juarez Garcia did both. He joined the Puebla Plan, started by the Rockefeller Foundation, now run by Mexico's Post Graduate College of Agriculture.

Working together the farmers have managed to unlock local credit, lower interest rates from 18 per cent to 7.5, buy their fertilizer as a group, even buying it from afar when local supplies were scarce.

The largest hurdle is fear. Simon Williams, a New York-born consultant who has studied the small farmer all over the world says, "When we ask these guys to change their planting, we're asking them to risk their lives."

It means also getting used to the idea of money.

Dr. Reggie Laird who works with the Puebla Plan explains that most of the farmers never sold corn except when they needed cash for medical bills. They have no bank accounts. Their assets are animal and vegetable. They feed their corn to their families and what's left to the hogs. "They talk about using their hogs literally as a piggy bank," Laird says.

When small farmers do well, they are amazing even to experts. The small farmer of Taiwan and Japan is a case in point.

"Their culture is such that they can put enough labor into a tiny plot and outproduce any corporate farmer," says Si Williams. "The size of the parcel does not govern productivity; it's how you manage it.

"The use of fertilizer in Japan or Taiwan is greater per square foot than anywhere else in the world. You can't duplicate that elsewhere by calling people lazy, or saying they're too dumb to learn."

Agronomist Lester Brown of the Overseas Development Corp. agrees:

"It takes the full range of supporting services. The small farmer often requires more support than the large farmer. We've got a long way to go in figuring how to get these services to them."

The American farmer has been land rich — and he's long ago worked out credit and other arrangements to make his farm work. For the most part he's had a sympathetic government. He and the small farmer of the world are a study in contrasts.

Alan Forret is 52 and tends 1,500 acres in the rolling farm country outside of Des Moines. He has added to the family holdings since his grandfather settled here.

Last year he hired a man for the first time. This year he bought his first combine to add to his three tracters, two plows, truck and other equipment.

Forret's land is blessed, and he knows it, and he worries about it. All out production may be fine for the rest of the world and the U.S. balance of payments. He is not sure it is good for him.

He used to set aside 600 acres, leave it fallow for a year. As a result he didn't have to fertilize as much. Land improves as it rests.

But this year only 400 acres are at rest. As profitable as it is, this bad growing year leaves him with misgivings.

"Our loss and the harm we've done to the land is a tragic thing. We just kind of lost our heads with all the land we've plowed up."

There was heavy erosion in this rolling country after the spring rains. "I can show you three-foot gullies and silt like quicksand," Forret said.

The same way is not enough

Arnulfo Salas, using the same plow, the same horse and the same methods as his father before him, guides his plow between furrows of corn on his seven and a half acres in Mexico's Atoyac river valley. With the right fertilizer and methods he could double the 210 bushel output of his little farm. But like subsistence farmers the world over he produces only for the needs of his family, his animals and perhaps a few of his countrymen. (AP)

And heavy planting costs in fertilizer. "If you had to cut back on fertilizer, you might sneak by the first year, but not after that. I look at it like dope. If you get hooked on fertilizer and heavy cropping, you just have to do it more and more."

So, as the world calls on the small farmer to grow more, Forret is considering cutting back, going back to rotational planting.

Sure, he says, the American farmer has a moral obligation to feed the hungry, but "if we produce for those countries where thousands are dying, we have a right to expect that it should get to where it does the most good."

The farmer also deserves a reasonable profit, whoever pays for it, Forret says.

Secretary Butz, whose policies help manage America's farms, counts the nation's blessings: "The Lord gave us a tremendous agricultural resource ... Starting in Ohio and going to the Rockies, from Canada into Texas, you have the world's largest contiguous land mass of fertile soil, adequate rainfall, good growing climate, topography that lends itself to mechanization ... well capitalized farms, high management — capacity farmers ..."

But in a hungry world, they are not enough without Arnulfo Salas.

A moral obligation

Alan Forrett, who farms 1,500 rich acres near Des Moines, inspects the effects of an early nip of frost on his soybean crop. Sure, says Forrett, the American farmer has a moral obligation to feed the hungry. If we produce for these countries where thousands are dying, we should have the right to expect that it should get to where it does the most good," he says. (AP)

Tough problems for Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats face three formidable problems over the next 18 months as they seek to convert their off-year election victories into a successful 1976 drive to recapture the White House.

They are the possibility of renewed party squabbling starting at next month's Kansas City miniconvention, the need to produce positive programs and a bulky but leaderless field of presidential prospects.

With at least 291 House members, 61 senators and 36 governors, Democratic strength is roughly comparable to the 283 House members, 64 senators and 35 governors they won in a similar off-year sweep in 1958.

And the big-state control is about the same, eight of 10 with only Michigan and Ohio in GOP hands now.

But that strength is no guarantee of presidential success two years hence.

Despite the impressive 1958 numbers, an economic recession toward the close of the Eisenhower administration and an appealing candidate in youthful John F. Kennedy, the Democrats barely won in 1960.

And they face the possibility of running in 1976 against an incumbent President although politicians in both parties remain unconvinced by President Ford's statements that he "probably" will run.

The Democrats' immediate problem is Kansas City. Both reform and regular factions are girding for battle over provisions of a proposed party charter.

Reformers want to avoid any hint of abandoning provisions apportioning a bigger role to minorities and women. Regulars want to re-establish control of party machinery they lost in 1972.

If chairman Robert S. Strauss can effect a compromise, the Kansas City meeting could pass virtually unnoticed by the general public, a result wholly in line with the hopes of party officials who didn't want it anyway.

In the area of the next Congress, the Democratic problem is more difficult.

A strong Democratic push is certain to enact programs for national health insurance, tax reform and more public service jobs for the unemployed. Democratic strength may be sufficient to enact such measures over a presidential veto.

But in the crucial area of the economy, Democrats — while generally agreed Ford's proposals are inadequate — haven't come up with an alternative.

With Ford and the Democrats sharply split on what to do, there is a real chance that much of the next two years will be spent in proposal and counter-proposal, blame and counter-blame, as the two parties jockey for position.

If the economy improves dramatically, Ford's position will be greatly strengthened and he could emerge as a much more formidable candidate for 1976.

But many Democratic politicians feel Ford's first months have shown he would be vulnerable to a united Democratic effort.

But the Democrats are splintered at this point a dozen different ways.

At least seven possible candidates have formed committees or signaled their intention of running: Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace; Sens. Henry Jackson of Washington, Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas; Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia; former Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina, and Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia says he's "not disinterested" and the field of other possibilities include Sen. Birch E. Bayh of Indiana; Sens.-elect Dale Bumpers of Arkansas and John H. Glenn of Ohio; Gov.-elect Hugh Carey of New York, and Mayor Kevin H. White of Boston.

Until the long primary season starts in March 1976, in New Hampshire, it seems unlikely that any will emerge at the head of the pack.

Even after that the road to nomination is a long one. The rules requiring proportional representation are expected to assure a multicandidate, nominating convention. At that point, almost anything can happen.

DEADLY RAINS

NEW YORK (AP) — George E. Wilson, whose company provides safe-driving information for its car and truck fleet leasing clients, says rain probably plays a part in two-thirds of all bad weather highway crashes. More people are killed on rainslicked roads, he points out, than on ice and snow-covered roads combined.

In a heavy rain, he cautions, the tires of a fast-moving car can actually ride like a hydroplane on the film of water that forms on the road and lose contact with the pavement.

The two best ways to avert rainy-weather accidents, Wilson says, are to slow down and leave more space between your car and the one ahead. It's essential to keep windshield wipers and defogger in good condition. Also you're less likely to make like a hydroplane on water-soaked roads if your tires have plenty of tread and are properly inflated.

Slow beginning for TV movie is a fooler

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the beginning no one gave it much of a chance.

Studios didn't want to be bothered.

Stars avoided it.

Nobody liked it but the audience. That was the birth of the television movie.

"I don't think any of us envisioned it becoming a new kind of television," said Aaron Spelling, who produced in 1969 the first Movie of the Week for ABC. He has done 52 more since.

The TV movie has indeed become a new kind of television.

At its best, it is thought-provoking, diverse, offering indepth character study. At its worst, it is cliche-ridden and melodramatic.

Even in its earliest days, some remarkable films emerged: "My Sweet Charlie," "Silent Night Lonely Night," "Duel," "Brian's Song" and "Tribes."

But it has been in the past year that this maturing art form has come of age with such films as "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," "The Execution of Private Slovik," and "A Case of Rape."

"I think it's the future of television," said Herbert S. Schlosser, president of NBC. Brandon Stoddard, vice president of the Movie of the Week for ABC, said, "We're just at the beginning of a form that's tremendously exciting."

Producer Chuck Fries said, "I think we're going to have bigger and more expensive movies made for TV. The really big stars will come if you make it attractive enough for them." Fries is turning out more than half-a-dozen TV movies this season.

Between them, the three networks air about 100 original movies a year. They range from the 90-minute films that appear twice a week on ABC and once weekly on NBC to the two-and three-hour movies on CBS to such open-ended pictures as the six-hour "QBVII."

Universal Studios made the first TV movie, "Fame Is the Name of the Game," for NBC in 1966, and launched not only the TV movie but a long-running series, "The Name of the Game." From the start, the TV movie and the series pilot have been linked.

Three years later ABC plunged into the movie business in a big way.

The network proposed to air one 90-minute film weekly, with each film costing a little over half the $750,000 price tag for the NBC two-hour movies.

Barry Diller, then an ABC programming executive and now chairman of Paramount Pictures, gave Spelling $450,000 to make a film called "The Ballad of Andy Crocker."

A strong point of the TV movie is that it can hit an important social issue while it is still on everyone's mind. Like "A Case of Rape" last year and this season's "The Gun," which traces the ownership of a pistol and shows how it affects each person's life.

As with any new dramatic form, the TV movie built its own star structure. Spelling recalled, "We had tremendous difficulty getting stars to do them in the early days."

The superstars of the bread-and-butter TV movie drive up the ratings, yet are rarely asked to star in a theatrical film. Elizabeth Montgomery, star of "Bewitched" and "A Case of Rape," is a superstar; Elizabeth Taylor, who flopped in a TV movie, is not.

Producer Quinn Martin, biggest independent producer in television, said he has seen the movies change.

"If you couldn't say what the show was about in two lines, they wouldn't buy it," he said. "The attitude's different now...

"I've got a movie coming up called 'Terror on the 5:22.' It's about ripping off a train, and it's in a melodramatic frame.

"In the old days I'd have had to have a subplot — if you don't get to Croton on time somebody's going to have a baby. They don't ask for the melodramatic gimmicks any more."

TV's success story

Martin Sheen, in the title role of "The California Kid," is well ahead in the recent development seen as the future of television — the television movie. Sheen also starred in "The Execution of Private Slovik," one of the original television movies which in this past year have shown the coming-of-age of a new art form. And he has become one of the new form's superstars — they are rarely the big stars of theatrical movies.

Ask TV scout

High flying question

How does Jeannie fly and how can she blink her eyes and go anywhere she wants? — Leslie Hatson, Pensacola, Fla.

Jeannie, the genie of I Dream of Jeannie, as played by Barbara Eden, can do anything she wants through the magic of cameras and trick photography. For some flying scenes, performers wear a harness and a thin, but powerful, wire lets them "fly."

Just a good actor

I would like to know if Donald Madden of One Life to Live is blind in real life. — A Fan, Liverpool, Pa.

No, he's not.

Pat answer

Where can I write Pat Hingle, actor. — R.R.W., Charleston Heights, S.C.

Nothing but

Is Peter Bogdanovich, who hosted the Tonight Show recently, the son of Jerry Lewis? The truth please. — Mrs. A.W. Snow, Evansville, Ind.

The truth? Well, if you insist. The answer is no.

Mail for Dale

I would like to write to Dale Evans. Can you give me her address. — A Fan, Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Dale and her husband, Roy Rogers, are happily living in semi-retirement in Apple Valley, Calif. A letter addressed to her there would reach her.

A bald question

Could you please tell me if Telly Savalas, star of Kojak, shaves his head or is he naturally bald? — D. Runyan, Orlando, Fla.

Telly shaves his head, but supposedly because he is partially bald and he'd rather have all or nothing.

Missing man

There was a good movie on about a year ago called "Paper Man" with Eliot Street and Stephanie Powers. My mother and I saw it, but we never saw it being listed as repeated. Why? Also, is Ken Osmond, who played Eddie on Leave It To Beaver, now Alice Cooper? — Elicia Rosales, Santa Barbara, Calif.

"Paper Man" wasn't too critically acclaimed or highly rated, which explains its disappearance. No, Ken Osmond is not Alice Cooper. Neither is Jerry Mathers or Tony Dow. This is a recurring question.

Love in bloom

Is it true that Bill Hayes and Susan Seaforth of Days of Our Lives are romantically involved with one another? — Cindy McGee, Cairo, Ga.

A cynic would say the romance is over — they just got married. But we're romantics at heart and believe the romance has just begun and will continue happily ever after.

New series for adults

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The same folks who brought you "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" now proudly present a sugar-coated pill for adults on the PBS television network.

Called "Feeling Good," the 26-program series starting Nov. 20 will plug preventive medicine.

"We're trying to motivate people in their own behalf," explained CTW spokesman Eliot Tozer.

"We hope to reach several million people, but to do that we have to be entertaining enough to make them turn on their television sets week after week."

Thus, PBS viewers will be treated to comedian Bill Cosby remembering how his brother Russell looked when he got the whooping cough and was advised to raise his leg each time he coughed to prevent a hernia.

"But nowadays there is no whooping cough," Cosby concludes. "Not if you've had your shots."

Or sportscaster Howard Cosell saying, "To be a winner in life, you've got to have all the shots," as the viewer watches player after player sinking baskets.

The series, funded mainly by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, covers mental health, heart disease, weight control, nutrition, alcohol abuse, high blood pressure and other topics.

"We filmed a sequence on breast cancer last spring, but events have outrun us," Tozer said.

Burton is wrapped up in Churchill

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The first time Richard Burton met Winston Churchill, the great man wanted to use the actor's dressing room toilet.

"I was playing Hamlet at the Old Vic," Burton recalls. "He came backstage during one of the intervals and said, 'My Lord Hamlet,' bowed and asked: 'May I use your lavatory?"

The ebullient Welsh actor plays him in "The Gathering Storm," a 90-minute television special covering Churchill's rise to power at the start of World War II.

It will be aired by NBC-TV in the United States on Nov. 29, and at about the same time here to mark the 100th Anniversary of Churchill's birth.

A $720,000 co-production by the British Broadcasting Corp. and the American Hallmark Co. for the latter's "Hall of Fame" series, the special was shot at Churchill's country home, Chartwell, and such other British locations as 10 Downing Street, the residence of British prime ministers.

The Churchill role is one Burton considers among the big challenges of his 25-year career. He confesses it has given him some nervous shivers.

"I don't want to do a music hall impersonation of the man," he said in an interview. "That would be buffoonery. You can't impersonate a man so famous and well-known to everyone as he was.

"The only thing is to try and represent him."

Burton, temporarily gray-haired for the part, has dubbed Churchill's famous voice on film four times, his best-known effort for television being "Winston Churchill: The Valiant Years," an ABC-TV series aired in the U.S. from 1960 to 1963.

But "The Gathering Storm" is the first time the actor actually has appeared on screen as the bulldog-jowled Briton who led his country through World War II.

Made up for the part, Burton bears a close resemblance to the man. His hair is slicked back to resemble Churchill's near-baldness, he wears a rubber halter at the back of his neck to make it look shorter, his stomach is well padded, his craggy Welsh features are smoothed out to give him Churchill's famous bulldog look.

"Don't forget that in the House of Commons scene I must have a copy of Churchill's speech," he tells the studio manager. "Churchill never spoke off the cuff. He told his ministers always to write speeches beforehand."

Over lunch later at a nearby old English tavern, Burton still doesn't stray far from his role. He frequently slips into his Churchill voice, not so different from Burton's own resonant, well-rounded and carefully enunciated speech in which every word is given its separate identity, richness and color.

The challenge of Chruchill

This is the role Richard Burton considers among the big challenges of his career — playing Winston Churchill in the TV special, "The Gathering Storm," a scene from which is shown here. The 90-minute program, a co-production by the BBC and Hallmark, was shot in England, on the actual sites of events during the great statesman's rise to power at the start of World War II. (AP)

Mystery princess

Recently I watched an Abbott and Costello movie, "Jack and the Beanstalk." I said the princess was played by Florence Henderson. My daughter disagreed. Who is right? — Mrs. William, J. Miller, Lykens, Pa.

My mother would like to know what happened to Patty McCormick, who was in "The Bad Seed?" — The Pattersons, Titusville, Fla.

Patty grew up into a very pretty young lady and she is now reactivating a career that had been quiet for a few years. She appeared with Jean Stapleton in "Time of the Cuckoo" on the stage in Los Angeles and she has finished a role in William Castle's film, "The Haephestue Plague."

Fellow in the front of the line

I saw Michael Brandon in the movie "Third Girl From the Left" and thought he was terrific. What else has he done? Where can I write him? — C.D. Winjum, Orlando, Fla.

Michael has played opposite actresses like Carrie Snodgress and Cloris Leachman in TV movies. Presently he is filming a movie for CBS-TV called "Valerie." It's being filmed by Columbia Pictures TV, so you can write him at the studio, Colgems Square, The Burbank Studios, Burbank, Calif. 91505.

Farr out

What can you tell me about Felicia Farr, who I saw with Robert Stack in a TV flick recently. Shark O'Toole, Charlestown, S.C.

The major thing about Felicia, an actress who has been on TV a lot, is that she is Mrs. Jack Lemmon. Since her marriage to Jack, she has not worked as much on TV, but she's still seen from time to time.

Pearl one

Is Minnie Pearl dead or alive? She is regularly seen on TV and surely there aren't that many tapes ahead. — Mrs. W.L., Walhalla, S.C.

Minnie Pearl is very much alive.

TV Scout Reports

Producer Greg Garrison has a ridiculous problem. A Major Name has agreed to appear on the second of the series of specials; Dean Martin's Roasts. But because the big star, known for his blue eyes, is doing a second special around the time the Roast will be telecast in January, his name can't be used.

"Everybody who is in Las Vegas when we tape the show in November will know he is on," Greg says. "My question is, how do we keep them from talking?"

Meanwhile, Greg corralled other big stars, though not necessarily in show business, for the first Roast, a "tribute" to Bob Hope. For instance, President Ford and Henry Kissinger. How do you get a President to appear on an entertainment special?

"I picked up the telephone and called the White House," Greg said. He says it was not difficult at all to round up stars for the Hope tribute. "He is a sweet, kind, nice man. He does favors. He's there when he is needed. If someone needs him in Shanghai tomorrow, he's in Shanghai tomorrow. Now people are doing favors for him, and for Dean."

There were five people who were not able to be at the actual Hope Roast, so they were filmed in advance, with a studio audience, and a stuffed dummy seated on the dais, representing Hope. Yes, the dummy was wearing a tux.

The five were Jack Benny, Milton Berle, Ginger Rogers, Foster Brooks and Don Rickles. This time, when Rickles called someone a "dummy," he was telling the truth.

Linda Blair, of "The Exorcist" and TV's powerful "Born Innocent," says she and her family are thinking of moving West, where there's much more film work.

"The main drawback to that," Linda says, "is that the horse shows in California and the caliber of the riders cannot compare with those in the East. And that's important to me."

James Daly

Controversy comes to show

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — Ordinarily, CBS' Medical Center is about as controversial as an English muffin, but their episode due to air on Nov. 11 will change that image. That's the one about the aftermath involving a woman who has had breast cancer surgery.

I made the mistake of saying to James Daly, who has been the show's elder doctor for six years, that I thought the series was getting blander. He took exception to that and pointed to the "Tainted Lady" episode to make his point.

"I think the show has been getting more relevant," Daly said. "Since we're successful, we can now tackle themes — such as breast cancer — that we couldn't or wouldn't touch before."

The episode in question was written and filmed before the breast cancer operations for either Mrs. Gerald Ford or Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller. And there was some talk of shelving the show, for propriety, but ultimately CBS and MGM elected to air it as it is.

Daly himself has recently undergone hospitalization for real, and, he says, his experience has "probably changed" the way he plays Dr. Paul Lochner on Medical Center.

Last year he was sick with hepatitis and ultimately missed 10 shows. He was in bed for four months.

"It turned out," he says, "that I was a good patient. I figured out that there are good patients and bad patients and that maybe if you're good and do what the doctors tell you to do, you'll get better faster."

He says his illness not only changed the way he looks at medicine but it changed him as a man, changed his values, changed his way of looking at life.

He is, he says, now "out of love with acting," or perhaps even stronger. Sometimes he says he's "sick of acting."

"I may be putting it too strongly," he says, but his eyes deny his words. "Really, what I'm trying to say is that I'm going through something everybody goes through, certainly every actor.

"I don't want it misunderstood. I'm not knocking Medical Center. I think we have a good show, good entertainment, and as authentic and realistic as it can be. Why, I get lots of mail from people saying they have followed the advice they have heard on the show and it's done them good — that's fine, because we have the tops in technical advisers. (But they should consult their own doctors when ill.)

"I'm grateful to the show and always will be. For me, it's an unbelievably good deal. On the average, I work only two days a week and I make a lot of money. For an actor my age, it's fantastic.

"But the thing is I've been acting a long time and I'm tired of it. I guess I put it the best way the first time I said it — I've fallen out of love with acting."

So enjoy James Daly's acting on Medical Center and other things while you can. He may not be doing it much longer, which would be a pity because he's one of the good ones.

Carlin's point is to make a point

By STEPHEN FORD

NEW YORK (NEA) — It's not his unconventional attire that stuns you in learning he grossed over $300,000 last year and expects to exceed that this year. Many show biz types dress bohemian as part of their occupation's endemic eccentricity.

It's not the wispy beard or shoulder-length hair either. Most rock musicians sport more upholstery on their heads and face than the average person does on his entire body.

Then what is it that makes comedian George Carlin so incongruous?

Carlin, 38, is among the humor avante garde led by Lily Tomlin, Richard Pryor and Woody Allen — comedians who don't depend on mother-in-law jokes as their staple fare. What sets Carlin apart from even them, however, is his over-all "hippie" image. Certainly no drawback these days when just about every decent American family has at least one "freak" in its midst. Carlin's image is only one facet of a man whose other sides reveal a sensitive, intelligent and articulate observer of society.

He is usually referred to by the press as a latter day Lennie Bruce. It is an analogy Carlin is weary of.

"If someone wants to say I'm a lot like Lennie and my material is similar," he said, "then let them also say I'm a lot like Jonathan Winters or Mel Brooks or Don Rickles because I've used a little inspiration. I like them all and don't want to be considered a rip-off of any comedian, even Lennie Bruce."

Carlin, dressed as usual in faded jeans and wearing a maroon tee-shirt with "Raisin" in white letters across the chest, appears ever casual but always capable. He can make jokes about his obscenity bust in Milwaukee two years ago, then quickly reel around to the subject of bigotry or the plight of the Irish race. Though his subject can be deadly serious and something close to his heart, Carlin punctuates all conversation with a repertoire of voices and characterizations that humorously, but effectively, make his point.

With three very successful albums out, Carlin's fans know him to be totally irreverent with the most sacred cows fair game for a verbal assault generously laced with street talk and vulgarisms — but there's always a reason for anything

GEORGE CARLIN

Carlin says, nothing is calculated to shock.

But Carlin can be shocked and he does have some concept of "bad taste" though his critics say otherwise.

"There isn't a lot that outrages me," he said, "except racial jokes, ethnic jokes. I find nothing funny about that — just tasteless."

But religion enjoys no such protection from raconteur Carlin. It is one of his most fertile areas for routines. "Religion is self-imposed, race is not. Nobody asks to be born black or white, but people voluntarily choose their religion. I am an Irish Catholic from New York and I use that in my act. I'm not putting down Irish Catholics when I do it, I'm telling a story. And besides," he grins, "it's okay to hit your own own gang.

"All my routines, religion included, have an underlying theme. I'm trying to make a point, the comedy is metaphor. If I can get my message together, then convey it to you and give you a laugh in the process, great! I've filled three roles, jester, sage and poet. And we all have our ideological roles, there are politicians, essayists, followers and us, the comedians. I portray the sympathetic stupe trying to make some sense out of it all but instead can only see the absurdity.

"A few years ago I agreed to help Jesse Unruh in California when he ran against (Ronald) Reagan. He lost, California lost and I lost because I saw, close-up, the absurdity of sincerity versus slick. I'm out of politics, never again. I'm a comic person and always will be."

To see Carlin in concert unveils yet another facet of him. Interspersed with his funny stories is an inmate sense of grace as he glides across the stage in an imaginary street scene or accompanies his routine with obscene mime. Even speaking to him privately he cannot stay still as his hands dance in mid-air and fingers pirouette while he talks.

Though he's down on acting, especially after an unhappy period in his life a few years ago when all he thought about was burning up the screen with his acting talent but instead left Hollywood cold, Carlin would now consider doing a movie but something tailored to his style.

"Something I have some control over, maybe write some of the script. But I can't memorize lines and pretend like a good actor, hell, that's why I got out of acting a long time ago," he explains.

With his new album "Toledo Window Box" to be released soon, Carlin will be touring the college circuit frequently and if you can't see him live, his animated and scrawny 5 foot 10 inch frame will be seated at the host's desk of the Tonight Show regularly.

"I'll keep doing the Tonight Show, it's good for me," he explains. "My hosting it makes the kind of people who like that show aware that there are people around with something to say, too — we're not all on the show strictly to promote ourselves. Anyway, I like playing interviewer once in awhile."

TV scout reports

On Paul Sand In Friends and Lovers, Sand plays the bass violin (he actually doesn't but his character does.) Sand says the idea of the character being a symphony musician happened early in the show's evolution but there was considerable doubt and argument about what precise instrument he would play.

"Grant Tinker, the producer, and some others even went so far as to have lunch with members of the Los Angeles Philharmonic," Sand says, "to discuss it with them. And everybody concluded that the bass violin was the funniest instrument there was."

Linda Blair didn't look too much like an ingenue when she attended a 20th anniversary party for Playboy at Hugh Hefner's mansion recently. She wore a low-necked black pajama outfit with sparkly drop earrings and a diamond bracelet. It was a reasonably sophisticated outfit for a young lady of her mid-teens. She was with two contemporaries, both girls.

Producer Jerry Weintraub, who handled the recent live Frank Sinatra concert from Madison Square Garden — the one called the Main Event, had a funny crack about Howard Cosell, who performed the introduction. "Knowing Cosell," Weintraub said, "we should have called it the Vain Event."

Helen Hunt, who is 10, has been signed by producer Cy Chernak to play Jessica Walter's daughter, Jill, in Amy Prentiss. Helen, who played Joanna Pettet's daughter in the TV movie, "Frontier Woman," will be in all three of the Amy Prentiss segments which join the Sunday Mystery Movie.

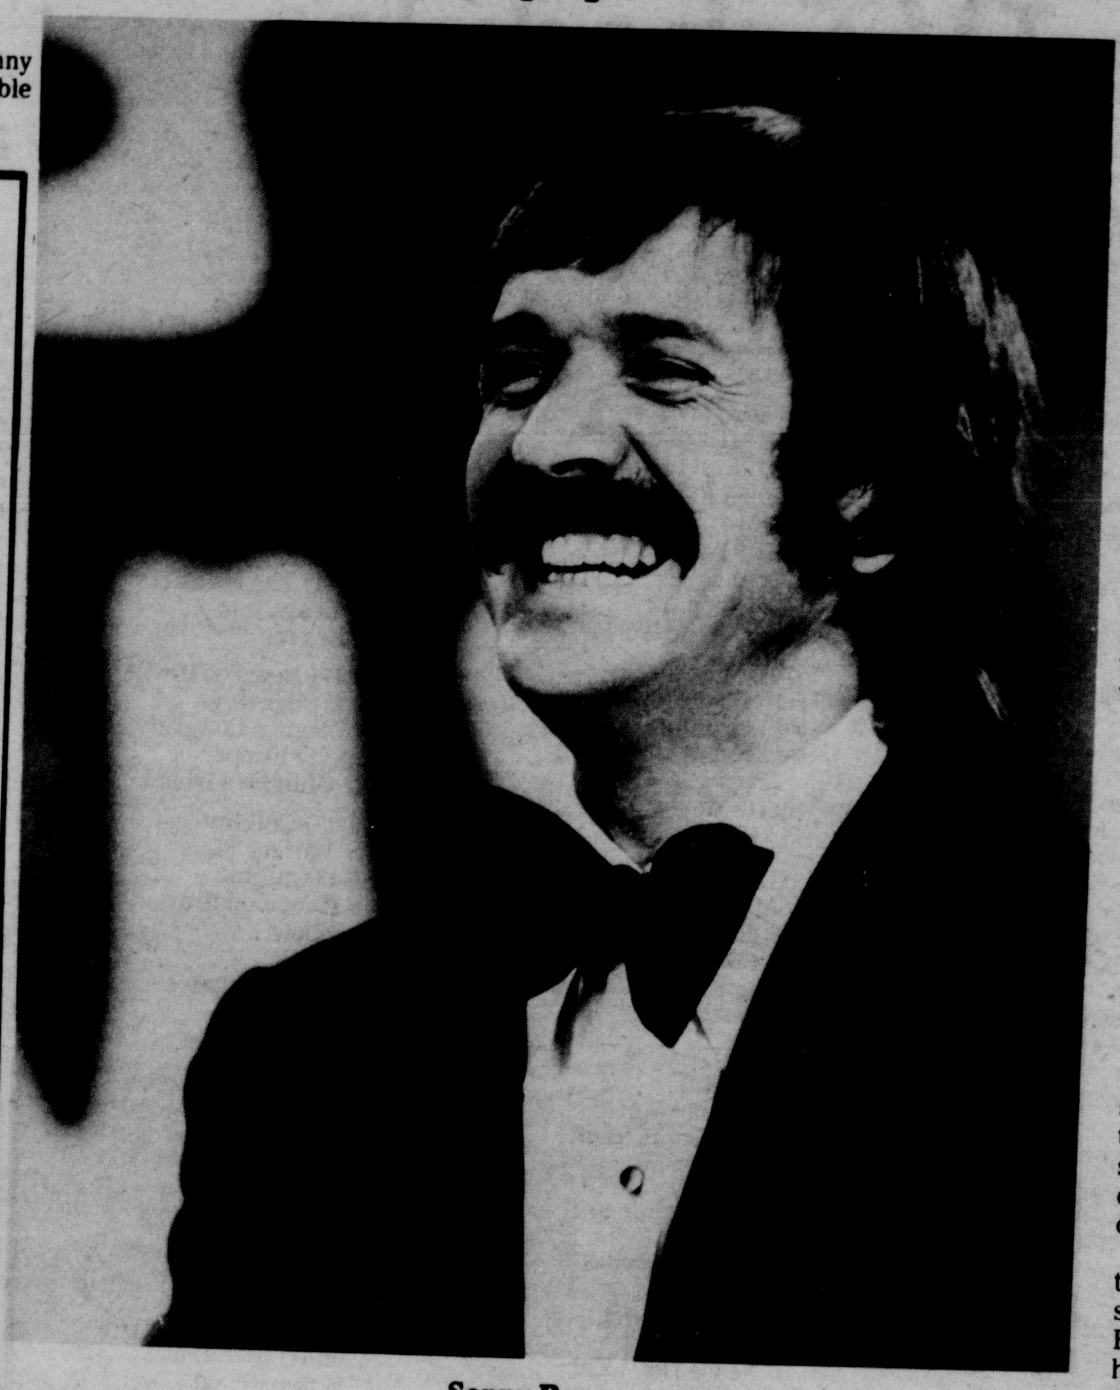
By JOAN CROSBY

HOLLYWOOD — Sonny Bono thinks he is in a terrible spot.



Sonny Bono

"Everyone in the industry thinks it's a terrible spot," he says, "but ABC seems content because they are winning the night."

Sonny's terrible spot is the one his Sonny Comedy Revue is on, every Sunday night, starting 30 minutes after Apple's Way and The Wonderful World of Disney have started.

But no matter what happens to the series and, Sonny says, "Logically I think it would be moved before being cancelled," he is pleased. He feels he has proved wrong those in the industry who said he'd never be able to stand up and entertain by himself.

"I am aware of the talk and I understand it. I have always been a handicapped performer. I'm not a singer per se. You can't put your finger on what I do. Cher can sing and she is so beautiful," he says.

"Sure, when you're used to working with someone for 11 years, the first time you're out there alone you feel as if you've left off your clothes. You're not complete. Understand, the talk that I couldn't make it on my own doesn't make me angry. I don't hide anything. I don't lie. I relate to the public and they identify with me."

When set changes are taking place during the taping of Sonny's show, he talks to the audience and someone always brings up Cher.

"And when they do," Sonny says, "I'll flat out say I still love her very much. We probably had the most public split ever and the people who care deserve some answers."

He also says his aim is to win an Emmy.

"I think we got robbed last year. Maybe they thought it would be embarrassing if Cher and I had to get up on stage to accept it. Gee, if we had won we could have gone along with the traditional system where I would get custody of it at 6 p.m. on Friday and return it at 6 p.m. Sunday, plus a week at Christmas. It would come with a nanny and I would pay Cher for its cleaning."

And that made Sonny think of alimony.

"It's funny. Now no one seems to get married but the courts don't accept the fact that a woman and man are living together. So the husband still pays. It's like the husband is paying for another man who is living with the ex-wife and it's hard to think of that. Especially when the man has millions of his own."

"Are you talking from personal experience?" I asked Sonny.

He smiled a small smile. "Could be."

Show isn't great, just a bit better

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It's not one of our great shows. But the comforting thing is that even our worst shows are better than most of the other series that are on television."

Mary Tyler Moore was letting it all hang out. The show she referred to was "A Boy's Best Friend," and it marked her debut as a director. She was frank (modest?) about its quality, but she left no doubt about her pride in the series itself, "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

The CBS Saturday night romp remains a television phenomenon. Not only does the show itself maintain a consistently high quality of comedy, but her MTM Enterprises has also spawned winners in "The Bob Newhart Show," "Rhoda" and "Friends and Lovers."

Since she and her husband, Grant Tinker, head the enterprises, there is no need to ask how she got the job as director. But why?

"Last season we had a couple of directors on the show that were—well, less than exciting," she said in her trailer-dressing room at CBS Studio Center after a strenuous dance lesson.

"I thought about how hard all of us in the cast had to work in directing ourselves, without hurting the directors' feelings.

"Then a few weeks ago I was in Grant's office and we were talking with Arthur Price (MTM executive) about a show that was coming up. 'You know,' said, 'I think I'd like to direct.'

"They spun around and said, 'Good for you!' 'Terrific!' And so I was committed."

The production staff had to plan carefully for Mary's directorial debut, fashioning a script in which her acting duties were minimal.

The story concerns Ted Baxter, the pouter-pigeon TV announcer, and his discovery of his mother's plan to be married.

"Ted completely falls apart," the star-director related, "He is a hypochondriac anyway, and now all of his oedipal instincts well up and make him a complete wreck.

"Then he gets a call from his mother—we never see her in the show—saying that she isn't going to get married after all; she's just going to live with the man. That destroys Ted altogether."

The segment will appear Nov. 23.

Mary admitted that she had some trepidation about directing because "I'm not a leader; I'm a joiner, a listener, a reactor."

Taking charge of a set was "alien to my nature, and I kept asking myself, 'Am I up to it?'

"Finally I just did what I do in acting. I knew what was expected of me and what I expected of the other actors. So I tried to draw that from them."

Here's the word: Stevenson is leaving show

HOLLYWOOD — Perhaps next to the burning issue of whether or not Hank Aaron will really retire, the question of McLean Stevenson hangs heaviest over America's hearts.

Will he leave M-AS-H, where he's so perfectly cast as Henry Blake, the unit's commanding officer? Or won't he?

Well, gang, here's the word right from the colonel himself: he will definitely leave M-A-S-H at the end of this season's filming.

"I wanted out a year ago," Stevenson said, "but I eventually decided to stay on. I've always felt I was with the best ensemble show ever put together but nobody is irreplaceable."

He might have stayed on because he basically likes the part and certainly likes the people he's working with but he got a great offer from NBC. And most of us welcome the merry knock of opportunity. Stevenson is no exception.

"I got a great deal from NBC," he says. "I'll have my own variety show next fall — no pilot, it's all set — as well as the right to act in Movies-of-the-Week. I can also produce movies and pilots. I'll substitute for Johnny Carson on Tonight, and some other things. It's a three-year contract."

The variety show will be The McLean Stevenson Show — "I've worked hard enough for anything I do from now on to carry my name" — and he's working on plans for it now, while shooting his last few episodes with Hawkeye, Trapper and all those loveable nuts.

"I think I'll start off with a monologue," he says, "and I'll work in some of the sketches and I'll even do some singing. I'm not too bad at singing, you know."

He knows what he does well and what he doesn't do well. He says in his comedy he's OK as long as he sticks to things he knows personally.

"If I talk about things that have actually happened to me," he says, "I'm all right. But if I try to do one of those, "A funny thing happened to me on the way to the studio' routines, I'm dead."

He's done enough stand-up comedy routines in enough different places by now to understand his own pros and cons. He worked Las Vegas and, he says, he got his audiences smiling — "not laughing out loud, but smiling."

He says he prefers doing material that hits home, routines about things that happen to everybody. His goal isn't belly laughs but a nod and a smile and maybe a raucous chuckle.

"In Vegas," he says, "my father came to see me and smiled at my material. Then he went to see Foster Brooks and nearly died laughing. He told me I should get an act like Foster Brooks had. I could have killed him."

But has Foster Brooks got a three-year deal with NBC for his own variety show?

Don Herbert ("Mr. Wizard")

The 'wizard' is coming back to TV

HOLLYWOOD — It has been almost 10 years since Don Herbert, known to millions as Mr. Wizard, went off the air. In a somewhat limited fashion, he is about to make his return.

On Nov. 27, as CBS telecasts a GE Theater program called "Things in Their Season," a drama starring Patricia Neal and Ed Flanders, the commercials will be handled by Herbert. Only he doesn't call them commercials. To him they're "informationals."

Herbert had his program of popular science for 14½ years, from 1951 to 1965. In those days, he did 39 a year and, he says, each show averaged 10 scientific demonstrations. That's a total of some 5,650 demonstrations, which is a lot.

He's been busy in the years since NBC cancelled his show. He was given an immediate grant to produce eight specials with great scientists for the NET network. And he began making films for classroom use. Altogether, he made nine 20-minute films and nine that were somewhat shorter.

At the moment, besides preparing his "informationals" for the GE Theater he's finishing a film on nuclear power for schools, which he did at the behest of California Edison.

He did work for GE Theater for eight years, in the days when it was a weekly half-hour show and the host was an actor named Ronald Reagan.

"They called me a little while ago," he says, "and asked if I'd do some more for this coming Nov. 27 show. I'm supposed to explain the nature of electricity and its ramifications today in light of the present energy picture."

He'll do a 30-second opening and closing and four two-minute "informationals" to be inserted betwen the acts.

Does this indicate a possible rebirth of Mr. Wizard on TV? Herbert isn't sure.

"I enjoy working on TV," he says, "but TV has changed. They don't have the quiet shows they used to have. But I feel there must be a place for my kind of programming. I'm not too encouraged, however — you know TV, nothing ever comes back."

Herbert now lives a quiet, rural life in a quiet, rural community about an hour's drive from Los Angeles. He has his own production company there where he makes his classroom films and does his other work.

He looks virtually the same as he did in his glory days. He says the people who recognize him are mostly those in the 20-to-30-year-old bracket, who grew up with him.

Staged love turns to real thing

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — It was all so romantic. They met playing characters who meet and they fell in love playing characters who fall in love.

But then reality took over. Susan Seaforth and Bill Hayes were playing in a soap opera and real life hardly ever twists and turns like soap opera life.

Susan and Bill first had met when their characters (Julie Olson and Doug Williams) met on NBC's Days of Our Lives show. And, as Julie and Doug fell in love, so did Susan and Bill.

But then the parallel stories began to diverge. On the soap opera, strange things began happening to Julie and Doug.

"On the show," Susan says, "Doug Williams wound up marrying Julie Olson's mother — for her $5 million. In real life, Susan and Bill are still going strong, after three years."

Susan Seaforth has been playing Julie Olson on Days of Our Lives for six years and meeting Bill Hayes is only one reason she's grateful to the show. Another reason is that it's steady work. And a third reason is that, she says, she is doing a show marked by fine acting.

"The acting on our program," she says, "is as good as anything I've ever seen anywhere."

Things move quickly in soap opera life. Susan started out as a teen-ager. She says her character is now pushing 35.

"I gave birth to a son on the show," she says, "about four or five years ago. Now, four or five years later, he's in military school."

Naturally, she would love to do a big role in a big movie but she says there's a lot to be said for soap opera life.

"I have security," she says, "and that's important to me. There are very few actors who've worked 52 weeks of the year for six years. And there's no end in sight."

Susan is a local Los Angeles girl. Her parents were divorced when she was very small. Her mother was an actress and recognized the same spark in her pretty and precocious daughter. At four, small Susan was doing a part with a touring Metropolitan Opera production of "Madame Butterfly."

She's been acting ever since. She did have one slow period about the time she was 16.

"I looked older than I was," she says, "but, since I was only 16 and still legally a child, I could only work a few hours a day. So I didn't get hired very much. I began to seriously consider becoming a history teacher."

But, at 18, her legal status changed and the jobs started coming again and history lost a teacher.

Like most soap opera stars, she marvels at the loyalty and fanaticism of her viewers. She thinks the best word to use is "hooked" — "They get positively hooked on the show." And she is inundated with greeting cards from the hookees on every conceivable holiday.

Susan Seaforth

TV scout reports

Remeber the good old days when a dollar was a buck? Dabbs Greer does. The fine character actor (now playing Rev. Aldenmon NBC's The Little House On the Prairie) remembers when he taught school in Mountain Grove, Mo.

"That was between 1940 and 1943," he says, "and they paid me the munificent sum of $90 a month. Out of that, I was able to eat, sleep, buy my clothing and I used to take vacation trips to New York. And I still was able to save some money."

Today? Ha!

Ray Andrade, the Chicano associate producer of Chico and the Man, says he loves show business.

"But," he says, "I've found that I have to work twice as hard as anybody else to prove that I can do the work."

Do you ever get fed up with being a sex queen and want to change your image?—H. C., Hollywood, Fla.

● When people teased me (and some still do) I was resentful, especially if it was done with a sneer. I was embarrassed the first time I saw myself on the screen. But not any more. I'm used to it, and I feel there's a need for what I project. People think every sex symbol wants to change her style. There's no stigma in being a sex queen. I've gotten lots of range out of it. I'm interested in new roles—but I don't really want to lose my image.

FOR PRESIDENT FORD

I was quite impressed to hear that you weigh within six pounds of your college football playing weight. Has your waist size changed much?—T. F. Morgan, Sacramento, Calif.

● My waist size has gone from 32 to 38. While my weight has stayed close to my playing weight, my body structure has slipped a bit.

FOR KURT VONNEGUT, JR.,
author of "Breakfast of Champions" and other novels

What thing in your life most influenced your unique style of writing?—Ken Fasman, New City, N.Y.

● There have been millions of influences, of course, but the biggest ones were my parents and my brother and sister, all of whom spoke English beautifully and were marvelous at making jokes. My humor is Indiana humor, and I was taught by newspapermen to keep my sentences terribly simple.

FOR MORTY GUNTY, actor and comic

Has your recent major surgery had any effect on your work? —R. H., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

● It's made me appreciate work all the more! (I almost died when 90 percent of my stomach was removed.) The biggest adjustment is to eat small amounts often, and to stop while I'm still hungry. If I don't, I'll get sick. I don't drink, because I can now get drunk on one drink. I must eat every two hours, even during the night. I've also had my spleen removed.

FOR CONGRESSWOMAN BELLA ABZUG (D-N.Y.)

Why do you always wear a hat?—Yvonne Wilcox, East Lansing, Mich.

● I began wearing hats as a young lawyer because it helped establish my professional identity. Before that, whenever I was at a meeting, someone would ask me to get coffee—they assumed I was a secretary. Nothing wrong with being a secretary—but I had other plans. Wearing hats became an asset when I ran for Congress the first time and did street campaigning. People asked, "Which one is Bella?" And the reply was, "The one with the hat."

FOR LORETTA SWIT *of "M*A*S*H"*

What effect has the popularity of "M*A*S*H" had on your private life?"—J. S., Utica, N.Y.

● I find I'm known wherever I go. Consequently I go to fewer and fewer places. I can't handle the crowds and attention. I do appreciate it, but I can't cope with it.

FOR REX REED, movie critic

Some people say that the lack of good movie roles for women is a political conspiracy by male chauvinists. Do you agree?—John Townsend, Austin, Texas

● No, it's a commercial conspiracy, not a political conspiracy. The film industry is now run by ten people. They're all men, and these men are not in business to lose money. So they're going to keep doing copies of things that have been successful.

FOR SEN. HOWARD H. BAKER, JR. (R-Tenn.)

Why were the American people not given the freedom to vote for or against prayer in schools?—Mrs. Joan Mansfield, Hertford, N.C.

● As sponsor of proposed legislation to reaffirm the right of voluntary prayer, I share your concern. Overwhelming support for voluntary prayer has been expressed in state referendums and resolutions in state legislatures. Several days of hearings on this issue were conducted last year, but as yet no conclusive action has been taken.

FOR DELLA REESE

How does your daughter feel about your being a celebrity? —F. G., Stockton, Calif.

● She doesn't! She thinks of me as just her mother. There's no such thing as a "celebrity." We're merely human beings with different jobs. "Dumpsey," who's 15, flips over The Jackson Five. But she has no professional interest in singing —she wants to be a lawyer.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

The old-style circus in a tent seems to be a vanishing breed. Why? And why are there fewer and fewer animal acts each year?—A. Gibson, Hamilton, Ohio

● According to George Hamid, who owns the Steel Pier in Atlantic City as well as the Hamid-Morton Circus, the tent-style circus is fading out for two reasons: economics and transportation problems. It's far cheaper and there are fewer headaches in moving personnel for an arena-type presentation than there are in moving a tent with all its equipment and accessories. As for animals, the Endangered Species Act is primarily responsible. Every year, new restrictions are imposed upon circus owners, making it more and more difficult for them to acquire and train animals. This applies to domestic animals, such as dogs, as well as to the exotic lions and tigers. In Hamid's view, it's not the animals who are endangered—it's the American circus.

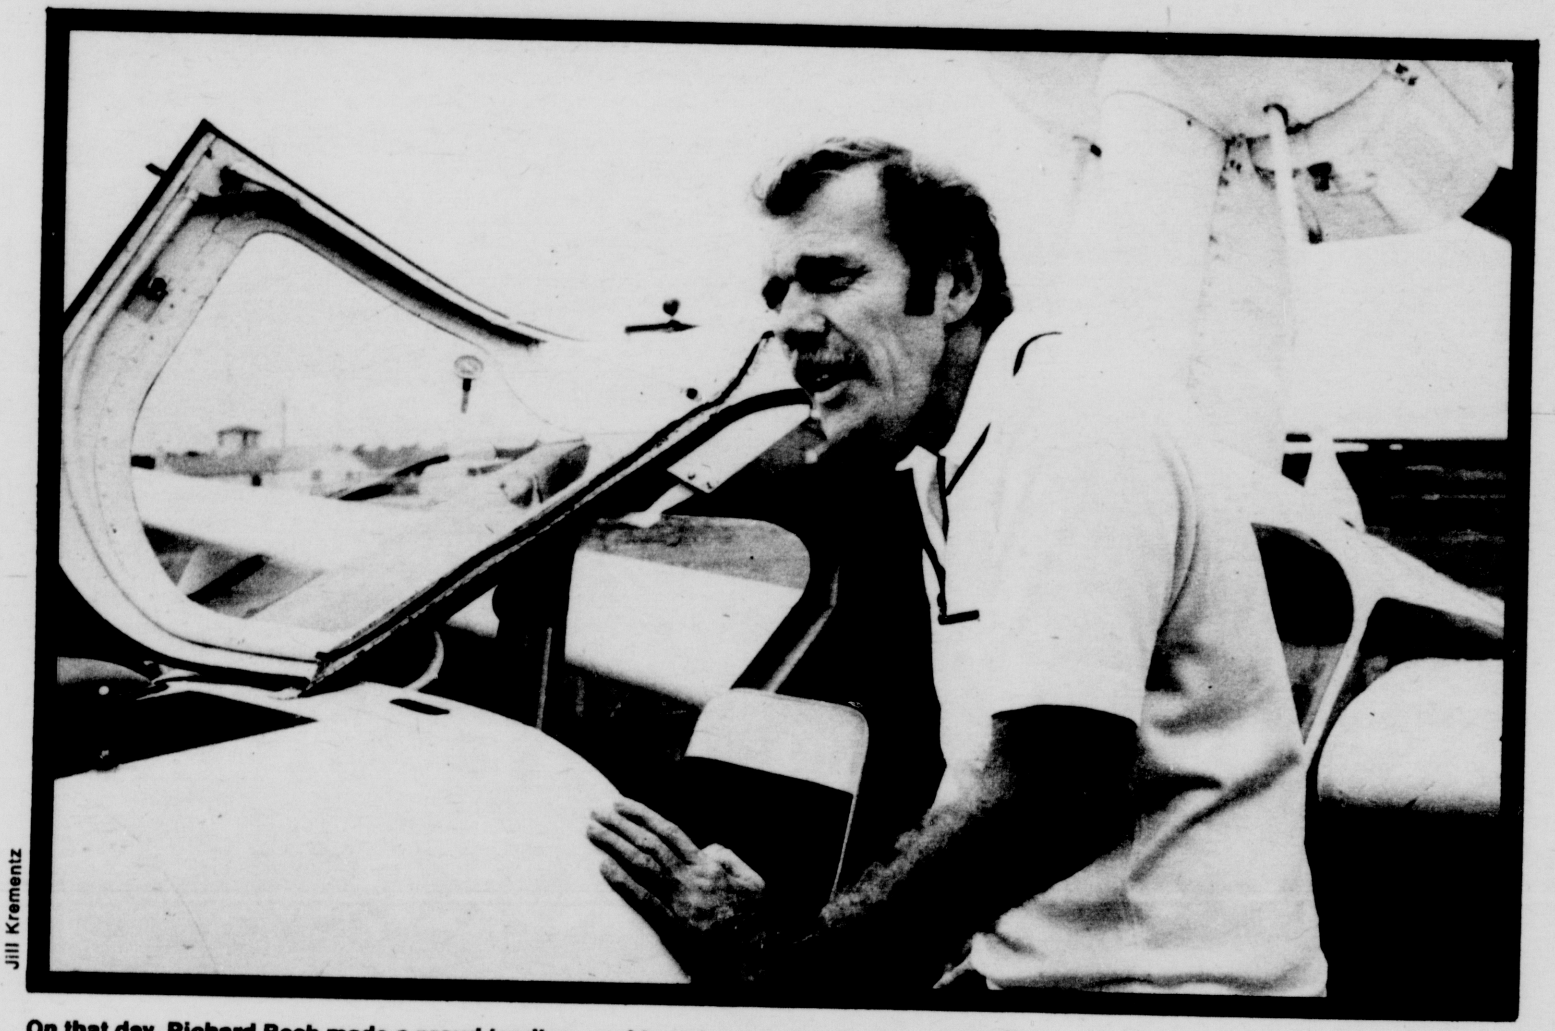
By Jonathan Livingston Seagull's Creator:

In a Pilot's Brush With Death– The Meaning of Life



Jill Krementz

On that day, Richard Bach made a proud landing—and heard an accusing voice within.

By Richard Bach

Author of "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" and the new book, "A Gift of Wings" (Delacorte, $8.95).

It was supposed to have been a simple inside loop, out off the airways, way up high, just for fun. With the wind shredding itself in a great thundering hundred-mile cry through the flying wires, I lifted the biplane's nose through a steep climb, through straight up, through an inverted climb . . . then stalled there, hanging from the seat belt upside down over thirty-two hundred feet of clear and empty air. The control stick went dead in my glove, the airplane wallowed lazily this way and that, and fell flat, like a giant slow-motion pancake, out of the sky. Dust and hay from the cockpit floor poured up past my goggles and the wind changed from clean thunder to a strange loud buffeting hum, a thirty-foot bumblebee in agony.

The nose made no particular effort to point down, the engine stopped in zero G, and for the first time in my life I was pilot of an airplane that was falling . . . just as if it had been dericked off the ground and cut loose.

I was annoyed at first, then apprehensive at the way the controls didn't respond, then I was quite suddenly afraid. Thoughts flicked through me like tracers: This thing is out of control there's altitude to bail out but my airplane will be killed this is the lousiest loop I am the worst pilot what's this falling, airplanes don't fall like this c'mon get that nose down. . . .

"The biplane fell down from the sky, wallowing, buffeting. What am I doing here, the voice screamed. It took a second to answer. I'm living."

Through it all, the observer behind my eyes watched with interest, not caring whether I lived or died. Another part of me was scared to panic, and cried this is not fun I don't like this at all WHAT AM I DOING HERE?

What Am I Doing Here? The question has fired itself, I'll bet, at every pilot who ever lived. When John Montgomery set himself to cut his glider loose from the balloon that carried it aloft, he must have thought, What am I doing here? When Wilbur Wright knew that he couldn't get the wings level before the Flyer hit the ground; when the test pilots discovered that the Eaglerock Bullet or the Salmson Sky-Car, after fifteen turns of a spin, would not recover; when the mail pilots, lost above a sea of fog, heard the engine die on the last of its fuel—they all heard that question from the terrified voice within them, though they may not have taken time to answer.

"Any pilot who says he's never been scared," goes the saying, "is either stupid or a liar." There are exceptions, perhaps, but not many.

For me it was spins, as I learned to fly. Bob Keech would sit calmly over there in the right seat of the Luscombe and say, "Give me a three-turn spin to the right." I'd hate him for it and go tense as steel and dread the moments ahead and bring the stick full back and force right rudder, my face dead as old soap. I'd hang on, eyes squinted to count the turns, recover at last. I'd think in pain as I leveled, I know what he's going to say. He's going to say, Now give me three turns left. And Keech would sit over there, arms folded, and say, "Now give me three turns left."

Yet that hour would fly past and we'd come skimming into the pattern and land and I'd barely set foot on the ground when my fear was forgotten and I was desperate to fly again.

What Am I Doing Here? The student on cross-country hears the question while he searches the checkpoint thirty seconds overdue. Many other pilots hear it when the weather around them turns from good to not-so-good, or when the engine misses a beat or the oil temperature turns a shade too high and the oil pressure a shade too low.

It is one thing to lean back in office chairs and talk about how great it is to fly, it is another thing entirely when you are up in the air and the engine blows up and the windshield goes liquid gold in oil and the only place to land is that little tiny oat field down there, along the crest of the hill, with a fence at the end.

When it happened to me, there was a continuous dialogue all the way down to the ground, or, more precisely, there were two monologues. One part of me is intent on turning to final approach, holding airspeed just so, shutting off magnetos and fuel, judging the glide, steepening the bank because we are too high. . . . The other part is gabbling in fright. "See? You're scared, aren't you? Big deal, you've flown all these airplanes and you think you like to fly but now you're afraid! First you were scared the engine was on fire, now you're scared you'll miss the field, aren't you? YOU'RE A COWARD, YOU'RE ALL BLUFF AND TALK AND YOU'RE NOT HAPPY NOW AND YOU WISH YOU WERE ON THE GROUND AND YOU ARE AFRAID!"

That day we made the landing in fairly fine style, propeller stopped, oil streaking the airplane in the strange beauty of liquids blown by the wind, and I was a proud peacock to set it down without a scratch. But even as I congratulated myself on the landing, I remembered that accusing voice telling me how scared I had been, and was distressed to admit that it had been right. Afraid or not, though, here was the

. . . and the Marine Corps was born.

Now, every November 10th, we celebrate. But it is more than a birthday party.

It is a time at which we remember all our valorous comrades who fought . . . on the angry beaches of Iwo Jima . . . in the now peaceful woods of the French Argonne . . . in the frozen mountains of Korea . . . and the sweltering valleys of Vietnam.

We remember carrying the banners forward, and hating the fight, and the noise . . . and pressing the enemy until it was quiet again.

We respect those memories this day. And every day.

By the way we look. The way we march. The way we train our men:

We deliver United States Marines.

Every man as good as the one before him.

That is where we stand.

If there are a few good men ready to stand with us . . . we're open tomorrow morning. November 11. Early.

TRY THIS NEW PIPE "FREE"

So different that it's patented by the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT patent number 3267941

FOR 30 DAYS!

This top grade Mediterranean briar incorporates a sensational invention that contradicts every idea you've ever had about pipe smoking. It completely eliminates breaking-in. Tars, sludge, bite, and bitterness never reach your mouth. You get cleaner, cooler, tastier, moisture-free thoroughly enjoyable smoking. You can try it before you buy it.

E. A. Carey

Give it 30 days —

No cigarette, no cigar, nor any other pipe can give you the full rich flavor, aroma, deep down satisfaction, enjoyment, and peace of mind that you get from a Carey Pipe.

You may be a pipe smoker with a rack full of pipes and still searching for the ideal smoke, or perhaps you would like to switch to a pipe to cut down on cigarettes or expensive cigars.

The Carey Pipe may look like any ordinary pipe, but it's a lot different! In fact, there's nothing like it in the whole world. The Carey Pipe is made of the finest aged Mediterranean briar — but, its big secret lies in the exclusive patented "MAGIC INCH," cleverly concealed in a bite proof nylon stem.

It's Not a Filter

The "Magic Inch" is not a filter that gets soggy and loaded with foul smelling goo. A soggy, foul smelling filter transmits its stale foul odor into each successive puff of smoke, creating more problems than it solves.

It's Not a Trap

The "Magic Inch" is not a trap collecting moisture that gurgles with every draw. It is not a trap that must be cleaned after every smoke.

It's Almost Magic

Not my magic but NATURE'S OWN MAGIC. Warm winds pick up moisture by evaporation from the oceans, lakes, rivers, and streams, lift it high into the atmosphere where the cooler upper air squeezes it into drops of water that fall back to earth in its most perfect state of purity. Just as the colder upper air of the atmosphere causes rain, the cool air entering the "Magic Inch" chamber through the special louvers of the patented Carey stem, causes immediate condensation of the moisture in the smoke where it drops to the bottom of the chamber, is absorbed by the natural fiber sleeve of the "Magic Inch," and in turn, is evaporated into the outside air. No accumulation ever remains to form sludge or slugs of bitter tasting goo. The "Magic Inch" also mixes purifying oxygen with the smoke from the tobacco, in perfectly controlled proportions, cooling the smoke, eliminating all tongue bite, and creating MELLOWNESS, MILDNESS, and SWEETNESS that was never before enjoyed in pipe smoking.

Today, over one hundred and fifty thousand pipe smokers smoke Carey Pipes almost exclusively. They all got started by accepting my most unusual offer to test a Carey Pipe for 30 days, without any risk on their part whatsoever.

They were all granted the same option which is yours also. After 30 days, if you agree that the Carey Pipe is the best smoke of your life, you may keep it; if you don't agree, whack it with a hammer and return the broken pieces to me. The trial has cost you nothing! How many businesses are that sure of their product?

What Am I Doing Here is not supposed to have an answer. The voice that asks is hoping we'll reply without thinking, "I shouldn't be here at all. It is a mistake for man to fly and if I get out of this alive I will never be so foolish as to fly again." The voice is content only when we do nothing at all, when we are completely and wholly idle. It is the voice of paradox, of self-preservation carried to the point of death.

The way to make time pass slowly is to stay absolutely bored. Bored, minutes are months, days take years to pass. The way for us to live the longest possible life is to sit ourselves in a blank gray room, waiting for nothing, through the years. Yet there's the ideal that the voice asks us to choose—to stay in this body, this room, for as long as we can.

Jill Krementz

What Am I Doing Here has another answer, however, one we aren't supposed to find . . . I Am Living.

Remember, as a child, the challenge of the high board at the swimming pool? There came the time, after days of looking up at that board, when you finally climbed the cold wet steps to the high platform. From there it looked higher than ever, the water looked a thousand feet down. Perhaps you heard it then, What am I doing here? Why did I climb up here? I want to go back where it's safe. But there were only two ways down: the steps to defeat or a dive to victory. No other choice. Stay on the board as long as you wish, but soon or late you must choose.

You stood on the edge, shivering in the hot sun, deathly afraid. At last you leaned too far forward, it was too late to retreat, and you dived off the edge. Remember that? Remember the joy that fired you back to surface so that you broke clear like a porpoise, streaming water, shouting YEEHOO! The high board was conquered in that instant, and you spent the rest of the day climbing steps and diving down, for fun.

Climbing a thousand high boards, we live. In a thousand dives, demolishing fear, we turn into human beings.

That's the charm, that's the siren song of flight: Flight is your chance, pilot, to destroy fears on a grand scale, in a high and beautiful country. The answer to every fear, be it of high board or of three-turn spin, is knowing. I know how to hold my body as I leave the board, so the water will not hurt me. I know how the wing stalls and the rudder forces it to spin. I know that the world is going to blur like a runaway green propeller and the controls will fight against my hand. I know the opposite rudder pedal will be hard to push for the recovery, but I know I can push it, and the spin will stop at once. Before too long, knowing, I climb high and do spins for fun.

It is only the unknown that is fearful. As clouds lower about us, for instance, we are unafraid if there's a runway in sight to land upon. We fear low ceilings only when the unknown lies below . . . fields or hills or treetops to come down in, when we have never once landed on field or hill or tree. But if we have landed in fields for years, if we know what to look for and how to control our airplane throughout, then landing in grass is no more frightening than landing on a mile of concrete.

Every pilot first conquered the fears of a narrow envelope of flight. We first knew our airplane and ourselves well enough only to fly around the pattern on sunny days. Then we knew more and flew into the practice area; then out into the world, then into cloud and rain, over seas and deserts—all without fear, all because we know and control the airplane and ourselves. We grew toward becoming human, and we fear only when we lose control.

We learned to avoid when we could not control, which is to say that we began to overcome stupidity. Don't Fly Through Thunderstorms is an axiom most pilots accept without testing. Never Trust Your Life To An Engine is a less heeded one, most often ignored by those who have never heard an engine stop in flight. Those pilots who fly without parachutes on black-night cross-countries and over seas of fog have no idea of where they might land if the engine quits, and without knowing haven't a prayer of controlling the crash.

It is a terrible empty feeling to have a guaranteed certified approved modern engine snap its crankshaft or swallow a valve or run out of gas when the tank gauge reads FULL. The feeling is all the worse when one can't see to land, worse yet when one can't bail out, and reaches ultimate despair when one finds he is a trapped and helpless passenger in his own airplane.

Certainly there are hundreds of pi-

Ellen Graham

"I live with the future. I love the past, but I don't live in it. . . . Except for a few stumbling blocks, I've had a good life."

"I don't have many Hollywood friends. I knew a lot of people when I was a child, but most of them have gone to the Great Beyond. Anyway, I was so young, I wasn't close to many people."

The house in Woodside, Calif., is English Tudor. The garden is beautifully kept; the interior, tastefully decorated. The walls are full of pictures of famous people, from President Nixon to President Sadat of Egypt, all of them autographed to the mistress of the home—former movie star Shirley Temple Black.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Do you see many films now?

SHIRLEY: The only time I look at pictures today is on planes. And I'm not sure I'm a good judge. I fell asleep when they showed "The Sting." It won an Academy Award. I also fell asleep when I saw "The French Connection" on a plane. And that one won an award. Maybe when I fall asleep, it's a good sign the film will win an award.

FW: What can you teach your children from your own experiences?

SHIRLEY: That you need a sense of humor to survive!

FW: Even something as serious as your recent breast-cancer operation?

SHIRLEY: When I was asked about the operation, I said I had lost an old friend. I don't think that necessarily shows that I have a sense of humor, but at least I didn't let it get me down.

FW: You had a press conference in the hospital room and wrote a story about the operation. Why?

SHIRLEY: I felt that if women, my sisters in the world, heard about my experience, it might save a life. It might help to convince them to examine themselves and go to a doctor if they're worried. But before I discussed my own operation, I talked it over with my family to see how they felt about it, and they agreed I should.

FW: Are you perfectly all right again?

SHIRLEY: Absolutely, 100 percent.

FW: What was the reaction of people who heard about it?

SHIRLEY: I got over 50,000 letters, and I know of at least one case where it saved a life. One lady wrote me that she examined herself after watching the press conference in the hospital and became aware of having the same problem I did. And she did something about it.

FW: Were there any disadvantages, as far as your children were concerned, in the fact that their mother was the famous Shirley Temple?

SHIRLEY: When Lori was seven and suddenly found out that her mother was a movie star, she became quite upset because the other children teased her at school. So I told her to find out what their fathers and mothers did and then tease them right back. I told them every occupation is important and is nothing to be ashamed of.

FW: Were you strict with them?

SHIRLEY: Yes, I was. They had their allowances and worked summers to make pocket money.

FW: What would you say is your biggest problem today?

SHIRLEY: I don't know if I can call it a problem, but I seem to be a born volunteer. I volunteer for simply everything. Sometimes this gets me into trouble, like when I volunteered to go to Prague on behalf of multiple sclerosis. I got there in time for the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia, but I got out all right. [Shirley led a motorcade from Prague to the Austrian border.]

FW: Are you good in business matters?

SHIRLEY: I'm a tightwad. I think it dates back to the Depression. My father was a banker and I remember him saying over and over, "Don't waste your money."

FW: How do you save?

SHIRLEY: I shop carefully. I buy quality, not quantity, because I think it lasts longer and is more frugal.

FW: Do you spend much money on clothes?

SHIRLEY: I'm not much on high fashion. I simply can't be frivolous because I travel so much. I like to wear serious clothes.

FW: Do you see a lot of your former Hollywood friends?

SHIRLEY: I don't have many Hollywood friends. I knew a lot of people when I was a child, but most of them have gone to the Great Beyond. Anyway, I was so young, I wasn't close to many people.

FW: When you travel, do most people still recognize you?

SHIRLEY: Some do. But then—well, not long ago I posed with the President of the General Assembly. When we finished, he said to me, "Thank you very much, Miss MacLaine."

FW: Is that the only time you have been taken for Shirley MacLaine?

SHIRLEY: Nope. I tried for years to get into Red China. I didn't think I would have a hard time because I was one of three people who signed a petition asking for China's admission to the United Nations and sent it to President Nixon.

FW: What happened to it?

SHIRLEY: When I mentioned it to Henry Kissinger, he said, "Shhh, don't talk about it." I didn't know he was preparing for China's entry into the U.N. Anyway, an answer to my application to get into Red China never came, but I heard Shirley MacLaine got a letter inviting her to come to China. I am sure the letter was meant for me. They got their Shirleys confused.

FW: Who is the most fascinating person you've ever met?

SHIRLEY: I think Golda Meir is the most fascinating woman, and Sadat the man with the most charisma. Now, that's said like a true diplomat, isn't it?

FW: I understand that you are on the board of directors of five major companies, and on the board of trustees and a member of ten other organizations—and that doesn't even include

"Not long ago, I posed with the President of the General Assembly. When we finished, he said to me, 'Thank you very much, Miss MacLaine.' " your work with the U.N. How do you find time to do it all?

SHIRLEY: I simply do it.

FW: Do you get much satisfaction out of doing so many different things?

SHIRLEY: I've always been interested in people and projects. Maybe I should have been a reporter. But I don't go looking for work. When there is a need and I can do something about it, I am happy to do it. I am also happy to say that I've made no enemies that I know of. The only people who won't talk to me are the Albanians. But then, they won't talk to anyone else either.

FW: Where are your children now?

SHIRLEY: Linda Susan is 26 and is doing the third rewrite on a novel that I haven't read yet. Lori's in a college in another state and is a music major. Charles is 22 and is majoring in political science. He wants to become an international lawyer specializing in sea law, which is marvelous since his father is so involved in it. [Shirley's husband, Charles Black, is a specialist in marine-resources development.]

FW: Do you look at your old films?

SHIRLEY: That's the question I am asked most frequently, and the answer is no, because I wouldn't enjoy them. I was there when they were made, I know what's happening, and I am not nostalgic. I can't wait to find out what's happening tomorrow. I live with the future. I love the past, but I don't live in it, and I consider myself lucky. Except for a few stumbling blocks, I've had a good life.

How You Can Win Contests!

Discover 14 Secrets to Winning . . . and Cash In On Exciting Vacations — Luxury Cars — Money and Thousands of Other Fabulous Prizes to Be Given Away This Year

If you dream of having enough extra cash to spend any way you would like. If you have longed for a few of the luxuries in life before you are too old to enjoy them. If you receive a special thrill when you are named a winner. Then continue to read and learn how to make your dreams come true.

To be a winner, the first thing you must do is forget about being lucky.

Pure luck has very little to do with winning contests.

If you follow any kind of sports activity closely, you know the best prepared team wins. They don't leave anything to chance.

The same systematic approach can help you win contests. If you prepare—if you have the proper tools—if you know how to make the law of averages work for you . . . you will soon be winning such valuable prizes as color television sets—tape recorders — radios — appliances. Even cash and vacations to exotic places.

Why am I so confident you can win—and win big?

Because I am doing it. I know the thrill of winning. I know what it takes to be a contest winner. I know if you are determined you can win too.

But learning how to win didn't come easy.

Until a few years ago, my wife and I were like the average person. We would occasionally enter a contest that caught our attention . . . with always the same results. Nothing. You may have experienced this same thing.

All my efforts left me frustrated. I knew I had to do something different to win. I decided to find out how I could improve my chances of winning. I started by interviewing the people who knew what it was all about. Contest judges.

I spent hours in writing letters and talking to judges. I studied carefully their advice and the techniques they suggested. With their help—and my own trial and error—I developed 14 simple—but effective rules—for entering and winning contests.

During the next three months my wife and I won valuable prizes in ten national contests . . . an average of winning one prize every 10 days.

Believe me, this is not luck.

To prove what I am saying is true, here are just a few of the letters I received announcing my winnings:

- You will be happy to know that your entry has been selected as one of the winners in the Purina Dog Chow $150,000 Triple Treasure Sweepstake Spectacular.
- Your entry has been selected as a winner in the Armour "Win a Wish from the Wizard" Sweepstakes.
- Congratulations! Your name has been drawn as one of the . . . winners in the Awake "Free Groceries for Life" Sweepstakes.
- Congratulations . . . you are a winner in the "007 Colgate-Palmolive Sweepstakes." Please allow six weeks for delivery of your RCA Tape Recorder.
- Your Polaroid camera is being forwarded to you as a winner in the Libby's Fine Foods Contest.
- Congratulations on your cash prize. The Minute Maid Company is forwarding a check to you before the holiday season.

My name is Haywood Kelly. My wife and I have won thousands of dollars in valuable prizes. You can be a big winner too—it's easy when you use the 14 simple steps I have discovered.

Without contests and a systematical way of winning, these prizes were only a dream . . . but now a dream come true.

Now you can make your dreams come true and experience the thrill of winning. You can master in a few hours what it took me two full years to discover.

The secret of winning.

I have written down every successful technique I have used. Every proven secret I have learned. And have included each of them in a book I have written, entitled "How to Win Contests."

Even though this book could mean hundreds, perhaps thousands of dollars to you in valuable prizes, it is priced at only $3.00. Remember, winning contests is not luck. It is SYSTEMATICAL PREPARATION.

I will show you how to prepare.

I will teach you the fourteen rules you must follow to be successful.

I will teach you the "golden rule" of winning.

I will show you how to be selective and enter only the contests that provide the best chance to win.

I will tell you how to use the rules of the contest to your advantage.

I will give you the formula for a winning strategy.

I will show you how to beat the law of averages by entering more than once. The trick is in the timing of your entry.

I will show you how to keep posted on current contests so you won't accidentally miss out on the best opportunities to win.

I will show you a secret trick to make sure your entries aren't overlooked.

I will teach you how to use logic to take the "chance" out of winning.

I will show you how to hit the jackpot time and time again.

At first you will find your winnings hard to believe. Even your friends won't believe it—they will think you struck it rich.

So, forget about being lucky. Don't take as long as I did to find out what it takes to be a systematic winner.

Give in to that impulse. There's nothing to lose.

I'm not asking you to believe what I have said. Just try it. I guarantee you will be a winner. It's as simple as that.

Guaranteed Winner

To prove there is more to winning than luck—you have this 100% no risk guarantee. Order my book "How to Win Contests." If you don't like it when it arrives, return it for an immediate refund. No questions asked. Or, keep it and enter several contests using my 14 successful rules. If in one year's time you have not won at least two national contests, return the book. You still get your $3.00 back.

Doctors Prove You Can Help Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieve Pain And Itch Too.

Gives prompt temporary relief from hemorrhoidal pain and itch in many cases.

When inflammation, infection and swelling exist in hemorrhoidal tissues—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But there's an exclusive formulation which in many cases gives hours of relief from the burning itch and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues. It also helps shrink the swelling of such tissues. Sufferers are delighted at the way it acts so gently and is so soothing to sensitive tissues.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients reported similar successful results in many cases. And it was all done without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or stinging, smarting astringents of any kind.

You can obtain this same medication used in these tests at any drug counter. Its name is Preparation H. Preparation H® also lubricates to protect the inflamed, irritated surface area to help make bowel movements more comfortable. Be sure and try Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

- A prized first edition and a uniquely beautiful Christmas gift.
- Priced at only $35.00

The First Danbury Mint Christmas Bell is issued in strictly limited edition only for orders postmarked by November 30, 1974. After that date it can be acquired only from original owners who are willing to part with it.

The 1974 Christmas Bell is based on an enduring work of art. The angel that sits majestically atop the bell was inspired by the famous Bernini angel in St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome. This adaptation of a great work of art by a master sculptor makes the bell truly distinctive.

As a gift, for yourself or someone else who is special, it is a unique first edition that could well be the beginning of a most interesting and rewarding tradition.

The Danbury Mint, a division of MBI Inc., creates and markets commemoratives. All such commemoratives are struck for The Danbury Mint by other organizations selected from among the world's leading private mints. The Danbury Mint does not itself produce commemoratives, nor is it affiliated with the U.S. Mint or any other U.S. Government Agency.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you want someone to do you a big favor, get him to do you a small one first.

2. One of the best ways to get someone to change his mind about something is not to talk to him about it at all.

3. The best way to get people to do what you want is to soften them up with a humorous approach—tickling their risibilities with jokes or witticisms to put them in a receptive mood.

4. The best way to convince someone of your good points is to let somebody else mention them.

5. The most difficult person to influence is the individual with low self-esteem.

ANSWERS

1. True—as shown by Stanford University studies which have demonstrated that complying with a small request makes a person much more prone to comply with a larger one later. This principle, as one leading investigator observed, is extremely useful in persuasion.

2. True. If a person has made up his mind about something, trying to talk him out of it—no matter how persuasive you are—is likely to arouse resentment and provoke argument. Psychological studies show that the best way to operate is to marshal your most persuasive facts but instead of directing them at the person you want to convince, arrange for him to overhear them. Example: Excuse yourself while you "make a phone call," during which you wax as eloquent as you can with your most convincing arguments, favoring the point you wish to put across and permitting the other party to "overhear" your conversation. Research has shown that "persuasions counter to the attitude held by a person were more effective when 'overheard' than when the same persuasion was made directly to the subject."

3. False—at least where young people are concerned—according to a series of studies at Ohio State University, where humor was found to be a very risky and unreliable ingredient when used in connection with persuasion. Results of tests showed that "in general, humor did not increase, and sometimes decreased, the persuasive effect of the message."

4. True. University studies have shown that another person will be far more impressed with your good points if they are presented by a third party rather than by yourself. However, if the person you wish to impress is likely to hear negative things about you, it's far better if he hears about them directly from you.

5. False. Studies show that he is the easiest to influence. As Profs. John R. Wenburg and William W. Wilmot observe in their definitive treatise, "The Personal Communication Process," "the low-esteem person . . . is easier to persuade because he has little confidence in his own personal opinions."

"I think that fear is something to be conquered in a fair fight, not ignored or swept under a rug of illusions. . . ."

lots who fly without fear through black nights and over miles of fog, but their peace comes not from knowing and control, it comes from blind faith in the crate of metal parts that is an engine. Their fear is not overcome, it has simply been masked by the sound of that power plant. When that sound fails in flight, I give you fear, stronger than ever.

I've been called Daredevil for flying passengers from wide clear hayfields, Chicken for refusing to fly them from a narrow runway facing hills and trees. Wild Crazy Irresponsible for picking up handkerchiefs with a wingtip, Overcautious for deciding not to fly at night without a parachute. But still I think that fear is something to be conquered in a fair fight, not ignored or swept under a rug of illusions that engines never fail. Fear, fear—you are a demanding enemy.

The biplane fell down from the sky, wallowing, buffeting. What am I doing here, the voice screamed. It took a second to answer. I'm living. And I bail out if we're not flying by the time we reach two thousand feet. At two thousand feet I'll pull the seat belt release and fall free, clear the airplane, and pull the ripcord. A shame to lose it because I can't fly a simple loop. I'll never live it down.

Slowly, like a big floating safe, the nose of the biplane eased downward. The terrible throbbing buffet began barely to fade, and the airstream to smooth. Maybe. . . .

We roared through two thousand feet pointing straight down, under control again, and the engine blazed once, coughed, and burst back into action. Oh boy, the voice said. You nearly had it that time and you were scared as a rat. Scared to death. This flying business is not for you, is it?

We climbed back to three thousand feet, put the nose down till the wind shredded itself in a great thundering hundred-mile cry through the flying wires, and this time with a good positive pullup we flew a fine loop, the biplane and I. Then another, and another.

What are we doing here? Overcoming the fear of death, of course. Why are we in the air? We're practicing, you might say, what it is to be alive.

THE HAMILTON MINT PROUDLY PRESENTS

NORMAN ROCKWELL'S FOUR FREEDOMS

A Memorable New Limited Edition of Pure 1000 Grain Silver Ingots
The Largest and Heaviest Ever Struck by The Hamilton Mint

ALL ORDERS MUST BE POSTMARKED BY NOVEMBER 30, 1974

NORMAN ROCKWELL, by far America's greatest and best loved artist, has for fifty years brought joy to millions of Americans young and old.

Now, by exclusive permission of The Saturday Evening Post, The Hamilton Mint is extremely proud to issue, and thus preserve, forever, in stunningly beautiful silver ingots, the greatest of all his works, "The Four Freedoms."

Rockwell created the original masterpieces during World War II in a burst of patriotic fervor. They depict those great values held very dearly in the hearts of all Americans. And they are just as truly inspiring now as they were then.

The Hamilton Mint believes that in these troubled times, our nation sorely needs to rededicate itself to these great beliefs: Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Worship, Freedom from Fear and Freedom from Want. So with great pride, we present this magnificent collection.

Mr. Rockwell Talks About His "Four Freedoms"

"When Roosevelt and Churchill issued their famous Atlantic Charter, with its Four Freedoms proclamation, I tried to read it . . . but I hadn't been able to get beyond the first paragraph. The language was so noble. Then one night . . . I thought, that's it! I'll illustrate the Four Freedoms using my Vermont neighbors as models. I'll express the ideas in simple, everyday scenes . . . in terms everybody can understand."

Norman Rockwell depicted these great beliefs with his own inimitable and unique brand of genius. Freedom of Speech is portrayed by a man unafraid of reprisal as he speaks his mind at a town meeting . . . Freedom of Worship shows all people free to worship according to their own dictates . . . Freedom from Want is depicted by a family sharing their Thanksgiving meal together and Freedom from Fear is shown tenderly by a mother and father as they snuggle their children safely in bed for the night. Rockwell himself says "The Four Freedoms was the best idea I ever had."

Quotations from "My Adventures As An Illustrator" by Norman Rockwell

A Strictly Limited First Edition

This First Edition will be of special interest to knowledgeable collectors because they represent Rockwell's greatest work and traditionally, first editions have always been the most valued. To insure the integrity of this edition, ingots will be struck to fill orders postmarked by November 30, 1974. Once those orders are filled, no more first edition ingots will ever be minted.

An Exclusive Treasury in .999 Fine Silver of Rockwell Masterpieces

The original Rockwell paintings shown at right, are of epic proportions. And so will be the ingots. Each beautifully sculptured ingot will measure 1¾" x 2¼" and will contain 1000 grains of .999 fine silver, the purest and finest silver available. These will contain more than twice the silver of our standard ingot. Each will be struck in high bas-relief with a satiny image and antique finish to clearly show every detail of the great art.

Your Valuable Personal Serial Number

Your First Edition Collection will be minted expressly for you and each ingot will be inscribed with your personal matching serial number along with The Hamilton Mint Hallmark. In addition, you will receive a certificate of authenticity to certify the limited edition status and precious metal content of each ingot.

Significant Investment Potential

We feel that many limited edition silver mintings are good investments but none do we feel has the potential of this particular Rockwell collection. And this comes at a time when leading economists are predicting that silver and gold will continue to become more valuable in the years ahead. Collectors have already realized bonanzas. For example, a 1970 Christmas Ingot was issued for $12.00 and now brings $195.00. A 1972 Thanksgiving Ingot containing 1 oz. of silver originally sold for $4.50 and now brings about $25.00. So please act promptly to share in the excitement of owning this magnificent collection.

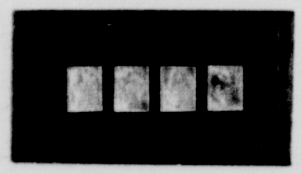
Guaranteed Price Protection

Subscribers to The Four Freedoms are guaranteed the original purchase price, no matter how high the price of silver may escalate. You will receive your first ingot soon after your application is accepted and the three additional ingots at monthly intervals thereafter. The Hamilton Mint will not accept any orders postmarked after November 30, 1974, any orders received after that will regretfully be returned.

Deluxe Edition of 24 KT. Gold on .999 Fine Silver

This special edition is the ultimate in beauty and combines the Pure Silver ingots with a layer of 24 KT. Gold to further enhance the potential value of this edition. Each ingot will also be individually hallmarked and serially numbered.

Special Display Frame



As a subscriber to The Four Freedoms Ingot Collection you will receive, at no additional cost, an easel-backed display case custom designed to hold your complete collection. This versatile display case of finely stained wood with a fine walnut finish, will proudly sit on a desk or shelf, or hang on wall.

EVEL'S RIVAL
A first for women

While Evel Knievel was busy preparing himself to be shot by missile across the Snake River Canyon in Idaho for $6 million, a more modest jump was being organized by British secretary Mary Connors. She was preparing herself to be the first person fired from a cannon across the Avon River. The drop may not have been as dramatic as Evel's, but Mary's derring-do was admirable enough. And unlike Evel, she made it! After her first voyage, Mary, a part-time stunt girl, repeated it once a day during a week-long fair.

Is a fish just a fish? Listen to one of the world's most expert fishermen: "Now and then I hear some bass man say the largemouth will outfight a big trout or steelhead. That's a lot of pure malarkey! A big bass just doesn't fight like a trout of equal size. He's too smart for that. A bass doesn't come blasting out, crazy-wild, like a steelhead or coho salmon or a big rainbow trout. No, indeed. He'll show you some of that power in the first couple of lunges. From then on he's got one of those mean eyes peeled for the nearest stump, brush, pad or something else he can wrap the line around and bust free. A bass has a personality. He's a real character. Nobody I know goes out and gets a big bass anytime he happens to want to." From "Catch More Bass," by Stan Fagerstrom. Copies of this oversized paperback are available from the author at Box 27, Silver Lake, Wash. 98645. Price is $7.95.

INGRID BERGMAN
How "Bell" tolled success

QUOTE (about the scene that made Ingrid Bergman a star forever): "The most important film in the making of a star is the one that follows the first big hit. If the second picture disappoints, the star-building process is aborted, the star-to-be becomes a flash-in-the-pan and has to start virtually from scratch. But if it is possible to follow one great success with another, the career is well and truly launched. Ingrid Bergman's crucial time came after 'Casablanca.' In her case, a fortunate set of circumstances fell into place to provide her with that second smash hit. It was Ernest Hemingway's 'For Whom the Bell Tolls.' . . . When Gary Cooper grabbed her in 'For Whom the Bell Tolls,' when they went into that sleeping bag together, something powerful happened in darkened auditoriums the world over." From Garson Kanin's "Hollywood" (Viking Press, $8.95). UNQUOTE.

MY WIFE'S HANDBAG

"It's in my handbag," says my wife,
Referring to a stamp, a knife,
A ticket, a receipt, a quarter,
A key—and I've the job of sorter.
I poke around, I shake, I shift,
I closely look at what I lift.
Each hand's a sieve or else a cup. . . .
At last, defeated, I give up.
Although it doesn't happen often,
My disappointment it may soften
If when my wife gives me a breather
And searches—she can't find it either.

Just Count the Many Advantages of this Wonderful House Plant!

1. Gorgeous blooms last for months.
2. Grows in either light or shade.
3. Highly decorative even when not in bloom.
4. Withstands dry indoor conditions.
5. You can watch Nature at work — and see how this unusual plant got its name!

For a different kind of house plant, one that is very easy to keep, and one that gives plenty of color, you can't go wrong with Queen's Tears (Billbergia zebrina). The heavily cross-banded silvery white, long fluted leaves turn purplish bronze in strong light. Produces exceptionally bright pink bracts with a downward curving spike that holds a mass of blue and white flowers. And you can actually watch the "tear drops" of sweet nectar form on the stigma.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

"HOW MANY EYES DOES A HOUSEFLY HAVE?"

IF YOU HAVE EVER TRIED TO SWAT ONE, THEN YOU'VE LEARNED THAT THE PESKY HOUSEFLY SEEMS ABLE TO SEE IN ALL DIRECTIONS AT THE SAME TIME. THIS IS BECAUSE THE HEAD OF A FLY IS ALMOST "ALL EYES." THE HOUSEFLY HAS FIVE EYES. TWO BIG COMPOUND EYES COVER MOST OF THE FLY'S HEAD. EACH BIG EYE IS MADE UP OF THOUSANDS OF TINY LENSES. EVERYTHING THE FLY LOOKS AT APPEARS AS MANY TINY IMAGES. ON TOP OF ITS HEAD, THE FLY HAS THREE MORE TINY, SIMPLE EYES. THEY CAN ONLY TELL LIGHT FROM DARK. WITH THE HELP OF ITS FIVE EYES, THE FLY IS USUALLY ABLE TO SAFELY DODGE YOUR SWATTER.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — When traveling with children I place a complete and co-ordinated outfit for each day in a plastic bag so a child can just grab a bag out of a suitcase. The children no longer are confused as to what to wear with what. — DOUG.

DEAR POLLY — When taking baby on an outing put powder on the diapers before putting them in the diaper bag. This saves space as well as time. — SHARON.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, % this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — My husband became so disgusted with the sopping-wet towels left after wiping the shower's glass doors and tile walls that he bought a window squeegee just for this chore. No more soggy towels! — LUCILLE.

DEAR POLLY — I use lids from prescription medicine bottles on the legs of the kitchen chairs and table to help prevent scuff marks. To fasten, place a strip of freezer tape, folded, sticky-side-out, inside each lid. Press a cap on each leg. Repeat the fitting if it doesn't stick the first time. — MRS. W.A.W.

DEAR POLLY — My 4-year-old draws at least four crayoned "art" masterpieces each day and never wants one thrown away. I partially solved the problem by writing letters to close relatives on the backs of these art pieces. My daughter is pleased that they are seen by others in the family and they provide me with very personal stationary. — MRS. P.S.

DEAR POLLY — When starting seedlings indoors, plant the seeds in old ice trays. The compartments are just the size for one small plant and they are easy to remove when transplanting. — MRS. C.C.

DEAR POLLY — Locks on sliding glass doors are sometimes flimsy. Place a snug-fitting wooden dowel stick in the glide rod after the door is closed and it will be impossible to push the door open. — PAT.

DEAR POLLY — If you have, or can find, an old bunk-bed ladder, turn it into a whatnot shelf by attaching, upright, to the wall to hold your little treasures for display. — SUSAN.

DEAR POLLY — When the joints in wooden chairs become dry and develop squeaks, I attack them with a can of sewing machine oil. Squeeze a few drops around the joint, rub well into the crack, add a few more drops for good measure and allow the oil to penetrate for a few days. Repeat oil again, if necessary. It probably won't be. — DAISY.
